NONPARTISAN PEARL HARBOR QUIZ DEMANDED

Democrats Fight to Keep Control

BY WILLARD EDWARDS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—A spirited congressional battle over the composition of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee developed today when Democratic leaders served notice they would fight Republican attempts to obtain equal representation on the inquiring body.

As passed unanimously by the senate yesterday and sent to the house for action on Monday or Tuesday, the resolution authorizing the inquiry, calls for a 10 man senate-house group, six Democrats and four Republicans, to probe all the facts and circumstances leading to and following the Dec. 7, 1941, Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and other Pacific outposts.

Urging a strictly nonpartisan, nonpolitical investigation, house Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts announced the minority would offer amendments increasing the size of the committee to 12 members, with six representing each party.

Rayburn Is Opposed

Speaker Rayburn of Texas declared the administration forces would strenuously oppose this proposal, insisting upon Democratic control of the committee. Since the committee members will select their own chairman, this would insure election of a Democrat to direct the course of the inquiry.

There are 298 Democrats and 228 Republicans in the senate and house. Noting this fact, Martin asserted the investigation is one that concerns the entire American people and should be absolutely divorced from any tinge of politics.

Rayburn, who would appoint the five house members on the committee, has publicly expressed his opposition to any investigation. The attitude of congress, in seeking to discover the evidence suppressed in the army and navy reports, is "bad," he said.

Yields to Truman Views

Having been overruled by President Truman and Senate Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.], the speaker has promised not to obstruct house consideration of the resolution. Republicans wondered, however, if he would appoint committee members full of zeal to pursue an exhaustive probe.

Rep. Harness [R., Ind.], author of a house resolution calling for a 14 man committee, hailed the action of the senate in broadening the scope of the inquiry to authorize an investigation of all the causes and consequences of war with Japan, including the assaults upon the Philippines, Wake Island, and Guam.

"It has been customary," he remarked, "to state that our unpreparedness at Pearl Harbor was responsible for some 3,800 casualties and that this is the penalty paid for our vulnerability to attack. Actually the casualties in the Philippines, Wake Island, and Guam should be added to the toll because the smashing of our fleet by the Japanese left these other outposts without possibility of assistance."

Grab Wealthy Fugitive as Postal Thief

Magnolia, Del., Sept. 7 [Special]—A prosperous business man respected here for 15 years was unmasked today as a fugitive sought for a quarter of a century for an Illinois postoffice embezzlement.

The man is James L. Parks, 67, known here as James L. Harris. He once was a teacher in the junior high school of Chicago's suburban Cicero and previously had been postmaster at Carbondale, Ill.

Until his sudden arrest on the old charge Parks' whereabouts were last known to authorities in 1925 when he leaped thru a window of the Dixie Flyer train as a Chicago policeman was returning him from Miami, Fla., to answer a fraud charge.

Appeared in Movies

People here knew him only as a prosperous poultry raiser, prominent in community affairs, and a prize winning pie baker. He said he had used the name of Harris since adopting it some years ago when he was a movie actor in New York and appeared in the film, "A Kiss for Cinderella."

When federal and state policemen arrested him here yesterday Parks was said to have had in his possession nearly $50,000 in cash and securities.

He promptly posted bail of $10,000 with 10 bills of $1,000 denomination when he was taken to Wilmington, and arraigned before United States Commissioner A. F. Polk. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of embezzlement and waived hearing.

Parks is charged with embezzling $3,336 in World War I. savings stamps while postmaster at Carbondale from 1912 to 1918. The loss was discovered after he left office and an indictment against him was returned at East St. Louis, Ill.

Admits His Identity

Upon his arrest Parks readily admitted his earlier identity and insisted the charge was a result of errors.

At East St. Louis, however, United States Atty. William Hart disputed Parks' claim of errors by clerks and said the arrest followed a complete FBI investigation. The prosecutor said the statute of limitations had not run on the charge inasmuch as Parks had been a fugitive since the indictment.

A fraud charge was placed against Parks in 1924 after he allegedly defrauded Miss May C. Llewellyn, a Chicago school teacher, of her life savings of about $2,000 when they became engaged to marry. He was then married and the father of three children.

GENERAL LEADS TROOPS INTO CAPITAL; 1,700 YANKS LAND TO OCCUPY KOREA

Veterans of Leyte Go Ashore from Three Ships

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

KEIJO, Korea, Sept. 8 [Saturday]—American occupation of Korea began today as 1,700 troops of the 7th division, veterans of Leyte and Okinawa, came ashore at Inchhen, port for this capital.

For almost a decade and a half Americans and other foreigners have been barred from this Asiatic peninsula which Japan has used for a laboratory for developing its "greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere."

Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th corps, will accept the surrender of Japanese forces in southern Korea tomorrow.

Three Divisions to Land

Today's troops disembarked from two transports, the Sarasota and the Oneida, and a communications ship, the Catoctin. More 7th division troops will arrive in the next three days, followed by the 40th and the 96th divisions. A few air borne men, including correspondents, landed at the Yongdungpo airport, seven miles from Keijo.

Keijo, also known as Kyongsong and Seoul, is more than 1,000 years old. It is about 20 miles south of the 38th degree latitude which is the boundary of the American and Russian occupation. The soviets have already occupied northern Korea.

Northern Base Taken

ABOARD U. S. S. PANAMINT, Sept. 8 [Saturday]—(AP)—Warships of the North Pacific fleet began moving today [Friday United States time] thru Tsugaru straits between Honshu and Hokkaido Islands to occupy Ominato naval base in Honshu's Mutsu bay.

It marked the first extension of the occupation of Japan to northern Honshu at a point nearly 400 miles beyond Tokyo.

Minesweepers paced the warships thru the strait. First in the line of destroyers was the Remy. Behind the destroyers came two old four stacker cruisers, the Richmond and Concord.

Behind them moved the Panamint, flagship of Vice Adm. Frank Jack Fletcher, whose warships moved in from the Aleutians for the occupation. Japanese emissaries had completed arrangements aboard her last night for the Americans to take over the base.

Three Cruisers in Line

Following the Panamint were three heavy cruisers, the Chester, Pensacola, and Salt Lake City.

Others of the 60-odd ships in the convoy trailed, with the carrier force remaining in the open sea. Carrier planes provided air cover. There was a sharp lookout for floating mines.

Tomorrow, naval, military, and civil leaders, and Hokkaido's military commander are due aboard the Panamint for formal delivery of the naval district. Rear Adm. Densuke Kanome, chief of staff of the district, came aboard the Panamint yesterday to inform the Americans the base was disarmed and ready for occupation.

TELL FANATICAL JAPS' PLOT TO THWART PEACE

TOKYO, Sept. 7 (AP)—Japanese sources said today the murder of a general near the emperor's palace grounds, the forging of a military order, and a wild chase to the radio station climaxed attempts of a group of fanatical Japanese army officers to prevent the imperial surrender announcement from reaching the people.

The dramatic battle in the closing days of the fight between two factions in Japan—one for peace, the other to continue the war—was disclosed by well informed Japanese sources.

These sources said that young Japanese officers on Aug. 14 killed the commanding general of Emperor Hirohito's personal guards division, Lt. Gen. Mori, and by forging his name to an order sent troops to surround the palace. They hoped to prevent a recording of the emperor's historic surrender rescript from leaving the grounds.

Their Plot Fails

The plan to capture the surrender announcement failed, however, when the forgery was detected.

When other members of the "fight on" faction learned of the failure of the original scheme they raced thru the streets of Tokyo to the radio station and began a search of the building for the document.

Their efforts failed when a radio station employe eluded the conspirators and telephoned a nearby army garrison for help.

All the time the recording was still at the palace and was delivered to the radio station shortly before it went on the air at noon Aug. 15.

Organized resistance to the emperor's decision to surrender the country apparently ended at the radio station. Kamikaze pilots [suicide airmen] who were trained to fly their bomb-planes into American ships, took their own lives in spectacular dives into the bay soon after the announcement of surrender was broadcast to the people.

Black Dragon Society Dissolved

The notorious Black Dragon society—most rabid of the hundreds of super-patriotic organizations—was dissolved in the last week of August, according to Japanese sources.

Yoshihisa Kuzuo, one of the organizers of the Black Dragon before the turn of the century, was chief executive when the society was formally disbanded after Japan's surrender, these sources declared.

According to other Japanese sources the emperor won control of the Suzuki cabinet from Japanese army leaders on Aug. 8, after Russia came into the conflict.

Taking his first direct action, the emperor was said to have demanded that the cabinet agree to his surrender proposal. In a stormy executive meeting the army demanded that the surrender proposal be turned down.

Near the end of the meeting Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, supported by other cabinet members, acceded to the emperor's wish and it was decided to accept the Potsdam ultimatum, these Japanese sources disclosed.

Jap Civilians Stare as Jeeps Drive Past Palace

TOKYO, Sept. 8 (Saturday)—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur entered Tokyo today with steel helmeted troops of the 1st cavalry division, and ordered the American flag unfurled over the United States embassy in the heart of the city.

The 1st cavalry band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner" as the flag, which flew over the capitol in Washington, D. C. on Dec. 7, 1941 and later in triumph over Rome and Berlin, caught the breeze over the embassy grounds.

MacArthur, making good on his famed Philippines cry, "On to Tokyo," saluted smartly. Near-by Adm. Halsey, whose 3d fleet drove Japan's navy from the seas, also stood stiffly at attention. It was a rigidly simple ceremony, opening at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Friday Chicago time.)

"Have Our Flag Unfurled"

MacArthur's only words, spoken to Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, 8th army commander, were:

"Have our country's flag unfurled, and in Tokyo's sun let it wave in its full glory as a symbol of hope for the oppressed and as a harbinger of victory for the right."

There was a benediction and the ceremony, symbolizing the first entrenchment of a conqueror within Tokyo in Japan's long history, was over.

Advanced elements of the mechanized cavalry entered Tokyo from Yokohama shortly before 7 a. m. At 7:25 a. m. they drove past the emperor's palace and pulled up at the Imperial hotel, where they posted guards at the entrances. The hotel is to serve as general headquarters.

Japs Stare at Yanks

They were followed by a motor convoy of the 1st cavalry, led by the 7th regiment.

By 8:50 a. m., the cavalrymen had thrown a cordon of honor guards around the embassy and chancellery grounds.

There were a few Japanese on the streets. Clusters of spectators formed along the route of entry and stared impassively at the khaki-clad Yanks.

The cavalry did not march, as first planned, from the imperial diet building which stands on Kasumigaseki hill adjoining the embassy grounds. Instead they left their trucks in an area which had been devastated by allied air raids. Soon after they were spaced at parade rest in the vicinity of the embassy, with gleaming bayonets fixed, awaiting MacArthur.

Japs Clear Their Troops

Each man of the honor guard wore Asiatic, Pacific, and Philippine liberation ribbons. Not a few had Purple Hearts. These men had proved outstanding in battle. This was their reward. The men appeared to be enjoying it.

Among the guard of honor were Pvt. John Cullotta, 2634 South Wells st., Chicago; Pvt.

Toman Takes Gondola Story for Last Ride

BY THOMAS MORROW

John Toman, county board of tax appeals member, never did believe that forest preserves came in jars.

Neither did he say when the county board decided to get gondolas, "Leave us get a male and a female."

Those were libels visited upon him by a fellow worker, Tommy Burns, who also fathered the canard that Toman worked in the library for 20 years and never read a book.

The Toman version came to light last night at the Pilsen park picnic which business men tendered the 23d ward Democratic committeeman.

Political Start Recalled

St. John Napomuch, a Bohemian patron, issued Toman a slight rebuff by letting a bit of rain fall for the first time in 35 years on a Toman picnic night. The 23d ward's John always had left the matter of rain in the good saint's hands.

Aided and abetted by Judge Rudolph F. Desort and Bill Milota, Bridewell superintendent, Toman cheerily gave his 33 years as a political leader a verbal currying and recalled how he got started.

"Since 1912 I've been in politics," he recalled, "and never got a beef from any paper in town—not even yours. I didn't want to be a politician 33 years ago. I was presiding over meetings of the Royal League, an insurance organization. A. J. Sabath [now Democratic congressman from the 5th district] had a lot of relatives who used to attend the meetings.

"I could keep them calm, so when they were looking for a Bohemian to run for alderman, Sabath recommended me. Mayor Harrison called me and said I'd either be a candidate or lose my library job."

The Neuritis Goes Away

The worst time John had in his political life came during the years when he was plagued by neuritis. An Indian chief in Wyoming told him to wear wire bracelets to cure the disease.

He tried this and later a Greek said a two inch copper plate worn in the shoe was better. These treatments ended when a salesman from Ohio said the only safe cure was a buckeye carried in the pocket.

The neuritis went away, but neither Toman, Milota, nor Judge Desort ever has been sure what did it.

Toman said he has been successful in politics because if he says he'll meet a man at 10 p. m., he makes a point of it to show up at 9:55 p. m. Always keeps his appointments, he observed, and has character enough to say "no" when it's necessary.

"Best thing that every happened to me politically? The trip I took to Europe with other aldermen." He held up a restraining hand. "Don't print that," he said, but relented. "No, it was a good thing. We learned things that saved the city money. I spent $3,500 of my own, and never brought back so much as a toothpick. The trip cost the city only $1,100."

Toman doesn't like his present job on the board of tax appeals—not enough action.

"I don't care what you write about me," Toman said, as the reporter prepared to leave, "but mention Toman."

Little Hitlers Out; Germans Taste Liberty

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Sept. 7—The 750,000 Germans living in the American sector of Berlin are tasting their first freedom and democracy today following the military government's ouster of 40,000 nazi block leaders, street leaders, and house leaders.

Investigation of thousands of complaints disclosed the neighborhood leaders had used their positions to evict many persons from their homes to give space to their favorites; had requisitioned furniture, radios, vacuum cleaners, and rugs; had recommended tenants for lower caloried ration cards unless they kicked back part of their food allowances, and had proposed many persons for the hardest work while withholding the names of cronies from labor boards.

Protested by Mayors

Burgomasters protested in vain against the ousters, asserting the house, street, and block leaders performed an excellent job of uncovering Nazis, safeguarding health by warning of polluted water, and ensuring garbage removal, by taking the census, by handling food cards, and by supplying lists of people available to the labor board.

"These leaders doubtlessly did good work in the beginning, but they outlived their usefulness and became little Hitlers, tyrannizing tenants and grafting and venting their personal grudges," said Lt. Col. Clarence Richmond of Chelsea, Mass., political affairs officer.

Afraid to Protest

"We received thousands of letters and oral complaints altho most civilians were so long regimented by nazism they were terrified to protest to German authorities. Most leaders did no other work and enrolled themselves for the highest caloried food cards. Many insisted on receiving mail for an entire building and thereupon censored it."

The British are preparing to follow the American example, but it is doubtful if the French or Russians will do so. France employs the concierge [custodian] system. All buildings in Russian cities have a "komandant" who spies on tenants and reports anything he considers suspicious to police. He can be held responsible for failure to keep the authorities informed.

CANADA ENDS 'LEND-LEASE' AS OF WAR'S END

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 7—Canada's mutual aid system, which is similar to lend-lease, was terminated Sept. 2, Finance Minister J. L. Ilsley announced today.

Immediately upon receiving word Japan was ready to capitulate the Canadian government "notified the governments of countries receiving mutual aid from Canada that transfers of supplies as mutual aid would cease at the end of hostilities," he said. They were asked "if they wished to continue to receive foodstuffs and other civilian supplies, which they had expected to receive as mutual aid," on a pay basis.

Income Tax Cut 12½% for Year by Australia

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 7 (AP)—A reduction in income tax amounting to approximately 12½ per cent in a full year was announced by Prime Minister Chifley today when he introduced the budget in the Australian house of representatives.

Slaughter Quotas to End Soon, Says Sec. Anderson

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 7 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson said tonight that cattle and hog slaughter quotas for packing and killing plants over the country are to be removed soon. He forecast the action would be announced in Washington "in a very few days."

Hunt Yacht; Hitler May Be Aboard

HAMBURG, Sept. 7 (AP)—A mysterious, luxurious 90 foot yacht is being widely sought in the belief that Adolf Hitler might be aboard it.

The search, which has covered every islet and inlet of the Schleswig-Holstein coast, got new impetus in recent days as British security police took official cognizance of persistent rumors that Hitler and his deputy leader, Martin Bormann, were in the Hamburg area in early May.

Bormann, one of the 24 Nazis the allied war crimes commission has listed for trial at Nuernberg, is known to have been with Hitler in the last days of the nazi regime.

A recent broadcast reported to have been picked up in Sweden and purporting to come from Bormann declared Hitler was in Germany, alive and in good health.

British investigators have discovered that equipment taken aboard the missing yacht in the weeks just before Germany's collapse included two radio transmitters.

Germans questioned have reported seeing Bormann in Hamburg the night of May 1-2. They said he made a dash from Hamburg in a high powered army car loaded with Schutzstaffel [elite guard] officers the day before Hamburg capitulated.

The yacht, described as diesel powered, is reported by dock workers to have sailed early in May from the small Elbe river port of Gluckstadt, 30 miles northwest of Hamburg. There the trail ends.

Clarence Gulley, Le Roy, Ill.; Staff Sgt. Clifford Fletcher, Indianapolis, Ind.; Staff Sgt. Reymond Lehr, Green Castle, Ind.; Pvt. Arthur Moran, Creston, Ia., and Pvt. Leonard Nevins, Rosedale, Ind. The guard was commanded by Lt. John W. Feeley of Saginaw, Mich.

Before the troops arrived a detachment of Japanese sailors, carrying their gear, marched along a street on the way to a demobilization center.

The Japanese government apparently had made every effort to clear out its troops from the immediate area to avoid any possible incident.

Raise Cavalry Colors

At the embassy grounds, the first cavalry band, conspicuous in white helmets, white belts and white leggings, beat a ruffle of drums as they entered and took positions on the lawn alongside a lily pond. There were no lilies and no water.

At the deep end of the garden, the first cavalry colors were raised as the men faced the chancellery, which had a 30 foot pole atop the roof. There the flag was raised.

Police Every 150 Feet

MacArthur, dismounting from his staff car, walked into the embassy grounds only a few minutes before the ceremony was to get under way. On the approaches to the embassy area, Japanese civil police were spaced every 150 feet. They wore swords but no other weapons.

MacArthur found the embassy undamaged by the allied air raids, which had lain in ruins more than half of the capital city. But the near-by Chancellery building had been hit May 25, damaging the roof.

The gold eagles above the windows of the embassy had been brightly polished by Japanese women. They had made the building spotlessly clean for the occasion. Japanese boys had raked leaves and mowed the lawn.

MacArthur, wearing his famous campaign cap, was accompanied by Lt. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland and Gen. Eichelberger. The troops presented arms as the commander, Adm. Halsey and other military leaders arrived. The band played the "general's colors."

Photographers Busy

As MacArthur stepped before the microphone, photographers scurried about to record the historic scene.

A few minutes later, he was looking proudly up at the same flag which six days ago waved from the mainmast of the battleship Missouri as the Japanese formally signed the papers of surrender.

Following his custom of never traveling with an escort Gen. MacArthur declined a Japanese offer to line the twenty mile route from Yokohama to Tokyo with armed police.

In downtown Tokyo, the appearance of jeeps with "GHQ" on their windshields, carrying reconnaissance units, drew some attention from the small crowds. The occupation troops will be swollen to 15,000 by Monday.

Prior to his entry into Tokyo, MacArthur appointed Brig. Gen. Elliott Thorpe as head of counter-intelligence to begin GHQ censorship of Domei, the Japanese news agency, simultaneously with the arrival of the Americans in Tokyo.

The schedule for the complete occupation of Tokyo called for the 1st cavalry's second brigade to complete its movement into the capital by 8 p. m. [6 a. m. Saturday, Chicago time] and most of the 1st brigade to move in tomorrow. The remainder of the division, bringing the strength to 15,000, will complete the occupation Monday [Sunday, United States time]. Only about 40 of Tokyo's 200 square miles will be occupied today.

Occupy Army School

The 1st cavalry division, en route to the capital, swung over west of Tokyo and occupied the Japanese army school of Haramachida.

Plans call for occupational forces to move into Sendai, 190 miles north of Tokyo, Niigata, 160 miles northwest, and Aomori, across Mutsu bay from Ominato, within the next two weeks.

The task of occupation elsewhere was stepped up at Singapore and in China. Reluctant Japanese elements of 85,000 officers and men in Singapore, eyeing vengeful Chinese and Malayan guerrillas, were given until 10 a. m. today Singapore time to drop arms.

In Manila is was disclosed that 10,000 Japanese troops in north Luzon's Cagayan valley laid down their arms Wednesday before 1,000 American doughboys of Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler's 37th division. Their action followed by two days the formal surrender of all Japanese forces in the Philippines by Lt. Gen. Yamashita to Gen. Jonathan Wainwright.

The empire's home army of 3,000,000 was disarming under the supervision of Japan's own police. Headquarters said the progress was satisfactory. Disarming in Japan will be complete by mid-October.

All the 11th air borne division, the first to set foot on the home islands, now is in Japan, and the 27th division is beginning to arrive. The occupation so far has been bloodless and without violence, but the Americans were taking no chances with fanatics.

Aussies to Take Borneo

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Australian command, acting in behalf of the Southeast Asia command of Adm. Mountbatten, will accept surrender of Japanese forces in Borneo, Dutch New Guinea, the Celebes, Halmahera, Timor, Ambon, and adjacent islands, Minister of Defense John Beasley said today.

Arrangements already have been made to accept surrender of Japanese in Dutch Timor, while arrangements for capitulation in Portuguese Timor will be made in coöperation with the Portugese government, he told the house of representatives.

Australian forces have been dispatched to Nauru and Ocean Islands as representatives of Adm. Nimitz, to accept surrender of the Japanese garrisons there. These islands are within the United States sphere of responsibility.

Limit Responsibility

Beasley said the Southeast Asia command would take over, in progressive stages, control of the greater part of the area south of the Philippines which was assigned Sept. 2 to British commonwealth control.

Altho Australia assumed initial responsibility for occupation of Borneo and islands to the eastward, the Australian command has not the resources to accupy all surrendered islands in that area, he added. In the final phase, he explained, Australia's responsibility will be limited to Papua and Australian mandated territory.

YANKS JOIN 400 JEWS OF BERLIN IN ROSH HASHANA SERVICES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

BERLIN, Sept. 7—In a reconstructed wing of a war and hate damaged synagog in the Kreuzerg section of Berlin, 400 members of the capital's tiny remaining community of Jews gathered at sundown tonight for the first Rosh Hashana observance since their liberation from a 12 year holocaust of extermination.

A score of American soldiers were the only young people there. The rest were all women and old men who wept as they intoned songs of ancient Israel and as a rabbi asked divine help in building a new freedom for his people.

"Give thanks," he said, "that we can rise again from our bed of pain. We have found the way home."

HERE IS TOKYO—GAY, PRETTY—BEFORE THE WAR

BY PERCY WHITEING

[Former Tokyo correspondent]

Tokyo, capital of Japan and third largest city in the world, was, until the American bombers hit it, a metropolis with a teeming and diversified population of some 6½ million, and buildings of every kind—Japanese and occidental, some magnificent, many humble. It has always been a true cross-section of Japan and its people. I lived in it continuously for 26 years. Tokyo means eastern capital, and is pronounced in two syllables, To-kyo [long o in each case], not To-kee-o, as commonly mispronounced.

The destruction caused by our air attacks is not the first disaster to hit Tokyo. Periodically during the centuries Tokyo [named Yedo from around the 12th century A. D. to 1869 after the Meiji restoration] has been struck by fire, earthquake, typhoon, flood, and tidal wave. The earthquake of Sept. 1, 1923, and its resultant fire, destroyed two-thirds of the city and killed nearly 100,000 of its people.

Once a Gay City

Tokyo was a gay city in its "golden age" of the two decades between the Russo-Japanese war and the 1923 catastrophe. The earthquake sobered the people, and tho they rebuilt their city finer in some ways than before—partly with an American loan—life was not the same again. However, Tokyo was still a pleasant place to live until the two or three sultry years before the war started in 1941.

The main imperial palace, with its spacious gardens and inner and outer moats, residence of the emperor and empress, is the center of Tokyo. There are numerous other palaces of the imperial family, notably the Aoyama palace of the empress dowager, and, in the same grounds, a western style palace, generally known as the crown prince's palace, in which Edward Windsor stayed when he visited Japan as prince of Wales.

Scattered thru the city, west and northwest of the main palace, are the foreign embassies and legations, including the beautiful American embassy on Reinanzaka hill. Tokyo is a city of temples, Shinto shrines, and schools. There are nearly 2,000 Buddhist temples, including the splendid Nishi-Honganji, Asakusa Kwannon, and Zojoji. Prominent among the shrines are the Yasukuni-jinja, where spirits of the soldiers and sailors killed in battle are enshrined, and the Meiji-jingu.

City Has Many Schools

Tokyo has many schools. There are some 20 universities—the leading ones are Tokyo Imperial, Keiogijiku, and Waseda, and thousands of government and private schools ranging from preparatory and technical schools to women's colleges and kindergartens.

Many date from the 1923 disaster and nearly all are well equipped. Among them was the American school, attended by the children of many of the foreign residents, and staffed by American teachers. During the decade before the war nine teachers from Winnetka schools taught at the American school.

Besides being the government center Tokyo also is the center for most of the business and industrial corporations and banks. While it had not such industries as Osaka or Nagoya, in normal times Tokyo's manufactures were valued at about 2 billion yen [$400,000,000 at prewar exchange] annually.

Climate Like Chicago's

Numerous towns and villages of the feudal era, often separated by swampy land, coalesced to form modern Tokyo with its area of 220 square miles. It is a highly residential city, served by a vast network of communications — modern subway, electric trains, street cars, buses, and, before the war, a fleet of taxicabs. It is a city of parks and gardens. The climate is not unlike that of Chicago.

Besides the Sumida river, flowing thru eastern Tokyo into Tokyo bay, there are many smaller streams and canals, and while Tokyo used to be known as the "city of 800 bridges," it has actually over 5,000, including one of the world's three Y bridges. It is served by electricity, gas, and water. There are some small harbor works near Shinagawa railroad station, but the real port of Tokyo is Yokohama.

Tokyo's JOAK station is the radio center of Japan, tho there are 10 other stations in the country. The Imperial hotel—built by a Chicago architect, Frank Lloyd Wright—the Tokyo club and American club were favorite gathering places of foreign residents and visitors.

Many Museums in City

The city has many museums, libraries, academies of music and art—Japanese and western in both—and a modern planetarium. Many thousands of restaurants, from sumptuous to "hole in the wall," as well as innumerable street stalls, served Japanese and western food. In contrast to most other Asiatic countries, the two or three thousand foreign residents in Tokyo were scattered thruout the city, and generally intermixed rather freely with the Japanese in social and business activities. Western dancing was popular among the Japanese younger set, but it died out after the 1923 earthquake.

Among Tokyo's many hospitals, one on the bank of the Sumida was built with some $3,000,000 remaining from American funds donated at the time of the 1923 earthquake. Another is St. Luke's international medical center.

HEAR HOPKINS FORCED SAILORS OUT OF CIVVIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—Harry L. Hopkins, No. 1 White House intimate for 12 years under Franklin D. Roosevelt, who left the government to become impartial chairman of the New York garment industry, forced rescinding of the navy order permitting naval personnel to wear civilian clothes off duty, it was learned tonight.

Forty-eight hours after Navy Secretary Forrestal issued the order and service men and women thronged capital clothing stores to purchase longed for civilian garb, the navy did an about face. The shift was forced by Hopkins, according to several high naval officials who would not be quoted.

Forrestal's Explanation

Forrestal had reported that the order was rescinded because it had been determined that manufacturers of civilian clothes would be unable to keep up with the demand. The rescinding of the order will force personnel to purchase uniforms and accessories now on hand made by garment workers.

It will be at least five or six months before the order is again issued, it was understood. In the meantime, manufacturers hope to sell their uniforms to the government as replacements for worn outfits.

"We thought every one had at least one old civilian outfit in mothballs," Forrestal said in making his announcement, "but it looks as tho they all want new ones. This illustrates the complexity of problems of our return to a normal peace time economy.

Capital's WAVES Irate

"We are going to have to postpone application of the order so long as the manufacturers do not have sufficient labor and materials to turn out large amounts of civilian clothing."

Particularly incensed over the sudden reversal were the thousands of WAVES stationed here, who had been enthusiastic at the opportunity to wear feminine frills again. Hundreds of these had been on buying sprees in Washington stores.

Hopkins left his $15,000 a year federal post last July 5 to take a "much needed rest." It was announced the following day that he had been made "czar" of the New York women's coat and suit industry, replacing former Mayor James J. Walker.

V-E JUBILATION IN JAP PRISON IS TOLD BY YANK

American prisoners in Japanese prison camps celebrated V-E day by breaking open their last remaining Red Cross packages, a letter from Corp. Edwin A. Wuerst to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Wuerst, 6437 N. Hamilton av., disclosed yesterday. Corp. Wuerst was captured on Corregidor and transferred later, with Gen. Wainwright, to a prison in China. The letter was dated May 19 and was uncensored.

"We have been celebrating for the last few days," the letter read. "What little Red Cross [supplies] that the Japs let us have was opened and issued out. I did not receive the personal packages sent me. Right now I weigh 145 pounds, and altho my health is excellent, some good steak will fix up anything else that's wrong with me. Don't serve rice or vegetables on the table when I get home."

A professional swimmer, Corp. Wuerst was six feet one inch tall and weighed 190 pounds when he enlisted in the marine corps Aug. 30, 1940. His parents have not seen him since then.

REVEAL CARRIER NEARLY CAUGHT IN PEARL HARBOR

Enterprise Almost There When Japs Attacked

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—Now that the war is over it is possible to disclose the activities of two American task forces, each containing an airplane carrier, before and after the naval disaster at Pearl Harbor.

One carrier, the Enterprise, escaped being bombed by a few hours, arriving at the Hawaiian base shortly after the attack on Dec. 7, 1941. Another, the Lexington, afterward lost in the battle of the Coral sea, was circled by the enemy fleet, which attacked from the north.

The two carriers, the only capital ships this country was able to put to sea in the Pacific after the battleships were damaged or sunk at Pearl Harbor, went in search of the enemy escorted by a few cruisers and a small number of destroyers.

Logs Locked Up

The logs of the two carriers were secured by THE TRIBUNE today. These had been held under lock and key in naval archives during the war.

The log of the Enterprise reveals the carrier was in Pearl Harbor 10 days before the attack. On Nov. 25, 26, and 27, 1941, the vessel was being prepared for a mission to reinforce the marine air garrison at Wake Island.

On Nov. 28 the carrier left the naval base as part of task force No. 2. The mission accomplished, the task force was returning to Pearl Harbor when the enemy launched the air attack.

So close was the carrier to the naval base that planes had been launched in a tactical exercise to make a landing at Ford Island within Pearl Harbor. These planes stumbled in on the attack and got into battle with the Jap planes and also got caught in what anti-aircraft fire army and navy forces were able to throw into the air.

Didn't Enter Harbor

It was known that some American planes did get into the air during the attack, but it had been believed that these planes took off from air fields at the base. The Enterprise log revealed that these were her planes.

The Enterprise did not enter Pearl Harbor. Evidently it was feared the Japs might return. Planes were launched from the carrier on search missions in an endeavor to locate the retiring Jap fleet.

Late Dec. 8 the carrier entered the harbor to refuel. The next day she sortied to the north of Oahu, where she spent a week launching planes on search and anti-submarine missions.

Returns to Base

On Dec. 18 the Enterprise again returned to Pearl Harbor and left on Dec. 19, heading westward of Johnston Island.

The Lexington also was in Pearl Harbor before the attack and was at sea carrying planes to reënforce installations at Midway Island on Dec. 7. The carrier was part of task force No. 3, which also consisted of a few cruisers and some destroyers. It was on the trip to Midway that the Lexington's task force was probably circled by the Jap fleet, which by then was maneuvering itself into position north of Hawaii for the surprise blow.

On Dec. 8 the Lexington reversed its course. It was then believed the attack had been made from Jaluit, the Jap naval base in the Marshall Islands, and that the Jap fleet was returning to the base.

Stays Near Oahu

On Dec. 9 she was in the vicinity of the 19th parallel of latitude, north, and the 163d western meridian. On Dec. 10 the carrier was southwest of Oahu and on Dec. 11 it was about 100 miles southwest of Oahu. On Dec. 12 and 13 the vessel was still in the vicinity of Oahu.

On Dec. 14 the Lexington sortied as part of a task force from Pearl Harbor for a possible raid on Jaluit. On Dec. 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 she continued on her mission. On Dec. 20 the proposed raid was canceled and the Lexington also went on patrol duty.

PLANE CARRIERS TO MOVE TROOPS IN PACIFIC AREA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The 35,000 ton aircraft carrier Saratoga and 18 escort carriers are being assigned immediately to troop transport duty in the Pacific, the navy announced today. The assignment was ordered by Fleet Adm. King, chief of naval operations.

In addition, the navy said, 40 other escort carriers and 197 attack transports will be assigned to this duty as soon as they can be released from their present work

The army announced meanwhile that its "green project" system of bringing troops back from Europe by air transport would be discontinued next Monday and that a portion of the facilities would be used for speeding Pacific personnel home for discharges.

FEAR JAP MINES WILL ENDANGER SHIPS LONG TIME

EN ROUTE TO KOREA WITH 7TH FLEET, Sept. 6 [Delayed]—(AP)—Naval observers with this fleet say drifting Japanese mines, ripped from their moorings by typhoons, are likely to endanger shipping in the far western Pacific for months or even years.

They termed the floating mines a far greater peace time menace than any wind carried stratosphere balloon bombs which may remain undiscovered in western North America.

Units of the fleet operating in the gulf of Chihli and the Yellow sea under the command of Adm. Thomas C. Kinkaid in one day detonated 18 of the drifting mines out of 100 sighted.

4 CARRIERS HIT PEARL HARBOR, ADMIRAL SAYS

Defeat in Bismarck 'Greatest Shock'

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7 (AP)—Four Japanese aircraft carriers participated in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, Rear Adm. Toshitane Takata said today. Takata was senior staff officer of the Japanese 3d fleet, which consisted largely of carriers and protecting cruisers.

[A United States army board which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster reported there were six carriers in the Japanese task force.]

Speaking thru an interpreter at a press conference in the quarters of Lt. Gen. Barney M. Giles, deputy commander of the United States strategic air force, and Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurtsmith, commander of the 13th air force, Takata said he was stationed in Tokyo when Pearl Harbor was attacked and that the plan was directed by Adm. Nagumo, who later committed suicide at Saipan.

Took Circle Route

"I believe our four carriers took the circle route to Hawaii and the planes took off 200 or 250 miles north of Oahu [island on which Pearl Harbor is situated]," he said.

"The carriers operated from Japan and must have been out at least a week on the way. The majority of the planes came back from the raid safely.

"Six months later with operations going smoothly we intended to occupy Midway, but I don't believe there was so much ambition as to occupy the Hawaiian Islands. That's when the battle of Midway halted us."

The United States navy routed the Japanese at the battle of Midway, June 3-6, 1942, sinking four carriers, two heavy cruisers, three destroyers, and one transport.

When asked how it happened the Americans knew the Japanese were coming to Midway and were waiting for them, Takata said Japanese officers had a grave suspicion there was "a leak," but didn't know where it was.

[An Australian official said earlier this week that allied intelligence had succeeded in breaking down the Japanese code before the battle of the Coral sea, which preceded the battle of Midway.]

Navy's Greatest Shock

The battle of the Bismarck sea, when Gen. MacArthur's flyers sank an entire convoy of at least 10 warships and 12 transport-cargo ships with 15,000 troops aboard, was the greatest shock of the war to the Japanese navy, Takata said. The battle was fought March 2-6, 1943, off New Guinea.

"You underestimated when you at first guessed 22 ships were sunk there," Takata continued. "I don't know the exact number, but I think it was between 30 and 40. Not one escaped."

Takata added that the Japanese thought their ships had been torpedoed. But Gen. Wurtsmith told him no torpedoes were used by the 135 allied planes which destroyed the convoy in the action. Gen. MacArthur's headquarters at the time hailed it as possibly the greatest victory ever achieved by aircraft against a naval surface force.

In the action, the allied airmen employed on a wide scale, for the first time, skip-bombing tactics in which the bombs were launched at almost sea level into the sides of the vessels. The almost horizontal course of the bombs probably accounted for the Japanese belief the vessels were torpedoed.

American, Australian, British and Dutch flyers took part in the action.

Four Planes Lost

The final count, by American official reports, was three cruisers, seven destroyers, and 22 transports and cargo ships sunk, with the 15,000 Japanese soldiers wiped out. One allied bomber and three fighters were lost.

The victory reduced the Japanese threat against Australia and figured in the success of the American-Australian campaign up the New Guinea coast.

Takata said in his opinion air power more than any other one factor caused Japan's defeat, and loss of Okinawa made prospects of surrender a certainty.

"The aerial blockade and mining of Japanese waters also contributed greatly to our defeat," he said.

YANKS DISBANDING JAP SECRET POLICE IN OCCUPIED AREAS

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 7—The terrifying Japanese secret police [kempei-tai] at whose hands Americans and Japanese, alike, suffered before and during the war, are being disbanded in occupied area. Col. C. V. Cadwell of Arcadia, Cal., provost marshal of the 8th army, is directing the operation and is collecting the side arms of the gendarmes.

Wearing uniforms trimmed with red, the secret police in Yokohama have surrendered their side arms, including swords, and scattered to their homes thruout the province. As the army of occupation moves forward the disbanding will continue.

Weapons of the surrendered Japanese army are being gathered in warehouses. A directive issued by Lt. Gen. Eichelberger permits Japanese army officers to retain their samurai swords provided there is proof such weapons are heirlooms. Under the terms of the order the swords may not be worn.

NAVY REVEALS WAKE JAPS ATE RATS AND BIRDS

GUAM, Sept. 8 [Saturday]—(AP)—By-passed Japanese on Wake Island ate rats and birds and were plagued by malnutrition, disease, and constant American air raids.

The navy today revealed conditions found by marines when they reoccupied the island. Thousands of rats had been trapped, as had the birds, including feather masked pirate birds, love birds, and wild canaries. A single turnip was carefully nurtured. It served as a meal for five Japanese sailors.

An estimated 3,000 Japanese died from starvation and in air raids. All but a few officers, of the 1,250 found alive, were starving. This number would have been halved in another month, the Japanese admitted.

MAYOR PLEDGES SANITARIUM QUIZ AS CHARGES FLY

BY ORVILLE DWYER

Mayor Kelly yesterday promised an investigation of charges that food at the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium, which costs the taxpayers 3 million dollars a year to operate, is so poor that the charity patients have been subsisting mainly on provisions brought in by relatives.

The mayor said he would "call in" Harry Reynolds, business manager, and Dr. Leo M. Czaja, general superintendent, and question them concerning the meals and other conditions at the institution.

THE TRIBUNE Thursday substantiated repeated complaints by patients and employes at the sanitarium that the food is bad.

Discounts Graft Charges

"I think the trouble probably is due to the difficulty we've had in getting good meats and other foods for the sanitarium," Mayor Kelly said. "I feel certain there has been no deliberate neglect or graft."

Mayor Kelly disputed the charge of a patient who said political influence is necessary to obtain a bed in the sanitarium.

"Ten times in the 12 years I have been mayor I tried to use a little influence to get some one into the sanitarium," the mayor said. "Each time I had to convince them it was actually a matter of life or death or the prospective patient went on the waiting list with all the rest."

Physician Disputes Mayor

The mayor's assertion, however, was not in accord with a statement made yesterday to THE TRIBUNE by a physician who has practiced in Chicago for 20 years and has served on the staff of the sanitarium.

"I learned it the hard way—but I learned what must be done to get some one in the sanitarium," this doctor said. "When I get a tuberculous patient who must go to a sanitarium and can't afford a private one, my first question is, 'Do you know a politician?' If the patient doesn't know a politician, or fails to get action, I call in one of the doctors at the sanitarium as a 'consultant' on the patient's case. That doctor comes in to make a 'definite diagnosis.' For this he charges $25 or $50."

Official Denies Accusations

The charges made by this physician were denied by Dr. Czaja, the sanitarium superintendent. They included:

That lung collapse treatment [pneumothorax] is often withheld for months until patients "wake up to the fact" that they must pay some one to get it.

That patients with syphilis are charged $3 "a shot" for neo-salvarsan treatment altho it is supposed to be free.

That no attempt is made to serve food under a scientific dietary treatment program.

GUNMEN ROB GROCER OF $150

Albert Winograd, 5338 Drexel av., a grocer at 3548 Rhodes av., reported yesterday to police that three Negro gunmen robbed him of $150 and several checks in his store, then fled in an automobile.

Writ Dissolved

MRS. EVAHLYN STROMSEN

Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday dissolved an injunction preventing Harold J. Stromsen, 45, of 1035 Park av., River Forest, wood work manufacturer, from molesting his estranged wife, Evahlyn, 34. The injunction was obtained from Circuit Judge Robert Jerome Dunne by Mrs. Stromsen in her suit for partition of their $76,000 home at the Park av. address. Judge Feinberg held that such an injunctional order had no place in a suit for partition, and said that if Mrs. Stromsen needs protection she should seek it in a criminal proceeding.

ADD U. S. WHEAT TO RATIONS OF GERMAN PUBLIC

FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP)—United States army officials today said that American wheat was being used to supplement German civilian rations in the United States, British, and French occupation zones. European theater headquarters said this was necessary to "prevent disease, disorder, and hazard to occupational forces."

Approximately 600,000 tons of allied nations' wheat will have reached the continent by the end of September, it was announced. Most of it is from the United States, with some from Canada and Australia.

"It is expected that each country in whose zone the wheat is used will assume the financial burden," it was added, "but pending completion of necessary arrangements the producing country will be required to assume the cost."

First estimates are that 40 per cent of the wheat will be needed in the United States zone, 45 in the British zone, and 15 in the French.

26,000 Germans Back from U. S. Prison Camps

PARIS, Sept. 7 [Reuters]—Twenty six thousand German prisoners of war were brought back from the United States to Le Havre yesterday. They are the first batch of German prisoners to be sent back to Europe to help repair war damage.

GREEN INSPECTS UNDERSTAFFED STATE HOSPITAL

Gov. Green made a surprise inspection trip yesterday thru the overcrowded, understaffed Chicago State hospital [Dunning] and said he found conditions far from satisfactory.

Unheralded, the governor, accompanied by Cassius Poust, director of the department of public welfare, entered the institution as the patients were being served their noon meal. The governor said he chose the hospital because its problems are most acute of all state institutions.

Rated Capacity Exceeded

In the four hour inspection, the governor found:

1. Two employes are planning and supervising the preparation and service of 15,000 meals a day, altho the budget calls for eight.

2. The institution is caring for 4,500 patients—900 more than its rated capacity.

3. Staff members are 153 fewer than the number needed for 3,600 patients.

4. One-third as many physicians are on duty as before the war and there is a shortage of nurses.

5. Temporary beds have to be arranged at night in the day rooms of some wards.

Praises Officials' Work

The governor deplored the conditions at the hospital, but paid tribute to the work of Dr. Francis Griffin, superintendent, and Harold Johnson, business manager, and the other employes who are doing double work.

"I am pleased with the way they have buckled down to the job," Green said. "And from my observation, they are doing better than could be expected."

"It is my hope," he continued, "that the release of war workers and doctors and nurses from the armed services may be able to fill the vacant posts. That and post-war construction to relieve overcrowding are the only solutions to the problem."

Meals Termed Adequate

Gov. Green inquired particularly as to the quantity ond quality of food given to the patients and was assured that the meals are adequate. Business Manager Johnson estimated food costs at 36 cents per day per patient, not counting the great quantities of seasonal vegetables grown on the grounds at little cost. Thus, he contended, the value of food, including home grown produce, amounts to more than the budgetary allowance.

Poust said the welfare department is trying to remedy the overcrowding by transferring patients to downstate hospitals, which are in slightly better shape. This is complicated, however, by the natural desire of the patients and their relatives to use the facilities nearest to home.

"Man power is our No. 1 problem," Poust emphasized. "We are prepared to employ promptly men and women who are qualified as attendants or for places on the technical staffs. Those interested may apply to the department's Chicago office, 176 W. Adams st., or at the capitol in Springfield."

REPORTS EFFORT TO SHIELD F.D.R. IN PROBE FAILS

Publication Cites Tribune Expose

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—The authoritative Washington news letter, Human Events, today stated that the administration's attempt to smother investigation of Pearl Harbor in an effort to shield the late President Roosevelt, has failed.

The publication, edited by Felix Morley, editor and educator, and Frank C. Hanighen, former foreign correspondent, said that many observers, after detailed study of the official army and navy reports of the disaster, conclude the trail of responsibility leads to the door of the late commander in chief.

Tribune "Forced Release"

Official release of the army and navy reports was credited to THE TRIBUNE by Human Events. The editors said the official reports were released hastily because the administration had received word THE TRIBUNE was about to reveal hitherto secret details about Pearl Harbor in a story by John T. Flynn, author and economist.

The story was published last Sunday, four days after President Truman made public the reports of the army and navy investigations into the greatest naval defeat in history.

Kept Public in Dark

"President Truman is considered to have stumbled badly when he sought to blame the American people for unpreparedness for Pearl Harbor," the publication said.

"It can hardly be denied that the government did not inform the American people of the gravity of the far eastern situation. As the army report says: 'On Sept. 30 [1941], [Ambassador] Grew protested at the secrecy of our conversations with Japan as practiced by the United States, without advising the public, whereas it was common knowledge in Japan.' In short, the fascist enemy kept its people informed, but the democratic United States government did not."

SURRENDER PAPERS GIVEN TO TRUMAN IN WHITE HOUSE RITE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Japanese surrender papers signed aboard the battleship Missouri were presented to President Truman today by War Secretary Stimson.

Also turned over to the President at an informal ceremony was Emperor Hirohito's imperial rescript, calling upon his subjects to submit peacefully.

The documents were flown into Washington last night by Col. Bernard Thielen, courier for the general staff. He left Tokyo Sept. 3 with the papers.

The President pointed to some Japanese symbols on the imperial rescript and said smilingly:

"This is the Emperor's signature, I take it."

The documents will be placed in the national archives for public examination along with German surrender papers already on exhibition there.

ARMY APPOINTS YANKS TO STUDY ATROCITY CASES

All Prisoners' Charges to Be Investigated

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7 (AP)—American occupation authorities have begun formal investigations into the treatment of allied prisoners of war held in Japanese prison camps, United States 8th army headquarters announced today.

An "atrocity officer" and enlisted specialists have been assigned to accompany each team sent to liberate the prisoners, the announcement said. They will investigate charges made by abused service men against officers and guards.

Liberation teams have penetrated as far as Osaka on Honshu Island, 365 miles west of Tokyo, to escort allied prisoners to Yokohama for treatment for diseases and ailments incurred in captivity, and for embarkation to home ports.

Total Freed Now 9,000

Eleven hundred more prisoners have been liberated, bringing the total to 9,000. Of this total 4,500 have been evacuated from Japan and the remainder are on ships awaiting evacuation. Those flown from Japan to Manila today totaled 2,150.

Army officials are prepared to begin the movement of 3,860 prisoners from the Sendai area on the northeastern Honshu coast, 190 miles north of Tokyo, next Tuesday. A task force of the fleet will go into the Sendai area, which will be the collection point for all northern Honshu. Some will be brought out by ship, others by train to Yokohama.

HEARTS' GLOW LIGHTS SHIP

BY JOSEPH HEARST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ABOARD THE U. S. S. ROCKY MOUNTAIN, In the China Sea, Sept. 7—Rear Adm. Dixwell Ketcham reported to this command ship of the 7th fleet today that he had taken 1,160 prisoners, including 88 Americans, from Formosa. He also reported that he was following the war time regulation to darken ships, in the following words:

"We are observing the darkened ship ruling, but the glow from within the souls of the men who were Jap prisoners for almost four years lights our whole horizon."

Ketcham reported that 82 men were found in such condition that they could not be moved until they have had medical attention. The others were taken aboard ship for Manila, where they will be processed for return to the United States.

The darkened ship regulation, with portholes closed at night, still is being observed in this area and the ships have been holding to a zigzag course as tho the war were still going on.

Train Rescues 603

ABOARD PRISONER OF WAR TRAIN NEAR YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7 (AP)—Liberated by a small American force which ventured far into unoccupied Japan, 603 prisoners of war rejoiced aboard this train today but avoided singing "Roll Out the Barrel" because to them it was a death song.

The 8th army rescue mission of 24, including five nurses, rode a Japanese troop train 365 miles to reach the prisoners at Kobe. They were unmolested during the 13 hour journey over the main Takaido line from Yokohama.

Prisoners aboard the returning train included American, British, Dutch, Greek, Chinese. The largest group were British captured at Hong Kong. They said 25 per cent of the prisoners failed to survive the first winter at Kobe and that, under the direction of the Japanese Col. Mura'a, it was the custom to roll the bodies to the crematorium in barrels.

"There isn't a man here who can hear the song 'Roll Out the Barrel' again and not shudder," said an officer. "We sang it so often as a funeral dirge."

More than 140 died in the Kobe camp that first winter. They included two American officers.

The recovery team included Corp. Phillip C. Diogardi of 741 North Central Park av., Chicago.

Locate 1,721 More

ABOARD SEVENTH FLEET FLAGSHIP, Sept. 6 [Delayed] (AP)—The first direct contact has been established with a newly located group of American prisoners of war in the Mukden area, Adm. Kinkaid announced today.

Lt. Col. J. E. Donovan reported to this flagship by radio that the prisoner group had been assembled by the China theater army airborne rescue team. The group includes 1,721 prisoners, a much larger number than first reported.

Present operational plans call for the evacuation from Dairen by ship of those in the worst physical condition. Dairen is 200 miles south of Mukden, but rail communication is erratic.

23 Civilians Liberated

SINGAPORE, Sept. 7 (AP)—Twenty three American civilians, including nine women, were among 4,506 allied internees of the Japanese liberated from the Sime road camp. The liberated Americans include: Dale Dernier Bales, Maxwell, Ia.; Mrs. D. M. Bales, writer, born in Chicago. Address c/o Mrs. Dorothy Blair, Los Angeles, Cal.; Sister Helen Elizabeth Diehl of a Catholic order, born in Evansville, Ind., and Minnie Louise Rank, Methodist missionary, born in Kilbourne, Ill.

American prisoners of war found in Singapore included T/Sgt. R. C. Lindley, USAAF, Blencoe, Ia.; Seaman Joseph William Schertz Jr., 704 Clinton av., Oak Park, Ill., and Musician Ralph Elgar Morris, 102 Plum st., Marshall, Ill.

Mrs. Ann Birdwell in court at Kansas City, Mo., yesterday.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 7 (AP)—After a brief hearing in Circuit court, Mrs. Ann Birdwell today was granted an annulment of her marriage to Jack Marshall, Wichita mechanic whom she wed 12 days before she learned that her first husband, Sgt. Gene D. Birdwell, had been found alive in a Jap prison camp. Birdwell, nephew of Marshall, had been reported killed in a flight over Burma last October.

Second Husband Sues

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 7 [Special]—Lt. James H. Bernstein, the second husband in Oakland's marriage mixup, today filed suit for annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Laurie Cales Bernstein.

They were married on July 9 after she had been notified by the navy department that her first husband, Lt. James A. Cales, had been killed in aerial combat off Formosa. Early this week Lt. Cales was found alive in a Japanese prison camp and now is on a hospital ship in Tokyo bay.

Mrs. Bernstein left the home of her second husband yesterday with her 6 months old son, James H. Cales Jr., and moved to the home of her parents.

LIST ATROCITIES BY JAPS INSIDE SINGAPORE JAIL

Freed Prisoners Give Evidence

SINGAPORE, Sept. 7 (AP)—Administrative personnel among the newly liberated prisoners of war here are completing exhaustive documents from which the allies may prosecute Japanese perpetrators of almost unbelievable physical cruelties and atrocities.

A long list of crimes, including brutal killings, are being documented with names and dates as an authentic record against the individual Japanese.

While two Japanese soldiers man the sentrybox at the gates giving unanswered salutes to passersby, the administrators inside the Sime road internment camp prepare the evidence. The evidence chiefly concerns an alleged spy plot by inmates of Changi jail, and Japanese retaliations.

Segregate 50 Prisoners

The Japanese inquisition started on Oct. 10, 1943, when 57 prisoners of war were segregated. The trial ended last Aug. 30, when the Japanese knew their end was near.

The Japanese accused the prisoners of maintaining a spy organization inside the Changi walls to stir Malaya residents to sabotage and "anti-Japanese feeling." They charged the alleged spy ring had financial backing from outside and communicated by radio-telephonic instruments. The released prisoners say the charges were false, but that they actually did obtain outside funds to supplement the Japanese starvation diet with black market purchases.

Chief among the inhumane Japanese at the Sime road prison, were a civilian named Tominaga, a retired Japanese officer, and his subordinate named Kobyashi.

Beaten for 144 Hours

Screams came from the torture chambers during "interrogations" as a result of beatings with iron bars, brass rods, bamboo sticks, wet-knotted ropes, belts with buckles, and pistol butts. These were part of the ordinary punishment, as distinguished from special brutalities.

Victims sometimes were strung up or forced to kneel on sharp pieces of wood or iron. One who died had been interrogated and beaten intermittently for over 144 hours. There were water tortures and burnings with cigarets on the most sensitive parts of the body, according to documented evidence. Some Asiatics were soaked in gasoline and burned as human torches. There was also a special shock disintegration of the nerves and physique.

Call Off Executions

The Japanese used their victims for ju-jitsu practice. Some were advised to write farewell letters and all arrangements were made for their executions. Then the executions were called off and threats were made against their families. One committed suicide.

Among the 57 prisoners of war segregated for nearly two years, 12 died of sickness resulting directly from ill treatment and one was executed.

Three others died in solitary confinement without medical attention.

5,000 PRISONERS MOVED FROM 12 CAMPS AT OSAKA

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 7 (AP)—Full scale evacuation of 5,000 American and British prisoners of war began today from a dozen camps in the Kobe-Osaka-Kyoto area of Honshu.

A hundred litter cases were removed by air from the camp area of Yokohama. Hundreds of others were being started toward Yokohama by train under the supervision of Lt. Col. James French, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The prisoners moved today were from hospitals and camps in and near Osaka. For the temporary housing of these the Americans took over the eight story new Osaka hotel, the city's leading hostelry and the only one to escape destruction in incendiary raids.

Finds His Brother

A co-pilot in the air evacuation job was 1st Lt. George Brown, 22, of Chatham, N. Y., a Brooklyn Dodgers pitcher in 1942. Brown's brother, 2d Lt. Frank Brown, 27, was captured on Corregidor and was among the first to be released from the Osaka camp.

Osaka's heart has been burned out and hundreds of its modern buildings are destroyed. The Japanese say they don't know how many residents have been killed. Officials say Osaka's casualties were light compared with those of nearby Kobe and Tokyo.

One Osaka resident said two-thirds of the city was wiped out and damage from bombings of Kobe was about the same.

Private Takes a Train

He said the fire raid during the middle of March was the most terrifying and that one fire was completely out of control. Firemen concentrated on the new Osaka hotel, because it was the military headquarters, and managed to save it.

A marine private from Philadelphia who was captured at Corregidor said he walked out of the Thuruga prison camp a couple of days ago and came to Osaka by train. He said there were 95 prisoners at Thuruga and that all were Americans except 19 Japanese and one Dutchman.

"We lost a lot of men the first year when we all were still weak from the Philippines campaign," he said. "A man would be too weak to carry a bag so two Nips would pick up the bag and crash it down on the shoulder of the man, knocking him down. We listed the names of the most guilty Japanese guards and sealed them in cans and buried them. They have already been dug up and placed in the hands of American authorities."

Despite its great damage, the Americans found Osaka in better shape than Tokyo or Yokohama. Osaka's English language newspaper Mainichi is still publishing and claims a circulation of 10,000. It was delivered to the prison only when it contained news of a Japanese victory, the prisoners said.

WAKE ISLE NAVY HEAD SENTENCED TO LIFE BY JAPS

Tells of Two Escapes from Prison

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—Comdr. Winfield Scott Cunningham, commander of Wake Island when it fell to the Japanese Dec. 23, 1941, disclosed today that the Japanese sentenced him to life imprisonment because he escaped twice from a prison camp.

Comdr. Cunningham, recently liberated, said he had not seen Maj. James P. Devereaux, commander of marine forces on Wake, since March, 1942, but he believed Devereaux was being held somewhere in the Japanese home islands.

Cunningham, whose home is in Annapolis, Md., arrived in Washington this afternoon from China aboard an army transport plane.

Taken to Shanghai

After collapse of the defense of Wake, he said, he and about 1,200 other prisoners were taken to a prisoner of war camp at Woosung just outside Shanghai.

It was from that camp he made his first escape March 11, 1942, by digging under a fence. But he was captured the next day. A general court martial sentenced him to 10 years' imprisonment in the Shanghai municipal jail.

Three Manage to Escape

He remained in the Shanghai municipal jail until Oct. 6, 1944. Then he made his second break for liberty, using hacksaws smuggled in by a Dane who had previously escaped. There were eight in the party, he said, and three got away.

The other five, including Comdr. Cunningham, were picked up by puppet Chinese troops about a mile from the jail and turned over to the Japanese.

He was again tried by court martial and sentenced to life imprisonment.

He was confined in the bridgehouse military prison in Shanghai, where he was kept until Jan. 19, 1945, when he was transferred to a military prison in Nanking. On Aug. 1 he was transferred from Nanking to Peking, where he was released.

PLANES RETURN 64 YANKS FREED FROM JAP HANDS

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 7 [Special]—Navy air transport planes today brought home 64 weary but happy sailors and marines who were freed from Japanese prison camps a little more than a week ago.

H. A. Breckenfeld

First to leave the planes was Clayton O. Decker, 26, Greeley, Colo., whose wife, Lucille, fainted as he related some of the tortures to which prisoners at the Ofuna camp near Tokyo had been subjected. She collapsed on the runway and had to be revived by nurses.

Decker, machinist's mate 2d class, is one of nine survivors of the submarine Tang, sunk by one of its own torpedoes Oct. 25, 1944.

He said the men were picked up by a Japanese destroyer, stripped, and forced to lie on a steel deck in the baking sun for five days.

Decker said that at the Ofuna camp the Jap guards stuffed live cigaret butts into the nostrils and ears of the Americans.

He said he was stationed for a time at the same camp with Maj. Gregory Boyington, marine corps ace. Maj. Boyington, recently released from a Jap prison camp, was removed from a San Francisco bound plane at Hickman field, Hawaii, last night because of illness.

Oak Park Pilot's Story

Also aboard was Ensign John M. Petersen, 24, of 629 N. Harvey av., Oak Park, Ill., the last navy pilot to be shot down over Japan. After he crash landed his plane 300 miles north of Tokyo, he was attacked by a civilian with a sickle. Petersen garroted him with a wire from his radio antenna, but other civilians captured him, stripped him, and tied him to a stake.

Japanese soldiers rescued him as the civilians started to light a fire. He was beaten and paraded nude thru the town before being taken to a prison camp.

Other Mid-Westerners

Other returning prisoners were Herbert A. Breckenfeld, fireman 1st class, Winthrop Harbor, Ill.; J. F. Lack, boatswain mate 2d class, South Bend, Ind.; Norman A. Albertson, fireman 1st class, Muskegon, Mich., and Pvt. 1st Class Lloyd Paris, Lansing, Mich.

The C-54 transports that brought the liberated prisoners had picked them up at Guam after other planes had carried them there from Tokyo.

Other transport planes are speeding from Japan loaded with more liberated men, including Gen. Wainwright, who is at Honolulu and is scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning. He will be greeted with a victory parade.

NANKING SURRENDER TO BE CHINA'S SHOW, SAYS U. S. GENERAL

NANKING, China, Sept. 7 (AP)—The formal surrender scheduled here Sunday of perhaps one million Japanese troops will be a "100 per cent Chinese show" with Americans remaining in the background, Brig. Gen. H. L. Boatner said today.

American transport planes still were winging in with troops of China's 6th army, and it was this problem of rushing in soldiers to take over the flag-bedecked pre-war capital that has delayed the surrender ceremonies, it was explained.

Gen. Ho Ying-chin, Chinese field forces commander, was expected to fly to Nanking tomorrow to head the ceremonies.

Boatner said that "never in the history of the world" has there been a military situation such as exists in China now regarding the surrender. The Japanese collapse found no Chinese troops near at hand to take over, he explained.

The surrender here, Boatner said, will be followed by surrender of other Japanese forces in cities such as Canton, Peiping, and Shanghai.

Estimate 32 Million Dope Addicts in Jap Held China

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 7 (AP)—The opium suppression committee of the ministry of interior estimated today there are at least 32 million narcotic addicts in the areas freed or about to be freed from Japanese control. All opium fields were ordered stamped out immediately and all addicts were told to give up the habit within eight months or face severe punishment.

TELL HOW JAPS LOCKED BRITISH IN SINKING SHIP

Survivors of Hong Kong Garrison Bare Horrors

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 7 (AP)—The most harrowing memory of 371 British soldiers—survivors of the Hong Kong garrison who were liberated here today—is the sinking of the Lisbon Maru.

They were among 1,800 British troops, taken at Hong Kong, who were aboard the 7,000 ton armed Japanese merchant ship when it was torpedoed 70 miles south of Shanghai at 8 a. m. Oct. 1, 1942.

The Japanese locked the British in holds and went about rescuing 2,000 of their own soldiers aboard.

Not a single Japanese was lost but 870 of the British were drowned.

Survivors here said "The Japs wouldn't let us out of the holds. We lay in them all that day, after the torpedoing.

Pump All Night

"The Japs battered down the hatches and pulled tarpaulin over them. The water started seeping in. We pumped from 7 that night until 9 the next morning.

"The only water we had to drink was moisture that condensed on the bulkheads. When we pleaded for water, the Japs sent down a bucket of urine.

"A number of the men fainted in the darkness and drowned in the holds.

"At 9 o'clock the second night, there was a sudden lurch. We broke the hatches open. Only the after part of the ship was afloat.

"We jumped overboard but weren't picked up by the Japs until the next afternoon."

Starved in Prison

The survivors were locked in a leaky, vermin ridden prison under a stadium in Osaka. Some starved. One weighed only 47 pounds when he died.

The British said that the Japanese civilians treated them well, "especially the women and kids."

They dreaded Japanese medical treatments and one declared that "to get on a Japanese operating table was like signing a death warrant." He added:

"Every prisoner was panic stricken if he had to go to a Jap hospital. A patient would be taken to the hospital in an open lorry and brought back, after a major operation, the same day.

Butchery by Doctors

"One of our common complaints was 'electric feet'—where the feet tingle so badly with disease we couldn't sleep or hardly walk.

"The Japs used to amputate.

"They got one lad from Houston, Tex., and decided his tingling feet was trouble connected with his stomach. They made a 10 inch incision straight down his stomach, cutting away the muscles.

"An English doctor took charge of this fellow after they were thru with him and actually sewed a button on his stomach so he could fasten the skin over the incision but unbutton it to drain."

PORTIA MILLER, ON DUTY ABROAD, DIES IN CRASH

Miss Portia Appleton Miller, 24, a captain in the American Red Cross foreign service, was killed in an automobile accident near Chiemsee, Germany, Aug. 26, her father, John S. Miller, 1210 Astor st., president of the Industrial National bank, has been notified.

Miss Portia Miller

A graduate of Bryn Mawr college, Miss Miller had served with the Red Cross in England, France, and Germany since August, 1944, after a three month training period with clubmobile units in Washington. She also had studied in Switzerland when a high school student.

Surviving are her father; her mother, Mrs. Stephen B. Ames, Milton, Mass., and a sister, Mrs. Arthur Willis Jr., of Milton.

The new year celebration found thousands on pilgrimages to the Holy City for synagog services, and to the ancient Wailing Wall to pray for Jews killed during the war in Europe.

FUJIYAMA NATIONAL PARK, Japan, Sept. 6 [Delayed]—The GIs who found the glamor of the South Sea Islands a fake in war time will find Japan's mountains real. This mountain park, 20 miles wide and 40 miles long, and located in snow covered, 12,000 foot Mount Fuji is the main Nippon vacation land.

Four hotels, two golf courses, six lakes, and miles of tumbling streams are some of the park's assets. On the southern edge is Segami bay, where stretches of fine black sand alternate with surf beaten cliffs.

Then, too, the park has wonderful scenery. Tall pines, sycamore, beech, and fir trees stand as thick as the fibers in a doorstep mat.

Best Road in Japan

The main road is paved, an engineering marvel—undoubtedly the best in Japan. In one place it is blasted into a cliff. The other roads are narrow and graveled.

In summer the lakes offer fishing for black bass, sailing and swimming. On Lakes Hakone and Kawaguit there are steamboat cruises altho the boats can go from one end of the lake to the other in an hour.

The best hotel is the Fujiya. It is two hours' drive from Yokohama and is at the entrance to the park. It is luxurious. Most of its 170 rooms have been occupied by Germans, Italians, Thailanders, and other axis citizens who have found it a lovely place to sweat out a war.

"But the food of late has been terrible," complained a couple of Germans. The hotel residents are aloof and appear to be a little frightened of the Americans.

Bar Full of Beer

Besides good beds and deep lounges, the hotel has a swimming pool, tennis court, large dance hall, and elaborate hot spring baths where the water runs down a rocky wall into tiled, steaming pools. The bar is full of beer and the gift shop is getting out its lovely porcelains, china, and prints. It expects a resumption of American tourist trade.

The second largest hotel is on Lake Hakone. It also was a haven for axis citizens who chose not to fight. Russian civilians also lived on Lake Hakone. They were advised by the Japs to go to northern Japan but the hotels there were so bad they came here.

In winter there are ice skating and skiing.

For those who like to climb, prewar guides probably will be available to show them to the top of Fuji, a good two day hike for the round trip.

Hunts Recreation Areas

Gen. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th army, toured the park yesterday hunting for recreation areas for some of the 200,000 troops who will garrison northern Japan.

"Of course Japan doesn't have anything like the French Riviera but we will find something for the men," he said.

WACs and nurses will be included in the occupation forces "out of all proportion" to the numbers assigned to Pacific areas heretofore.

That comes straight from the general, so maybe the occupation won't be too bad, after all.

HANNEGAN SEEKS AIR MAIL RATE CUT TO 5 CENTS

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—Postmaster General Hannegan said today he would ask congress to reduce the domestic air mail rate to five cents an ounce.

"At present the rate on domestic air mail is eight cents an ounce," Hannegan said at a luncheon commemorating the 25th anniversary of the first trans-continental air mail trip. "This is a war time rate, which automatically drops back to the peace time rate of six cents an ounce six months after the official termination of the war."

Hannegan said he believed a further reduced rate of five cents would decrease the unit cost and prove "a sound principle of American business."

FIND KAMIKAZE WORKSHOPS IN ATSUGI TUNNELS

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ATSUGI AIR FIELD, Japan, Sept. 7—The kamikazes [suicide flyers] had gone underground here. Machine shops, barracks for more than 1,000 men, arsenals, and even printing presses on which to print manuals on how to die were built into the honeycomb of tunnels.

GIs still exploring the musty labyrinth say the Japs tell them that this installation is minor compared with some. The Japs tell them there is a complete airplane plant underground in the hills between here and the Yokosuka naval base below Yokohama.

You can spend hours wandering under Atsugi. All the tunnels explored so far have lighting systems, but only about half the lights still work. Nobody has bothered to turn them off and they burn night and day.

Tunnels 50 Feet Down

Most of the tunnels are about 50 feet underground. One entrance has 70 steps. Others are reached by inclines. Along one tunnel are little rooms with lathes. The ceilings here are low—less than five feet, and even the small Japs must have bent gnomelike over their work.

Narrow, wooden shelves along both sides of tunnel after tunnel served as beds. The only ventilation is thru air shafts. In the back of one tunnel is a kitchen with stores of rice, salmon, and many canned delicacies unavailable to all except Japan's do or die kamikazes.

In arsenals, already rusting and moldering, are aircraft engines, rifles, anti-aircraft guns, bales of military clothing, technical books, ammunition, and spare parts. These storages are reached by an incline big enough for an automobile. Some of these areas are as much as 200 feet below the surface.

Entrances Covered with Grass

The tunnels are reached thru scores of entrances, all grass covered. Dug thru the hard clay the tunnels are unlined and not floored. Water drips from the ceilings.

To the GI's who have had to rout the Japs from holes all the way from Guadalcanal and Tarawa, the kamikazes' catacombs of Atsugi are clinching the argument that as fighters the Japs are expert diggers.

MARINES THRILL 50,000 IN TAKING CHICAGO BEACH

Fifty thousand spectators watched the marines capture the beach at Foster av. last night in the second demonstration of a series conducted by personnel of the LST 512. The land ship, tank is anchored in the Chicago river, west of Michigan av., for public inspection.

In the simulated beach assault the marines set off 600 pounds of TNT and fired 4,000 rounds of ammunition as 22 navy fighter and bomber planes roared overhead. Capt. David Zeitlin, in command of 75 marines, six coast guards, and two medical corps men, came ashore in four waves of amphibious tractors, cargo carriers, and supply ships.

"It was the best show we've put on to date," Capt. Zeitlin said. Another performance will be given at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

JAPANESE PICK UP ENGLISH WITH STARTLING EASE

Signs Are Put Out by Merchants

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Sept. 7—Japanese merchants manage to hurdle language difficulties with surprising ease and equally surprising results.

On the counter of a tiny jewelry shop in a small town near Yokohama is a hand printed sign reading: "Articll out of stock—not to exist the repair watch." And on another shop window is the sign: "Be Closed." The citizenry also contrive simple conversation with the assistance of a few words of English.

Get a "Thank You"

Yesterday, while watching several hundred men, women, and children digging for clams in the sea, after paying one yen [6 cents at the current rate of exchange] for the privilege, a Japanese approached the onlooking correspondents, began fumbling for words, and finally said: "B-29s very victorious."

One newsman said: "The war's over. No more bombs," and got the heartfelt answer, "thank you" accompanied by a low bow.

Sign Lettered on Wood

Inside the Daibutsu, or huge statue of Budda at Kamakura—familiar, thru pictures, to every American school child—there is another sign neatly lettered on wood which says: "Notice—Stranger, whoever thou art and whatsoever be thy creed, when thou enterest this sacred statue remember that this is a nathagata garba [the womb of the cosmical body] and should therefore be entered with reverence, not contamination. By order of the prior."

A ticket to enter the statue costs five sen [about a half cent].

Secretly Trained Nisei to Join MacArthur Staff

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 7 (AP)—The war relocation authority announced today that United States-born Japanese-Americans trained in a secret army school at Fort Snelling, Minn., are being sent to Gen. MacArthur's command as intelligence workers and interpreters in Japan. The announcement said the special group of such Nisei soldiers "has been one of the army's top secrets."

BODIES OF 22 RECOVERED IN AIR LINER CRASH

Florence, S. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—An Eastern Air Lines transport crashed into a swamp near here early today killing all of its 22 occupants.

The air line said the occupants included 10 civilians, nine soldiers, and three crewmen.

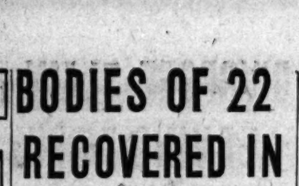
All of the bodies were burned badly except one—that of a man who was thrown clear of the wreckage and killed by a blow on the head.

The bodies were brought out of the swamp late today in a tractor pulled wagon to army and civilian ambulances. Rescuers had to cut a road three-fourths of a mile thru thick vegetation to get the ambulances as near the scene as possible.

Thunderous Explosion

The plane, a Miami, Fla., to New York air liner, tore a 50 foot wide, 200 foot long path thru the swamp before coming to a stop and burning.

Mrs. W. L. Rankin who lives on a plantation about two miles from the scene of the crash, said she was awakened about 2 a. m. by a thunderous explosion, then heard several other loud blasts.



R. A. Kelley [left], Gertrude Graham [center], and J. Olin King, crew of air liner.

"Having Trouble"

Shortly before 2 a. m. the plane's commander radioed the Florence army air base that he was having trouble and would attempt to land at the base.

The plane fell in Pee Dee river swamp near Mars Bluff, about 12 miles northeast of Florence.

Air line officials said they were at a loss to explain the crash. The country is level. There was a ceiling of more than 6,000 feet at the time.

The plane left Miami at 9 p. m. yesterday.

Pilot of the plane was Capt. J. Olin King, about 45, of Miami. He was a native of West Frankfort, Ill. His widow, the former Lillian Duncan, is a native of Carbondale, Ill.

List of Civilians Aboard

Other crew members were R. A. Kelley, co-pilot, and Gertrude Graham, flight attendant. Both were based at Miami.

The company announced the following civilian passengers were aboard:

Michael Shinefield, bar manager of the Blackstone hotel, Miami Beach, Fla.; Mrs. G. G. R. Sharp and son, R. Stevenson of Kingston, Jamaica; Mr. and Mrs. Andres Gerard, French citizens; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Figueredo of La Guaira, Caracas, Venezuela; L. F. Cockburn, Miami, and W. E. Gray and W. E. Pierce, for whom no addresses were given.

Names of the military passengers were withheld.

$100,443 GIVEN GI WHO LOST ARMS AND LEGS

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 7 (AP)—Financial worries dispelled by a kind hearted America, limbless Jimmy Wilson looked ahead today to a college education and a business of his own.

Admirers have contributed $100,433 to guarantee the future of the young GI who lost both arms and both legs in a plane crash. He sat dazed in a wheel chair upon learning the good news.

"I still can't believe it," said Jimmy. "I reckon a fellow never finds out how wonderful people are until something like this happens."

Voluntary contributions from coast to coast built up the fund under newspaper solicitation. It will be placed in government securities until a suitable trust can be arranged.

As soon as Jimmy gets out of the hospital with his artificial limbs in December, he plans a trip home to Starke, Fla. Then he's going to take up engineering at Macalester college near St. Paul, Minn. He has his mind set on a marine electrical installation business with his brother Roy, who still is in the army.

HAILS CHINESE TOIL THAT SAVED LIVES OF FLYERS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 [Special]—The loyalty of hundreds of Chinese peasants who toiled night and day to construct in a week a 3,000 foot runway to aid the escape of five American airmen shot down in a B-29 raid over China was told today by Capt. Casimir F. Stelmach, 4320 W. Haddon av., Chicago, one of the five who were saved.

The flyers parachuted down within a half mile radius of each other and rejoined within a week. Aided by Chinese guerrillas, Communists, and government troops, the airmen crossed about 800 miles of Chinese territory to the headquarters of a Gen. Wong to await a plane.

When the sod strip had been completed by the Chinese, the plane arrived and took the Americans away. Capt. Stelmach, now director of flight engineer training at headquarters of the continental air forces, Bolling Field, D. C., was awarded the air medal for his part in the adventure.

ARMY SERGEANT HELD ON CHARGE OF RAPING MUTE

He Is Ex-Football Player; Friend Also Accused

Army Sgt. John Andretich, 24, of 9228 Baltimore av., former football player at Mount Carmel High school and Purdue university, was arrested yesterday for the alleged rape of a 25 year old deaf mute. Andretich is home on furlough from Foster General hospital, Jackson, Miss., where he is a physical education instructor.

Seized with him at 94th st. and Phillips av., near a car in which the alleged attack occurred, was Emil Wagner, 34, of 9037 Exchange av. Assistant State's Atty. Samuel Papanek said the woman charged that Andretich had raped her and Wagner was about to do so when a police car drew up.

Meet Her in Tavern

The men said they met her in a tavern, drank and danced with her, and were taking her home when arrested. They asserted she had removed part of her clothing, but denied they had attempted any intimacy with her.

Papanek ordered Andretich charged with rape and Wagner with attempted rape for arraignment Monday in Felony court. Andretich, who is divorced, said he is considering an offer to play professional football with the Chicago Bears.

Police were seeking two Negroes who early yesterday raped a 31 year old white woman in an alley near 46th st. and St. Lawrence av., after they threatened her with a gun at 47th st. and Drexel blvd. They also took her rings, valued at $500, and $50 from her purse. The woman, a divorcee, was on her way home from work as a waitress.

Named in 30 Complaints

Paul Martin, 25, of 1725 Wilson av., who was arrested several days ago by N. Damen av. police, has been named in 30 sex offense complaints including charges of rape and contributing to the delinquency of minors, Prosecutor Papanek said. Most of his victims were girls. Martin is separated from his wife, with whom his 5 year old son lives. In May, 1943, Martin was sentenced to three months in the Bridewell and fined $100 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

An Evanston school teacher and a Rogers Park woman who were attacked viewed Thomas Wood, 31, Negro, of 324 E. 56th st., but did not identify him. He is in custody on a warrant charging that he raped a Negro woman in Skokie three weeks ago.

The north side victims also failed to identify Pevie Bull, 31, Negro, of 5314 South Park way, who was seized Thursday for an alleged attack on a south side Negro woman.

To facilitate the drive against rapists, Mayor S. G. Ingraham of Evanston and Mayor Kelly yesterday adopted a reciprocal plan whereby policemen of the two cities may cross Howard st., the dividing line, to pursue offenders.

BALLOONS FREED FOR RAY STUDY HUNTED IN LAKE

Coast guardsmen yesterday joined with Michigan and Wisconsin police in a search for 67 balloons released Thursday by University of Chicago physicists to study cosmic rays in the stratosphere.

A spokesman for the university said that watch by radar indicated the balloons, carrying delicate instruments, are believed to have dropped into Lake Michigan after ascending to 18,000 feet shortly after they were sent aloft from Stagg field.

The spokesman added that even tho the balloons are lost some good was accomplished by their flight thru radio contact which followed them and secured useful data.

DIVORCEE SLAIN LEAVING WORK; SUITOR SOUGHT

Norman Coppage

Miss Erma Leach, 21, of 4203 Homerlee av., East Chicago, a divorcee, was shot three times and killed instantly late yesterday by a gunman identified by witnesses as Norman Glen Coppage, 23, formerly of the Palace hotel, East Chicago, an ex-convict and a rejected suitor.

The slaying occurred outside the office of the American Steel Foundry company's cast armor plant, Dickey rd. and Canal st., East Chicago, where Miss Leach was a secretary.

Miss Leach emerged from the office with Mrs. Myrtle Myers of 830 Wilcox av., Hammond, and went to the automobile of a fellow employe, Charles Bonner, 788 Indiana av., Hammond, who customarily drove them to and from work, and who still was in the plant.

Slayer Flees Amid Screams

Miss Leach seated herself in the car and Mrs. Myers started to get in. Suddenly Coppage appeared, pushed Mrs. Myers aside, pointed a revolver at Miss Leach, and fired five times. She was wounded in the left chest, right ear, and the right side of her neck.

The slaying was witnessed by more than a score of persons, most of them girl employes. One was Miss Dubczak, daughter of Mike Dubczak, East Chicago postmaster.

Miss Dubczak and several other girls screamed. Coppage ran down Dickey rd., ducked into an alley, and escaped.

Telephoned Death Threat Told

Capt. Martin Zarkovich organized East Chicago police in a search for Coppage and notified police of neighboring cities and Indiana state police.

A score of policemen were assigned to search thru the brush in the nearby slag dumping ground of the Inland Steel company where Coppage was last seen.

Zarkovich revealed that Coppage last May telephoned Miss Leach's mother, with whom she resided, and warned her that "unless your daughter marries me I'll kill her."

Zarkovich said that Coppage served four months of a six month sentence to the Indiana state penal farm at Pendleton for a burglary.

PACKERS' GUARD SEEKS $33,830 FOR OVERTIME

David Flyn, 315 W. 60th st., a fire guard for Wilson & Co., meat packers, filed suit against the company yesterday in federal District court seeking $33,830.22 for alleged overtime pay and liquidated damages. The suit also asked $7,500 fees for his attorney, Ben Meyers.

Flynn charged that he has been receiving a weekly wage of $34.50, altho he worked alternate weeks of 104½ and 80½ hours, sleeping and eating on the company's premises while subject to call in case of fire.

His attorney brought the suit under the fair labor standards act and charged the company owed Flynn $16,915.11 for time and a half over 40 hours since 1938, plus an equal amount for damages.

ARREST VETERAN IN SLAYING OF TWO DETECTIVES

Frank Leonard Hogan 39, a cook 3d class at Great Lakes Naval Training center and a Pacific veteran, was taken into technical custody by Rogers Park police last night in connection with the murder of Detectives Charles A. Brady and George H. Hellstern at Clark st. and Lunt av. Sunday night.

In Hogan's nine room home at 6740 N. Damen av., where he lives, when off duty, with his wife, two sons, and two daughters, Detectives George Wandland and Michael Kelly found two empty, rusty guns, a .32 caliber pistol, a .32 caliber revolver, and two .22 caliber rifles with three boxes of rifle ammunition. Brady and Hellstern were killed with .38 caliber bullets. Several navy uniforms also were found in the house, and Capt. Ahern said their buttons will be compared with two found at the murder scene.

Wife Offers Alibi

Hogan's wife, Ethel, said her husband was asleep at home when she went to a theater Sunday night. When she returned at 11:45 p. m., she said he still was asleep.

The sailor was picked up on information supplied by a bar maid near the corner where the detectives were killed. She told police she had noticed him loitering recently. Capt. Ahern said that Hogan talked freely, except as to his actions the day of the shooting. He denied knowledge of the crime. Police say he has no criminal record.

Witnesses to View Robber

A police squad early today captured Fred Evans, 35, of 2961 Warren blvd., an ex-convict, after he robbed Charles Cilfone, 25, of 931 S. Marshfield av., of $10, his watch, and his automobile at Madison st. and Ashland av. Evans will be shown to witnesses of the police slaying.

Cilfone, an ex-bombardier, told police Evans jumped into his car when he stopped for a traffic light, thrust a pistol under his nose, robbed him, and pushed him out.

Policemen John McDonough, Earl Macey, and John Keyes, cruising in a squad car, pursued Evans, whom Cilfone pointed out, and overtook him when he turned into an alley near Paulina and Hubbard sts.

Evans leaped out of the car and ran, but surrendered when the policemen fired several warning shots. McDonough said Evans had a dirty face and in general answered descriptions of the police slayer.

"Grandpa isn't eccentric at all. He's just practicing the piccolo."

CONVICTS BREAK 2,000 WINDOWS AT MICHIGAN PRISON

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 7 [Special]—Jackson prison convicts damaged 50 cell blocks and broke more than 2,000 windows yesterday while a search was being made for contraband, Acting Warden Ralph Benson disclosed today. Home made knives and hacksaw blades were hurled thru the windows to the yard outside the cells.

Convicts brought in for questioning said they had been expecting the search and had agreed to make a "holiday" of it. Besides the weapons, other articles recovered included silverware, cups, and dishes.

The search was precipitated by the escape Aug. 30 of James C. Roberts and Claude F. Bolen, who used saws, a pipe ladder, and other tools to get out of their cell block. Bolen was injured and captured when he fell from the cell block roof, and Roberts was caught the next day in Hastings, Mich.

To women who see spots before their eyes —

MANY'S THE upholstered chair that's war-weary today.

You could put up with a little middle-aged sag in the springs, if only those dog-gone spots wouldn't stare you in the face!

Ugly spots, that show where heads have rested, where hands have left their imprint! They're a constant eyesore.

O golly, what wouldn't you give for a new upholstery job! But that'll have to wait—and you know it.

We know it, too—here, at Good Housekeeping.

So, to help you out, we've put all our ingenuity and energy into studying the best methods for brightening up grease-stained furniture.

To cheer up your chairs

First, we cleaned our own furniture. But it wasn't badly soiled. So we got some that was. We had chairs sent in to Good Housekeeping. Badly stained chairs that had seen yeoman service.

One was the Mister's favorite chair, in the household from which it came.

The Mister used hair ointment. The chair showed it.

Here was no ordinary problem of removing surface dirt. This called for a consultation.

You see, when our household experts tackle a problem like this they don't have to solve it singlehanded. They have the benefit-of-advice-from-our-many-textile and laboratory people—people with wide experience in comparable fields.

That's how it was with the problem of the soiled chairs. Up to our elbows in cleansers—surrounded by textiles and rugs and furniture—we pooled our knowledge and skills.

Shine 'em up? We try dozens of products, wet cloths and dry, circular movements, and back-and-forth techniques—before we tell you which method we find best for polishing wooden furniture.

We experimented with all sorts of solvents. With liquid shampoos. With dozens of new products that came into our laboratories.

We tried different cleaning techniques—and noted the results.

And—eventually—we hit on a combination method that licked the spots. Then we reported to you in the pages of Good Housekeeping.

We gang up for your sake

When you read household cleaning advice—or any other advice—in Good Housekeeping, it has usually been preceded by just such a joint effort on our part.

For we bring all our experience to bear on each of your daily household problems.

When we tell you how to apply wax and polish to wooden furniture, it's only after our chemists—as well as our home economists—have had their say: only after we've done the job, ourselves. Done it again and again and again—to find a way we consider best.

When Good Housekeeping prints advertisements for cleansers or polish or anything else, it's only after we've demonstrated—by study, analysis, and practical use-tests—that these products will give you good service, that the directions are clear and easy to follow.

In the days of anti-macassars, women didn't have to cope with grease stains on chair backs—they kept 'em off with easy-to-wash doilies. But in those days women didn't have the help they get today in solving every kind of household problem.

That's why you've learned to have faith in us. And we consider our years and money and effort well spent to earn such faith.

Because we want to hold that faith, we make you a pledge—and it is this:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

QUISLING ENDS PLEA FOR LIFE; JURY GETS CASE

Expect 7 Judges to Give Verdict Next Week

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 7—Vidkun Quisling rested his case this afternoon.

To history he left the question of whether he was right in what he said he did to try to save his country from the pressure of communism on the one side and diplomatic intrigue among the capitalist nations on the other.

To a jury of seven judges he left the question of whether he will be shot as a traitor.

The only previous treason case in Norway since V-E day resulted in an execution three weeks after the court verdict.

Ending his six hour address during the final two days of the three weeks' trial, the former puppet premier under the Germans, said he was confident of acquittal in history. He expressed no such confidence in the decision by men in this era when, he said, "it is considered a crime to have lost a war."

Five Must Agree on Verdict

The verdict of the court accompanied by a written opinion is expected early next week. Agreement by five of the seven comprising the court constitutes the decision.

The nine judges who heard the case cast lots to see which seven of their number would decide the verdict. One lay judge and one lawyer judge fell out and the others retired for their first meeting.

Quisling opened his final plea by comparing himself to St. Paul. Apropos of his own examination by alienists during the trial, Quisling referred to a biblical incident in which a Roman governor arraigned the apostle Paul and said, "Your great wisdom will drive you to insanity, Paul," and then Paul replied, Quisling said: "It is not insanity, honorable governor, I speak true and sane words."

"I, too," said Quisling, "speak true and sane words."

Summary of Defense

He cited what he described as the machinations of the Bolsheviks for world conquest and plans of the British for a Norwegian invasion as justification for his relations with the Germans.

The defense contentions might be summarized as follows:

Quisling guessed wrong on the outcome of the war. With an axis victory Norway's position would have been second to none in the European federation against the Comintern. Even with allied victory the country is better off than it would have been without his efforts. He should not be shot solely because the allies won.

Reads from Document

Quisling's peroration was read from a 21,000 word document he wrote while in jail.

"Norway," he read, "had the possibility of becoming a pattern state in the new world arrangement which is forcing itself thru everywhere with the irresistible force of evolution.

"I struggled to shape the foundation of the future, to secure Norway's freedom and peace in a new Europe.

"If my activity has been treason then I hope for Norway's sake more of her sons will become the same kind of traitor."

With this the defendant sat down. Presiding Judge Erik Solem announced, "The case has now gone to the jury."

NAZI ATTACKS GUARD IN CELL AT NUERNBERG

NUERNBERG, Sept. 7 (AP)—One of the principal nazi war criminal defendants being held for trial here attacked his guard in a city jail cell, and a psychiatrist was called from Paris to examine the Nazi, who was not identified, a security officer reported tonight.

The officer said the guard was not injured, and identified the prisoner only as:

"That so-and-so who's crazy or pretending to be crazy."

He said the attack occurred when the prisoner refused to obey an order from the guard, who moved toward the Nazi demanding obedience. Then, the officer related, the prisoner attacked the guard, starting a scuffle and attempting to pin him against the wall.

"It was strictly a one-punch fight, tho, because the guard took good care of himself," the officer said.

It was not disclosed what rule the prisoner refused to obey.

THE QUESTION

What suggestions would you like to make to architects for the home of the future?

WHERE ASKED

Wrigley building lobby.

THE ANSWERS

Urban Johnson, radio sound technician, 510 Oakdale av.—I would suggest a soundproof radio room, where I could keep my ham transmitter and recording equipment, and a dark room for photography. My wife is a school cook, so the kitchen would have to be of stainless steel and have the latest electrical equipment.

Stanley Gordon, radio actor, 629 Addison st.—The basement would be the feature in my post-war home. I would want a tool shop, and a completely equipped recreation room with a bar. Of course, the room that can stand the most modernizing is the kitchen. Our streamlined kitchen would have all the modern labor-saving devices.

Mary Rose Noel, public information representative, American Airlines, 4837 N. Christiana av. — Post-war homes should stress functionalism rather than decoration. I would suggest that dining rooms be done away with and that all rooms be large. The windows would have to be high and wide with much glass space.

Holland Houfburg, radio sound technician, 1448 Argyle st.—I would suggest that the kitchen be placed in the front of the house and the living room in the back. The woman of house, who spends most of her time in the kitchen, would not have so far to travel to the front door, and guests would see a garden, not the street.

Hugh Boylan, cargo traffic supervisor, American Airlines, 10923 Artesian av.—My ideal home would have everything on one floor, even the heating units. My house would not have a basement. Maybe I'm lazy, but I believe that running up and down stairs, frequently carrying heavy things, is not good for one's health.

Jack Snyder, traffic representative, American Airlines, 2209 Forest View rd., Evanston—I would suggest lots of gadgets, such as kitchen tables that would pull out from the wall, garbage disposal units, lights in the ceilings, and ultra-violet ray in the bathroom. There would be a game room with a built-in, combination card table.

REVEALS 5,000 AT U. C. ESCAPED A-BOMB PERILS

No ill effects have been discovered in any of the 5,000 physicists and laboratory worker who participated in the secret development of the atomic bomb at the University of Chicago, despite constant exposure to highly poisonous radio-active substances. This was disclosed yesterday by Dr. Reuben G. Gustavson, vice president and dean of faculties, in addressing a luncheon meeting of the Executives' Club of Chicago in Hotel Sherman.

Dr. R. G. Gustavson

Dr. Gustavson also revealed that a pilot plant for the production of atomic explosives was moved from the university to a 1,000 acre tract in a Cook county forest preserve, where the plant still is operating. Location of the guarded atomic factory cannot be disclosed for security reasons, he said.

Dr. Gustavson, who spoke on "The Story Behind the Atomic Bomb," said that with a grant of 50 to 100 thousand dollars the university could have an experimental atomic plant operating by next April. The plant, he said, could deliver energy 400 million times more powerful than steam, but would require five to 10 years to make the production economical.

REPORT FRANCE, ITALY ARRIVE AT UNDERSTANDING

BY P. E. BRIQUET
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Sept. 7—A French-Italian rapprochement is well under way which will materially help the international situation in the peninsula, the north Italian press said today. Negotiations carried on by Italian Ambassador Giuseppe Saragat in Paris are nearly completed, it was reported.

Paris news in the Italian press stressed that France is supporting the return of Tripolitania to Italy. Also, France has started repatriating Italian prisoners by ship from Marseilles, several hundred of whom have reached each of Naples, Leghorn, and Palermo, while 850 have left Morocco for Naples. There remain 45,000 Italian prisoners in France, now in process of repatriation. Italian prisoners and deportees from Germany are expected to be returned by way of France.

The last French forces left Italy when their military mission at Aosta unexpectedly hauled down its flag at government house and departed for France.

WON'T STRIP ITALY

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Sept. 7—France will oppose any effort that may be made during the forthcoming London conference of the Big Five foreign ministers to strip Italy of its African colonies, it was learned in Paris today.

Can "Start Over"

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault who will leave tomorrow night for London, emphasized to the council of ministers today the necessity of liquidating all issues between France and Italy so that the two countries may start over again on a new basis.

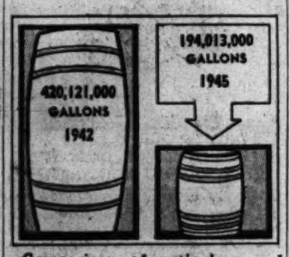
It was understood that the French delegation will press for a "slight rectification" of France's Alpine frontiers so that the Tende and Brigue regions, which are on the French side of the Alps and which voted in favor of inclusion within French borders in 1861, may be returned to France.

No Longer a Threat

On the other hand, the French attitude on Tripolitania and Cirenaica is that since a democratic regime has replaced fascism, Italy is no longer a potential threat in North Africa and that its record for colonization is proof that it merits the right to retain its North African possessions. It was stressed that the French thesis only applies to colonial possessions belonging to Italy before the advent of fascism and does not include Ethiopia.

Altho Mussolini's 1940 stab in the back still rankles with the French, the government is now willing to let bygones be bygones and is eager to reach an early settlement on all problems. It is realized, however, that the De Gaulle government's conciliatory attitude on the colonial problem may meet opposition from the British, whose policy, as stated by former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, is to prevent Italy from ever regaining its lost colonies.

The Last Drops



Comparison of nation's aged whisky stock in 1942 with present supply.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—The measure of the nation's thirst and of the whisky on hand to meet it was computed today by the Allied Liquor Industries and the conclusion was that V-J day came none too soon for the consumer of aged liquor.

The trade organization reported that 54 per cent of the industry's supply of whisky on hand in September, 1942, when it was converted to fulltime war alcohol production, had disappeared by June 30, 1945.

The 194,013,000 gallons of aged liquor remaining on hand would last little more than two years if released at the 1942 peak consumption rate. In September, 1942, there were 420,121,000 gallons of whisky in storage. In August, 1944, and January, 1945, the distillers were given enough grain to produce 41,562,303 gallons more, but this will not be properly aged until 1948.

U. S. FILES REPLY TO EX-N. U. AID ON CITIZENSHIP LOSS

Assistant United States Atty. John P. Lulinski yesterday filed in federal District court a motion to dismiss the petition of Albert W. Krause, former Northwestern university employe, now interned as an enemy alien at Crystal City, Tex., who seeks to vacate a decree of denaturalization. Krause's action contended his former attorney failed to produce important witnesses at the original hearing on his loyalty to America. The government's motion asserted that the time for filing such a petition has expired and also that the Circuit Court of Appeals has upheld a District court refusal to release Krause from the internment camp. Hearing on the petition is set before Judge Philip L. Sullivan next Tuesday.

A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest held yesterday at 35 E. Erie st., into the death of Paul Lehman, 57, a sculptor and painter, who fell to his death from the roof adjoining his studio penthouse at 43 E. Ohio st., to an alley. His wife, Mahrea, said he had taken 10 pills for the relief of his hay fever and had gone to bed on the roof when she fell asleep.

SPEED UP WORK, STETTINIUS ASKS LEAGUE FRAMERS

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Sept. 7—Already bogged down with the problem of trying to make 50 different countries live happily under one roof, members of the executive committee preparing the plan for the first meeting of the united nations organization, received a bit of a jolt today when Edward R. Stettinius, United States representative, told them to hurry or the new world order would miss the boat.

"Otherwise," he warned, "I feel that there might be attempts to deal with the problems of post-war economic and security affairs in other ways, perhaps on a regional basis rather than a world basis."

Urges November Meeting

Declaring he was making the recommendation "in the name of the United States of America," Stettinius, former American secretary of state, suggested that the first general assembly should convene around the middle of November for a business session, to take the necessary steps to put the organization actually into operation. This would be followed by the first regular annual meeting of the assembly next spring, possibly April 25, anniversary of the opening of the San Francisco conference.

He said that 18 countries already have ratified the united nations charter and that early in October there would be approximately 30 on the list, one over the number needed for the charter to come into force.

At present 14 members of the executive committee of the preparatory commission responsible for paving the way for the establishment of the new super-government are meeting in London.

No Concrete Results

This committee is split up into 10 subcommittees, ostensibly to speed up the work, but now after three weeks of labor nothing has been brought to light that shows anything concrete accomplished. Stettinius' speech before the committee showed that he is nettled over the lack of progress.

The subcommittees are supposed to report to the executive committee, which then reports to the preparatory commission, which then reports to the 50 nations—with the result, eventually, that the first meeting of the general assembly will be held. This body will then name a general secretary, elect judges on the international court, and appoint members to the security, economic and social, and the trusteeship councils.

Plans for British Loan to Czechs Near Completion

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Financial News said today it understood that arrangements for a $20,000,000 British loan to Czechoslovakia, to be used "primarily for industrial rehabilitation," are nearing completion. The paper quoted Jan Masaryk, Czech foreign minister, as saying that negotiations also are under way for a loan of $50,000,000 from the United States.

The trains had been routed over Rio Grande tracks when a bridge fire east of Grange, Wyo., disrupted traffic over the U. P.'s main line. Traffic was resumed tonight.

REVEAL SLAYING OF 8 FLYERS BY NAZI CIVILIANS

Dying American Beaten with Monkey Wrench

PARIS, Sept. 7 (AP)—How eight American flyers were slain last year by nazi civilians—one of whom admitted beating a dying airman with a monkey wrench—was disclosed today in French war crimes commission files handed over to American authorities. Seven Germans are under arrest for the crimes.

Capt. Dimitri Veliachef of the French army's war criminals investigation branch showed copies of documents stating the killings occurred at Schollach, north of Neustadt, on July 21, 1944, and at Weisenbach, near Gernsbach, on Aug. 9, 1944. Both places are in the French occupation zone in Germany.

At Weisenbach three flyers who bailed out of a Flying Fortress were captured separately by civilians. One was Sgt. Robert L. Harmon, a radioman listed as missing in action on that date along with the entire crew of a bomber on a mission to Mannheim.

Two of the three were beaten into insensibility and then shot, the documents related. The third apparently was drowned.

Parachute from Bomber

At Schollach, the defendants' statements said, five airmen parachuted safely from a crashing bomber. Two of them were taken to the town hall, where they were ordered shot by the nazi leader of Neustadt, who later committed suicide.

The three others landed near Urach village and were apprehended by the gendarmerie. They were being brought to Schollach by three guards who intended to turn them over to the German army when three armed civilians, including the nazi leader's son, ordered the guards away. The civilians immediately shot two of the prisoners in the back and brought down the third as he tried to run.

Seven Turned Over to U. S.

Capt. Veliachef said seven of the defendants in the two cases have been turned over to the United States army. Among them is a Staufenberg nazi party member whose confession provided a unique demonstration of nazi ideology.

The confession quoted the defendant as saying:

"The parachutist [who landed near Weisenbach] was wounded and in a very weak condition. All medical help was refused him and then we took the American soldier in this condition to the town hall courtyard and there directed such heavy blows upon his head with a monkey wrench that he fell senseless.

"I myself beat the soldier with the above named tool until he almost fell dead.

"The wounded flyer was then shot dead by another Nazi.

"I carried out and performed this deed [clubbing the airman] in full awareness, as befits a good national socialist. I was willing to perform this slaying because I am well known as a good, obedient national socialist."

COMMUNISTS URGE NEW POPULAR FRONT FOR FRENCH ELECTION

PARIS, Sept. 7 [Reuters]—A communist proposal tonight that the French Federation of Labor Unions [CGT], the Socialist, Communist, and Radical parties should team up for the October elections, submitting joint lists of candidates, was regarded here as so important that it was thought Leon Blum, the French Socialist leader now on a visit to London, may return to Paris to deal with the situation which has suddenly arisen.

This surprise move may play havoc with present plans of the French government, and if successful may even render doubtful Gen. De Gaulle's chance of continuing as head of the government after the elections.

The communist proposal to revive what would in effect be the popular front alliance which swept Blum into power in 1936 arose at a meeting of the committee representing the French trades union council, Socialist, Communist, and Radical parties which De Gaulle refused to receive Monday.

Doctors Decide Goering Is Cured of Drug Habit

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP)—Doctors decided that Hermann Goering was cured of the drug habit when they gave him a sodamint one night last week and he dropped to sleep believing it was his usual sedative. Tom Blake, an aide to Justice Robert H. Jackson of the war crimes prosecution, told the story today. When Goering fell into allied hands he had a suitcase filled with 20,000 paracodeine tablets and was taking 40 a day, Blake said.

ALLIES PARADE IN SILENT BERLIN TO HAIL VICTORY

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Sept. 7—Against a silhouette of jagged, crumbling walls along Unter den Linden and ripped, twisted trees, statues, and flak towers in the Tiergarten, the allies paraded in celebration of complete victory today. A battalion each of Russians, Americans, French, British, and 50 armored vehicles from each detachment paraded past Marshal Zhukov, Gen. Patton, Maj. Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne, and Brig. Eric P. Nares at the monument commemorating Bismarck's victory in 1871.

"The democratic nations defeated the enemy tyrants and fascism," Zhukov thundered thru an amplifier, "and the united democracies will preserve peace for the democratic peoples."

"We salute all those who never lost faith in the justice of our cause.

Pleads for Enduring Peace

"We salute with our battle flags those who have given us victory. It now remains for us to conclude this victory by organization of a just enduring peace. From now on the peoples of the world are released from the fear of German aggression in the west and Japanese banditry in the east."

Red army troops marched stiff legged, with a modified goose step, and the British battalion strode sedately. The French, wearing berets, plodded painstakingly, and the Yank 82d air borne division contingent with liners of steel helmets and stubby, stocky carbines, slogged by with parachute panels as scarves, policemen's white cotton gloves, and pants tucked in high boots.

The British paraded new, wide tracked tanks, while the Americans rumbled in medium tanks. But the Reds stopped the show with a couple of battalions of the new Josef Stalin behemoths mounting 110 mm. guns, with polished flash guards adorning their snouts.

Few Germans Appear

GIs did a whacking business with the Russian soldiers, selling their watches and fountain pens, and allied troops crowded the line of march to view the spectacle.

Few Germans appeared, and those who did seemed interested only in the furtive whispers of "cigarets, chocolates, and gum," as they sought merchandise for the black market.

Nobody cheered, nobody applauded, and no chauvinistic note marred the international demonstration. In fact, staff officers frowned down on the desultory attempt by enlisted men to hum or chant the words of the national anthems played by regimental bands.

WOMAN WITNESS DIES ON STAND

Mrs. Mary Bethea, 70, Negro, 3338 Wabash av., died of a heart attack yesterday while testifying in an heirship hearing before Richard Fredo, assistant to the judge of the Probate court, in the county building.

MOVING A FOREST

● Every day the Soo Line transports a forest. Those "fence posts" stacked on flatcars are pulpwood—soon to be transformed into cardboard cartons, rayon dresses, newspapers and countless other items.

The War Production Board has set a quota of 16,000,000 cords of pulpwood for this year, so badly is it needed throughout our entire economy. We have confidence that the industry will meet this challenge in the post-war period—and we pledge the cooperation of this railroad.

The Soo Line grew up with the pulpwood and paper industries in the territory tributary to its lines, and continues to serve them through a network of equipment and personnel. We're proud to have so prominent a part in this basic industry.

Free Public Showings Daily, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
(Sundays, 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.)

You will see an unusually worthwhile exhibit—a colorful preview of passenger cars, designed for the crack new trains of America. It occupies approximately 5,000 square feet of floor space. It includes scale models, dioramas and graphic representations of many innovations embodying the latest conceptions in engineering and car design for the comfort and convenience of the traveler.

This significant display was first shown privately to railway executives in Chicago, New York and Washington. Then, as an example of commercial initiative and leadership, the U. S. Department of Commerce sponsored a public showing at its headquarters in Washington. We now open it to the people of Chicago—the world's greatest railroad center.

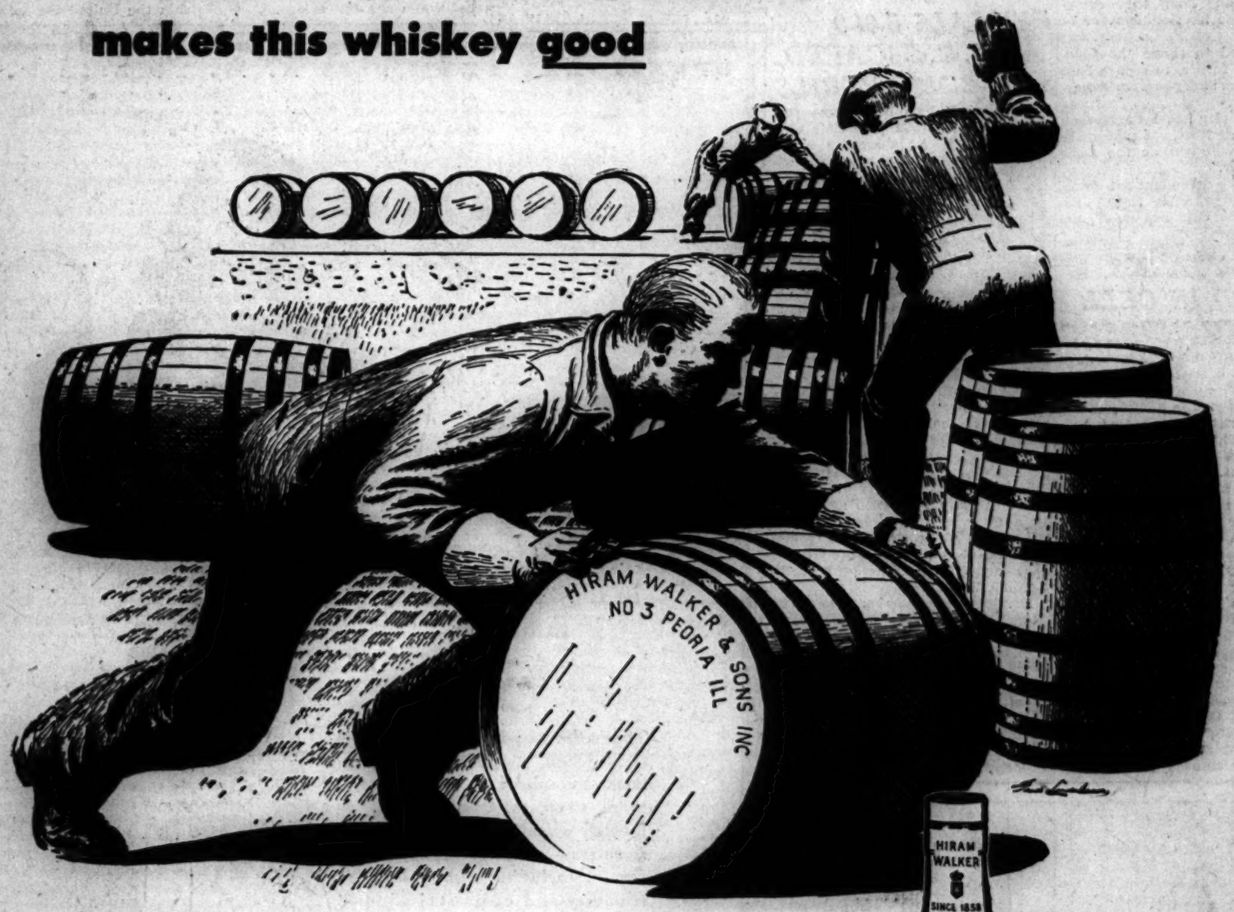
87 years at fine whiskey-making makes this whiskey good



Barrels of whiskey on the way to age at the distillery.

Guesswork has no place in fine whiskey-making. It's the whiskey-wisdom gained by Hiram Walker through all the years since 1858 that makes Imperial good—uniformly good. You'll recognize the difference in this whiskey—it's always there.

It takes barrels of money to win a war.

SUPREME COURT ASKED FOR NEW HEARING ON AP

5-3 Decision Challenged in Petition

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Associated Press told the Supreme court today its decision requiring opening of the news cooperative's membership is not an appropriate way to achieve Sherman anti-trust objectives.

The AP made the assertion in a petition which asked the tribunal to grant a rehearing on its decision of last June. The court required that the association in passing on applications for membership disregard possible competitive effects on existing members.

The AP petition said the 5 to 3 decision will be more likely to hinder than to foster competition among news services and newspapers.

Further, it stated that opening of AP membership would set in motion a trend toward chain newspaper operation "and it is not to be assumed that [small] local newspapers could stand up against such competition."

A Step Toward Monopoly

Compelling AP to serve more newspapers would, in effect, set it on the road to monopoly—something AP never desired—the AP added.

Such opening of membership, the nonprofit coöperative contended, can only be supported by legal theories which the Supreme court previously has rejected. AP counsel said they had found no precedent for a case in which "involuntary association has been compelled or the involuntary serving of others has been required where other and less drastic steps would satisfy the Sherman act."

The Supreme court held that AP by-laws on admission restrained trade and thereby violated the act. The decision upheld a special United States district court's summary judgment in the justice department's civil suit against AP. The association thruout the long litigation has objected to summary judgment procedure—that is, judgment without the taking of testimony from witnesses in open court trial.

Effect on Exclusiveness

Both courts said that if the membership by-laws were changed, an exclusive news exchange arrangement with the Canadian Press and the requirement that members furnish spontaneous local news exclusively to the AP might remain in effect. The government had attacked both exclusivity arrangements.

AP's petition today, however, contends "the conclusion seems inescapable" that the construction placed on the case by the Supreme court requires the enjoining of the exclusivity requirements and not the opening of membership.

"Enjoining the exclusive provisions of these [news] agreements falls within the orbit of recognized anti-trust remedies; opening the membership does not," AP counsel said.

"Petitioners respectfully submit," the petition said, "that the final judgment must be modified.

"If, as clearly appears to be the basis of the court's decision, this court believes that the exclusive provisions of the by-laws relating to the members local news of spontaneous origin and of the Canadian Press contract unreasonably restrict the sale of news gathered by others, those provisions should be enjoined.

Power of Competitors

"Similarly, petitioners have assumed that the power of a member to impose unreasonable conditions upon the admission of a competitor must also be enjoined.

"When these things are done, however, AP will have conformed to the anti-trust laws."

Counsel said those were the only points raised by the lower court in discussion of allegedly restrictive practices.

The petition insisted that "injunctive provisions of such far-reaching character" as those included in the June decision affecting membership by-laws should not be imposed "without a trial as to their actual effect upon competition."

The coöperative insisted that under the Sherman act its right to select its membership, taken by itself, "is clearly lawful."

A separate petition for a rehearing of the case was filed Wednesday by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, an AP member.

The Supreme court likely will announce early in its new term, beginning Oct. 1, whether it will grant a rehearing.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BOB BECKER

Sept. 7, 1945

AN aerial circus is one of nature's big shows at the farm about this time of the year, for the nighthawks, among the world's most graceful and tricky feathered flyers, now are on their annual fall migration. These wonderful birds always put on one of the most interesting shows in late afternoon and evening as they pass over the farm. During the last week hundreds have been seen by the farm residents.

When we were on the farm a few days ago, we watched the nighthawks for about a half hour before sundown. They were coming from the east and working west, some of the birds flying quite low as they caught insects for their supper.

Winged Hunters of Air

The nighthawk wanders in its migration from the islands of the Arctic ocean to southern South America. It is able to feed at most any hour of the day because it can see and catch flying insects in the brightest daylight.

One of the remarkable things about this useful insect eater is that it also has the ability to obtain a meal of insects on the wing even on clear nights. Its mouth, like that of the whippoorwill, opens far back under its ears, so it forms a trap to engulf insects; its tireless wings enable it to overtake them with the utmost ease.

While watching the flight, we were struck by the skill of each bird in using its wings. It doesn't have a rapid wing beat, but its spread [21 to almost 24 inches] gives it the power to sideslip to catch an insect, or make an upward zoom so quickly that few flying bugs can escape it.

Daylight Travelers

Late August marks the start of the southward migration of the nighthawks, and it continues thru September. Most of our small land birds, like the thrushes and the sparrows, do not have the courage to travel by day. They prefer to migrate under cover of darkness, then feed and rest in the daylight hours. But the nighthawks boldly migrate by daylight, and always travel in loose flocks, in contrast with wild geese, which seem to have fixed regulations on close order flying.

Many bird fans often are puzzled when they see nighthawks on the wing because not all the flocks are going south. Such was the case the other night, when the birds we watched were going west. This happens quite frequently during migrations, but as a rule these off-the-route movements are short. Eventually, the birds swing back to their South American course, covering a few miles each day toward their winter home.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who have established asparagus beds can take several steps during the next 30 days to insure a full crop next spring. Asparagus thrives best in an alkaline soil, and requires annual applications of fertilizers of high nitrogen content. Application of lime [to increase alkalinity] and of fertilizer may be made in the spring, but the farm gardener usually does these jobs in the fall when the work schedule is lighter. His program includes the following measures:

1. Late this month the asparagus foliage will be cut off just above ground level.

2. Chicken manure [a high nitrogen fertilizer] will be liberally applied between rows, but not directly over the rows. Gardeners can substitute chemical fertilizer at the heavy ratio of 15 pounds to each 100 row feet.

3. After the fertilizer has been spread, the entire bed should be spaded to a depth of 5 inches, with the turned soil left in clods, not raked.

AUGUST CIGARET TAX YIELD BEST SINCE JULY, 1942

Proof that the cigaret shortage is nearly ended was offered by the Illinois department of revenue in its report yesterday that the state's 2 cent per package tax yielded $1,241,000 in August, the largest collection since July, 1941. This indicates the sale of nearly a billion and a quarter cigarets.

The tax yielded $1,096,000 in July, $1,148,000 in August, 1944, and an all-time low of $676,000 in February, 1945.

A sharp increase in motor fuel tax receipts followed the end of gasoline rationing, gross receipts totaling $3,424,000 in August, compared with $2,938,000 for the same month last year. Refunds for nonhighway use were $640,000.

Liquor tax revenue totaled $1,907,000 in August, slightly lower than the July total. Cash collections from the retailers' occupation tax aggregated $7,470,000 last month, compared with $8,052,000 in July and $7,332,000 for August, 1944.

ADMITS FLEEING FROM FORT KNOX IN OFFICER GARB

Walter Knapp, 21, of 634 Grace st., arrested Thursday as he was entering a parked automobile, yesterday admitted to Assistant State's Atty. Frank Krol that he was one of five men who escaped from the military prison at Fort Knox by wearing officers' uniforms smuggled in to them.

Knapp said the escaping prisoners received salutes of the guards as they walked to freedom. Knapp had been serving a sentence of 10 years for stealing tires. After stealing an automobile in Bardstown, Ky., the five separated, and only Knapp and Robert Buff remained together by the time they reached Chicago. Knapp said Buff was now en foute to Los Angeles.

Knapp was ordered held for Felony court Monday and meanwhile military authorities at Fort Knox will be notified.

DIVORCES YANK TO GIVE UNBORN TWINS A NAME

The childless wife of an American soldier divorced him yesterday in Superior court to enable him to wed an English girl who expects to become the mother of twins this month. The soldier, his wife said, has admitted paternity of the expected babies.

The wife was Mrs. Eunice Coffman, 31, of 2026 N. Clark st. She was granted a divorce by Judge Frank M. Padden from Pvt. Frank Coffman, 35, whom she charged with desertion.

Informed by Red Cross

Under questioning of William J. Terrell, her attorney, Mrs. Coffman said she received a letter from the Red Cross informing her that her husband was the father-to-be of the twins which X-rays disclosed would be born to the English girl, who is unmarried.

Terrell told the court that Coffman, who is assigned to the 135th general hospital unit stationed in Hereford county, England, is home on furlough, and that he admitted his relationship with the English girl.

Mrs. Coffman said that when she learned of the expected multiple birth she believed that it would be best to give her husband his freedom so he could return to England, marry the English girl, and give his name to her children.

Not Like Other GI Wife

Her attitude, Terrell said, is in direct contrast to that taken by the wife of Sgt. William [Red] Thompson Jr. of Pittsburgh, who achieved international notice when he became the father of quadruplets, born to Norah Carpenter, an English barmaid.

His wife, Eleanor Thompson, ignored the sergeant's appeals to divorce him so he could marry the mother of the quads, one of which died. Thompson was discharged from the army last July.

NAME BROTHERS IN TAX FRAUD OF NEARLY MILLION

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—The government today charged two brothers with seeking to evade payment of nearly 1 million dollars in taxes on a war time income and with conspiring to defraud the government thru illegal diversion of large quantities of rationed sugar.

The brothers, named in indictments returned here and in Newark, N. J., are Murray Greenberg, 47, of Brooklyn, and Leo Greenberg, 43, of Passaic, N. J., formerly president and vice president, respectively, of the Fresh Grown Preserves corporation of Lyndhurst, N. J. They recently disposed of their interests in the firm.

United States Atty. John F. X. McGohey said the tax indictment returned here was "the most important criminal tax case to reach the court in this area since the government began its intensified drive against war time tax evasions."

Only $32,662 Paid

The indictment, containing two counts—conspiracy and attempted evasion—stated that taxes on the corporation's income for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1944, totaled $976,068 but that the brothers paid only $32,662.

McGohey charged that the Greenbergs sought to conceal income by failing to enter on the corporation's books cash sales of sugar syrups to beverage manufacturers, and by withholding checks from the firm's bank account.

"The sales," the United States attorney said, "resulted from large scale diversions of sugar ostensibly obtained to make foodstuffs for army and navy hospitals and other exempt agencies."

25 Million Pounds

The indictment returned at Newark charged the Greenbergs, their firm, two other individuals, and three business concerns with diverting 25 million pounds of sugar thru fraudulent invoices and forged and counterfeited sugar purchase certificates.

Drayton will be succeeded by George R. McSwain, 36, special agent in charge of the Houston [Tex.] office, who has been with the FBI for eight years. McSwain is a brother of William McSwain, Chicago attorney who was in charge of the Chicago FBI office in 1931 and 1932, and of Eldridge T. McSwain, professor of education at Northwestern university. MR. TRUMAN'S GIFT TO THE REPUBLICANS

President Truman's message to congress presents the Republican party with its opportunity. It will not be seized if the timid, the trimmers, and the Wall streeters who have for so long been influential in party counsels continue to dominate Republican thought and action. Nevertheless, the opportunity is there. Mr. Truman is advocating policies most of which are unsound, his program is filled with inconsistencies, and, what's perhaps more important in practical politics, many of the planks in his platform, if adopted, are going to be profoundly unpopular and deservedly so.

We shall mention a few of them. First of all is his suggestion to continue conscription of men between the ages of 18 and 25. This is no plan for universal military training. He says we have commitments which require the United States to maintain millions of men in arms for some time to come and he doubts that the need can be met by volunteers. He does not say what the commitments are. Common sense says they do not exist. The Germans and the Japanese are patently helpless and can be kept that way, if we so will it, for the next few years with no more than a dozen divisions of occupation troops.

In truth, the demand for huge armies of occupation can be explained but not excused. Part of the explanation is found in the desire of some people here and abroad to impose a bad peace on Europe and another bad peace on Asia. A good peace will need no great apparatus of occupation to enforce it. A good peace is a peace of reconciliation of the sort which Gen. MacArthur foreshadowed in his memorable address in the surrender ceremony in Tokyo bay. A bad peace is the kind which is indicated in the news from Europe of confiscations, wholesale transfers of populations, and arrests of business competitors in defeated countries. If we want that kind of a peace we shall need conscription to make it stick for even a short time.

To hear Mr. Truman tell it, there is no such thing in our arsenal as the atomic bomb and no such thing in the defeated countries as a revulsion against war to assure the maintenance of our victory in the next few years. He has taken a position in this matter which is as unsound as it will be unpopular with everybody except the generals who want an excuse to keep them in their present ranks. The Republicans in congress should lose no time in driving the truth home.

They have another great opportunity in the thoroly dishonest proposal of the President to continue the country in a legal state of war after the fighting has ceased. It will be interesting to see how his proposal will be phrased. Evidently the President wishes congress to draw up a resolution reading something like this:

"Whereas, our enemies have surrendered unconditionally, have disarmed and accepted the forces of occupation as their lawful government; and, whereas, the war is ended; Be it resolved that the war is still being fought in full fury, requiring the American people to surrender their rights and liberties as if a national emergency still existed."

This is nonsense and Mr. Truman is almost frank enough to say so. We must accept the fiction of the nation at war, he says, in order to provide a legal foundation for retaining the government's war time controls over men and their economic activities after the war.

We have just gone thru a great war in which we have proved as it never was proved before that a nation of free men, brought up in a tradition of free economic enterprise, is more than a match for the slave peoples, no matter how numerous. And so Mr. Truman recommends an indefinite delay in returning the nation to the freedom which made it great and alone can keep it great. That is Mr. Truman's obeisance to the CIO and the socialist element in his following. To any one possessed of political intelligence it is apparent that his purpose in delaying the declaration of the end of the war is to give time for improvising some legalistic substitute which will serve equally well for maintaining many of the controls which are becoming increasingly irksome and hateful.

Mr. Truman is not at all timid in proposing new extravagances in government expenditure. He favors only inconsiderable reductions in taxation. Here is another issue on which the Republicans can go to town if only they have the sense and the courage to make the fight.

Mr. Truman's address was just another New Deal paper. It differed from the products of his predecessor in the welcome absence of venom and epithet, but in its essentials it was the same old compound of international intrigue and government-run-everybody. The country is weary of this prescription and justly so. A fighting Republican opposition in and out of congress can put an end to it.

OUR MOST LOYAL ALLY

Brig. Gen. Carlos Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippines, justifiably protested the omission of his country from the ceremony at which Japan formally surrendered in Tokyo bay.

Among the signatories were Russia, which entered the war two days before the Japanese peace overture; Canada, which lost a regiment at Hong Kong in the first days of the war and then confined its participation to a few troops at Attu and the employment of one cruiser; France, whose Pacific bases were used by America but which provided no fighting forces; New Zealand, Australia, and Great Britain.

The Filipinos were in the war against Japan from the first day and they still were in it when the end came three years and eight months later. They were loyal and courageous fighting allies during the gloomy days on Bataan. They had the most extensive and effective underground movement during the Japanese occupation of any conquered Asiatic people. They were there to help us when Gen. MacArthur came back to Leyte and they turned over whole islands which their guerrillas had wrested from the Japanese. They suffered hardships, torture, and death at the hands of the Japs, but their loyalty and belief in America never wavered. They were worth more to us than all the rest of our allies put together.

It is unforgivable that the 18 million Filipinos who are bound to this nation by such ties of friendship and trust were not honored with the right to assert their share in the triumph by signing the Japanese surrender document. The forces of liberty in Asia would have been given voice thru the exercise of this right. Gen. MacArthur's long and intimate association with the Filipino people relieves him of the blame for this oversight. Whether our state department was at fault or whether we yielded to allies who are unwilling to grant the dignity of recognition to native populations are questions which should be answered.

Harold Laski, who says that the British Labor government will have a "profound brotherly affection" for soviet Russia, is chairman of the Labor party's executive committee. Its equivalent in Russia would be the politburo, of which Stalin was secretary until he became marshal and then generalissimo. It was the office filled by the actual head of the state, and after Stalin obtained full control it ceased to be a body for discussion and decision.

When the vote revealed the triumph of the Labor party on a socialist program of nationalization Mr. Laski took to the air to outline new policies of state. He said that if France went Socialist in its general elections the British government would renew the offer of common citizenship, one of the desperate measures Winston Churchill proposed in June, 1940, to keep France in the war. Mr. Laski told Franco of Spain that his number was up and he promised a radical revision of British policy in Greece.

Mr. Churchill in his first speech for the opposition asked Mr. Attlee, the socialist prime minister, to define Mr. Laski's position. Was he the actual head of government? Did he with his committee make the government policies? Mr. Churchill said he did not ask that Mr. Laski be muzzled. "Any one can say anything in their country, no matter how pernicious and nonsensical it may be, but it is necessary for the government to let us know exactly where they stand with Mr. Laski."

Mr. Attlee replied that Mr. Laski spoke for himself and was inclined to be ebullient and impulsive; the government policies were laid down by the ministers. Mr. Laski, suddenly finding that he was the subject of a socialist king, may have gone a bit off his noodle. The Labor party has been known to expel dissidents. It does not, as the Russia of Mr. Laski's profound brotherly affection, shoot them. Indeed, Mr. Attlee and his foreign minister, Mr. Bevins, have expressed disapproval of what is happening behind what Mr. Churchill calls the "iron curtain" dividing Europe. They say that the totalitarian governments operating in Romania, Bulgaria, and Hungary do not represent the will of the people. However, the Labor government will not start a civil war in Spain to get rid of Franco and it seems to be content with the prearranged method of holding elections in Greece.

Later it may be seen whether the Labor party exercises a discipline over the political servants who represent it as servants of the socialist king and whether Mr. Laski, Prof. Laski by profession, as chairman of the executive committee, throws only his own weight around. If the party line is one of profound brotherly affection for Russia, which may be doubted, then Mr. Attlee and Mr. Bevin are noncomformists in deploring the Russian totalitarian governments in Romania, Bulgaria, and Hungary. They are on Mr. Churchill's side of the fence. He adds Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Yugoslavia to the list of unfree countries.

Mr. Bevin is also on Mr. Churchill's side of the fence in willingness to regard China as a great power except as to Hong Kong. The race between the Chinese land forces and the British navy to accept the Japanese surrender at Hong Kong and get possession may have been decided by now. China is about as much of a great power as it is a republic. In the great medicine show of war language loses its meaning.

Suggestion to Mr. Truman and our state department: How about Norman Thomas as ambassador to represent this country in the court of the socialist king?

TIMELY OLD SAWS

Shakespeare had some advice that might be recollected with profit both by the New Dealers, who devised lend-lease as a stunt that was supposed to keep us out of war and yet let our friends lick the Germans, and by the British, who set up such a terrific holler when Messrs. Truman and Crowley sawed off the pipeline when peace came back. Polonius, in many ways an old bore, declaimed:

"Neither a borrower nor a lender be,
For loan oft loses both itself and friend,
And borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry."

In Henry IV., Shakespeare offered another observation which the New Deal can apply strictly to itself:

"I can get no remedy against this consumption of the purse;
Borrowing only lingers and lingers it out,
But the disease is incurable."

Offhand, we would say that truths don't change merely because they have aged.

MR. PEPYS' TROUBLES

8th Sept.—My cold in the head and elsewhere is doing as well as the next fellow's or maybe better, for it is about ten days old and I am shaking it off, as the optimists say. Nearly every person I met yesterday had a young one, and I advised them to try shaking it off, which is the standard prescription that never works. One man claimed that his was hay fever, which he couldn't shake or laugh off, so I asked him if he had ever heard of the notorious filterable virus, which may be the atom's little brother and thus far has never been cracked.

What with this slight indisposition, and the heat, and my chores, have been unable to visit the Landing Ship Tank which is docked by the big bridge, and to which I have been invited whenever I want to sample the navy cuisine. Am sure these invaders of the inland waterways put on a spirited show, for five miles away I heard them give the Foster st. beach a going over, and the airplane cover, mostly hidden from my sight, sounded like my idea of D-day on the coast of Normandy.

Am standing by to repel invaders every night in my home district, which is a kind of Sudetenland between Chicago and Evanston, at present sorely vexed by a crime wave that has the inhabitants worried and jumpy. Have armed myself with a Spitz dog that barks at shadows, and there is a Great Dane in reserve on the floor below. Other weapons in my arsenal are top secrets which have museum value, like the swords the Japs don't want to surrender.

Am bringing the Cubs down the stretch nicely, and two weeks hence will begin to concentrate helpfully on the Wildcats.

A MODERN GALATEA

I was a flame and you the dark's eclipse
That sheltered it and brought its brightness out;
I was a vagrant tune and you tue lips
That fashioned it and brought the song about.
You were the hand that shaped my restless clay
Into a statue representing Faith;
Beyond my forest's midnight you were day
That made an entity of me, the wraith.
You were the night, the elements, the sun
In turn, according to my need's desire;
You found my scattered dreams and one by one
You cultured them with shadow and with fire.
Out of your goodness you are part of me—
You are synonymous with Destiny!

The Duke in a Crisis

Linemaster: I aint eggsactly tha complainingest guy in tha world but after a month of fish, chicken giblets and eggs I feel I gotta right to do a little griping. So tha Mama does some red-point finnagling an manages to get a pork-roast fer supper.

Bout 3 o'clock in the afternoon I gets a frantic phone call an she's so excited I dunno whether tha house is on fire or if one of our kids broke a leg. All she's able to say is "gas—stove—gas—stove—gas." Natcherally my 1st thought is that I forgot to pay tha gas bill.

But that aint tha trouble. Seems ever since our dog Butch was a pup, his favorite hide-out was under tha stove an he's been doin' it ever since. What with a ½ doz. kids jitterbugging an flinging darts, I didn' blame tha pooch much. Ennyway he's 9 mos. old now an he can hardly get in an out of tha fox-hole, an finally this day he got stuck an coodn' get out.

Well, I suggests tryin' to coax him with a bone or just grabbing him by tha tail, which she had already did, an by this time my only suggestion was to leave tha hound where he was fer 3 or 4 days.

This high class humor only gets tha Mama madder, so I tells her to go get tha janitor, which she did, an when he arrives he's stewed to tha gills still celebrating V-J Day, an all he does is look at tha pup an laugh so I tells tha Mama to put him on tha phone.

Tha jerk is so stiff he starts telling me what a dirty so an so bum his brother-in-law Axel is. Ennyway tha hound finally wiggled himself out, but I got to thinking that there ain't no worse pest in tha world than a guy when he's full of liquor.

SAID WITH A GRIN

In days gone by I've heard folks tell
How hard it was to say farewell;
But soon that word will lose its guile,
And then we'll say it with a smile.
Farewell to military strife,
Farewell to regimented life,
Farewell to stuff like "the duration,"
And "Please avoid the railroad station,"
And "Sorry, Mister, none today,"
And "Ship your Christmas box in May."
Therefore "farewell" will cease to be
A word suggesting tragedy.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

M. P. asks: "Can the divorced wife of a soldier continue to receive her $50 monthly allowance from the government after the divorce is final?"

No. A divorced wife may not receive any amount in excess of any alimony payment ordered by the court and in no case may she receive more than $42 for herself. If there are children allowance may be obtained for them at the rate of $30 for the first child and $20 for each additonal child. If no payment is made to the divorced wife and there is a child an allowance of $42 may be obtained.

J. F. R. asks: "If a man volunteered for service in the army in 1942 and now has completed three years of active service is he not entitled to discharge because of expiration of enlistment?"

No. Volunteers in 1942 were accepted into the army for the duration of the war and six months thereafter. Enlistment periods of regular army men which expired after Dec. 7, 1941, were extended for the duration and six months. "The duration of the war and six months" means six months after the day the termination of hostilities is proclaimed by the President or by concurrent resolution of congress. This will be some date in the future and has nothing to do with the date on which fighting was stopped in either the European or Pacific theaters.

CORRAL THE ITCH MITE AND PREVENT SCABIES

SCABIES, better known as "the itch," has been on the increase within recent years. War time conditions are looked upon as partly responsible, but other factors are involved inasmuch as many health reports mentioned its widespread prevalence even before the outbreak of hostilities. At any rate, we know we're dealing with a contagious malady and its incidence indicates the need of eradication.

The female itch mite [Sarcoptes scabiei] is the cause of the disorder. The bug is a minute parasite hardly noticeable to the naked eye. She is an ambitious creature and has a way of burrowing into the skin which produces a tunnel that looks like a scratch filled with dirt. As she wanders along forming a track, she deposits her eggs. These hatch in 3 or 4 days and migrate to the surface in search of nourishment. After full development they commence to crawl and bore into the epidermis in the same fashion as the preceding generation.

As a rule the pests favor only certain parts of the body for their excavations. The webs of the fingers are preferred but any region having a crevice such as the wrists, elbows, knees, and around the ankle is ideal. In consequence, the invaded areas exhibit a rash. Swelling and redness ensue from the intense irritation. Occasionally a discharge appears which on drying leaves a crust. Furthermore, unavoidable scratching may lead to bleeding and bacterial infection. Itching is not as pronounced during the day but many patients are tormented after retiring, for the parasite is a "graveyard shift" worker.

How does the affliction spread? By direct contact with an infected person or thru objects such as towels, bedding, and other articles that are likely to be shared. Scabies has often been referred to as the "family disease" since several members in a household are usually attacked. This exemplifies the importance of treating the entire household.

The traditional procedure is the preliminary hot bath with thoro scrubbing of the entire body. The skin is dried well and the classic remedy—sulfur ointment—is rubbed into the surface from the neck down. Deeper coatings should be made to the more heavily infested areas. The preparation is applied five consecutive nights. On the morning of the sixth day, the concoction is removed by a bath. All apparel that has been in contact with the skin, including bed clothing, is contaminated and must be sterilized by boiling. This "cleanup" program plays an important role in banishing the insects.

Benzyl benzoate also has been highly recommended. In a recent study of 189 patients no recurrences were noted even after several weeks' observation. It was noteworthy too that when this preparation was used, a shorter period was required for the complete course.

Money Is What Is Hard to Get

The only veteran of the Pacific in this war who, as far as we know, wants to go back for good is a soldier who received his discharge last month. He wants to go back to the Marshall Islands. "Fish hooks are money out there," he said dreamily, "and I've got two drawersful at home."

Reading that, it suddenly dawned on this addled head here that the Bretton Woods boys, who worked for an international monetary plan, had a small world, 18th century slant on everything. They want all the world to use the same money, money over which, once every one considers it valuable, we will fight. It will never work. The natives of New Guinea will never want silver or gold pressed into flat coins. They will want, as they now want, rock salt and cowrie shells. They have so much gold and silver they disdain it, but rock salt and cowrie shells are rare. The cowrie is a big mussel, a rough shell with an iridescent interior which its owners polish until it has a high sheen. Its beauty, like that of the lady with a pie plate grown into her upper lip, is a matter of opinion, but its use is almost as old as man. It was found in the ruins of Nineveh, and Marco Polo found it in the province of Yunnan. The British pay off with it in New Guinea today and do all right, thank you.

And then there is Malaita in the Solomons. Porpoise teeth are the favored money there. The natives of Fiji, on the other hand, go for whale's teeth, red teeth being to white teeth what our $5 is to 25 cents. Hand a Fijian an American quarter or an English shilling, and what does he do with it? He makes it into a ring. In the south seas, particularly the Santa Cruz Islands, the most coveted money consists of red feathers from the head of a tiny jungle bird. This money not only is rare, but is also the strangest money you will hear of, for if shown at all, it may be handled only by the owner. This makes him a rich man, but it won't buy him a ride on a street car.

This gives you a very faint idea of what the world is up against under Bretton Woods and /if/ when. The rich man in the United States in the war now happily past was the man who owned cattle and could, if he wished, chop up one beef and eat it all himself, the pig. The richest man in the country in terms of pennies in the bank couldn't buy a hamburger. If he did manage that, he couldn't be sure it was hamburger. It all was a throwback to the most ancient of ancient days when cattle were the usual medium of exchange. The Latin word, pecunia, or money, comes from pecus, cattle. In our own tongue the word chattel, from cattle, has come to mean all movable property. When we pay a doctor his fee we again use the throwback, for fee stems from the old vieh, which in German still retains the meaning of cattle.

What is money, anyway? What women wear on their heads, what men button up in their wallets. Something you give somebody for something else. In the long history of man, almost everything movable of value—value again being a matter of opinion—has been used as it, from woodpecker scalps to nails, from leeches to tiger tongues, from wrist watches [Berlin: Americans vs. Russians, 1945] to 20 pins or one penny, the standard admission fee to childhood's circus. Somehow it is sad to think of what will happen to that ex-soldier and his fish hooks if Bretton Woods comes to the Marshalls as well as to Dunsinane.

"1948 WILL REWARD FIGHTERS"

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 28—Years ago, every so often, you would come out and say—"1921 will reward fighters."

Isn't it about time to revive the old slogan and start it going for 1948?

The middle west liked that slogan and I think it would be good again to nail to the masthead. EARL GROTH

OCD FUNDS

Chicago, Sept. 3—When the office of civilian defense was first organized I was appointed treasurer of our community organization. On three occasions we made a canvass of the community and picked up approximately $1.00 from each resident. With these funds we paid all the necessary expenses of our OCD organization.

Many months ago the organization just disintegrated and the expenses ceased. As treasurer I still had on hand approximately $175. We have used part of this fund for war bond drives, but I still have $112.50 on hand.

I am considering calling in the last executive committee of the OCD and recommending that the balance on hand be turned over to the Red Cross or other agency.

I am wondering, however, what has happened to the funds in the many communities thruout the United States, where, as in our community, the organization just disintegrated, leaving the treasurer holding the bag.

SURPLUSES FOR SERVICE MEN

Cherry Point, N. C., Aug. 23—With the decommissioning of the country's many, many military establishments will come the disposition by the government of a great store of very valuable equipment. The list of items that will be available is endless, ranging from airplanes, tanks, jeeps, small boats, and scooters to house and office furniture, excellent photographic equipment, guns of all sorts, entire buildings, heavy road equipment, and locomotives.

I suggest that the rank and file of service personnel are the ones who rightly should have priority claim to this excess equipment. I do not mean to suggest that it should be handed over to them as a gift, but why not sell this equipment direct to the service man or woman?

Thousands of boys returning to farms would eagerly buy at the right price a jeep or tractor that could and would see much use on the farm. MARINE

THE NO-FULL MEDAL

West Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 2—Come, come, let us be chivalrous just in case the brass hats should have the grace to blush, even slightly, at exposure of the abuse in army promotions being pointed up by the Pearl Harbor airing. Why can't a sucker medal, glorified to be sure, be given to those reserve officers who took their pre-war military training seriously. The design might include a dunce cap, a goat, etc.

This would explain, without embarrassing questions from relatives and friends, why an officer served overseas for years without a promotion. The elite corps made up of regular army officers promoted rapidly, movie and stage stars, politicians' relatives and favorites, etc. We also might have a medal showing Elliott and Ralph Ingersoll rampant, a dollar design, a pull and a fawning politician lurking in the background. TRIBUNE READER

FROM ANZIO TO TOKYO

Camp Crowder, Mo., Aug. 27—This is from an ex-combat infantry man, now attached to the medical corps here after having served overseas 16 months. My first 10 months overseas were served with the 45th division in a front line company. I fought at Anzio and was captured by the Germans on the push to Rome. I spent 15 days with them before escaping. Then we trained for the South France invasion, landed D-day, H-hour, in South France, fought all the way up to Strasburg. Then I was reclassified limited service because of battle fatigue and nervous reactions. Now I am here with my medical unit waiting shipment to the Pacific for army of occupation duty.

It so happens that most of the original members of this outfit have 77 points and their chances of getting out are very good, while us poor suckers who have fought and don't quite reach that high standard will be shipped to the Pacific. All of the men in this outfit who do not have that 77 points are all ex-combat men who have been thru hell and are contemplating going A. W. O. L.

An infantry man has very little chance of making as many points as the service units [air corps, mainly] because they don't live too long. Why do we have to go overseas again when there are so many trainees and men who have been in the states so long that they are U. S. O. happy? PFC.

NEW DEAL PLANS FOR YOUTH

Boonville, Mo., Sept. 3—The memory of man is short. Some two years ago, Eleanor Roosevelt wrote that the time would come [she hoped] that a man would not be allowed to become a doctor simply because he wanted to—intimating that the government should decide his vocation and place him where he was needed. Why can't the American people and our so-called representatives in congress see that the New Dealers are plotting to carry out that very theory in the "education" of our 18 year old boys whom they are drafting as soon as they can get their hands on them, and whom they plan to draft indefinitely? They assure us that the government will educate them, and we who have sons already know that the boy's choice of subjects is disregarded. MRS. ANN M. WOLF

F. D. R. AS AN INDORSER

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 1—Three cheers for your editorial, "Court Martialing the American People."

There is another matter before the American people on which they, too, should have the facts—the Elliott Roosevelt personal loans. Is there any good reason why, if F. D. R. placed his approval on those loans, his estate, which is well able to pay them, should not do so? ALVIN E. JOHNSON

Their marriage will take place at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Winnetka Congregational church, with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon.

Altho the list of ushers depends on service orders, Miss Lyon will have her sister, Mrs. Gordon H. Ewen, as her matron of honor. Miss Margaret Sheldon, Miss Marilynn Morse, Miss Joyce Berry, Miss Theonina Morner, Miss Kirby Coleman, and Mrs. William Morse will be bridesmaids.

Here for the wedding will be Mr. Nevitt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Nevitt, and his grandmother, Mrs. Charles Nevitt of Oshkosh, Wis. Mrs. Ewen will entertain for her sister at a kitchen shower this evening, and tomorrow Miss Morner will be hostess at a cocktail party and dance for the young couple. The bridal dinner will be given Tuesday evening in the Indian Hill club. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Sheldon will entertain at a breakfast in the Indian Hill club Wednesday preceding the wedding.

Other Wedding News

The rose-pointe Duchesse lace train which was part of a handsome gown belonging to the late Mrs. Edward L. Glaser and which was included in the wedding ensemble of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. James M. R. Glaser, has been taken out of its wrappings for the marriage today of the James Glasers' daughter, Sally, and Lt. Hartley Chamberlin Dewey of the army air forces. Only members of the two families and a few close friends will witness the 4:30 p. m. ceremony in the Glasers' Glencoe home, Rosemor lodge. A larger reception will follow at 5 p. m.

The bride, whose wedding costume also will include an heirloom seed pearl heart, will be attended by her two sisters, Joan and Peggy, as maid of honor and bridesmaid. Miss Glaser's Vassar college roommate, Miss Patricia Gamble, is here from St. Louis, Mo., and will help to form an aisle with five other close friends of the bride, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay III., and the Misses Catryna Nevius, Louise Konsberg, Audrey Aveyard, and Ann Hoffmann. Also here from out of town are Lt. Dewey's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Hartley Dewey of Beverly Hills, Cal., whose wedding anniversary is today, and Mrs. James Clifford and her daughters, Mrs. Nannette Pillard and Miss Lucille Clifford, of Boston. Lt. Keith Laizure of San Mateo, Cal., will be best man. Lt. Dewey and his bride will motor to his post in Victorville, Cal., where they will live.

Debutante News

White gladioli and dahlias in silver wine coolers will decorate the Indian Hill club for the debut tea from 4 to 7 p. m. today of Miss Alice Emily Butz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rogers Butz, and Miss Isabel Martin Lindsay, daughter of the Martin Lindsays. The debutantes' gowns, cut from the same length of pale silver-blue taffeta, will be styled slightly differently, but they will carry identical pastel colonial bouquets in old fashioned silver holders.

After the tea the buds, their 14 assistants, and their escorts will go to the Butzes' Winnetka home for dinner and dancing.

Miss Betty Bennett's grandmother, Mrs. Inslee Adrian Bennett, and her aunt, Miss Ainslee Bennett, are here from Pittsburgh, Pa., for her debut luncheon at 1 p. m. today in the Silver room of the Woman's Athletic club. About 65 of the season's debutantes and other young friends of the Robert C. Bennetts' daughter have been invited to the party. Miss Bennett will attend the Garland school in Boston this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hector McNabb and their daughter, Betty Lou, will be at home from 4 to 7 p. m. tomorrow in Winnetka to introduce Miss McNabb to society. Miss McNabb and her assistants, Miss Mary Emily Yarnell of Chicago, Miss Emalou Bishop of Danville, Ill., Miss Janet Copeland, and Miss Carolyn Tudor, who all are week-end guests of the McNabbs, will be entertained at dinner and dancing in the Edgewater Beach hotel after the tea.

Week-End Events

Dr. Omar Fareed and Miss Nancy Alling of the South Shore Country club will be defending the championship they won last summer in the annual Saddle and Cycle interclub tennis tournament at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow at the club. The Indian Hill, the Evanston Tennis, the Knollwood, the Skokie, and the Saddle clubs will participate in the event. At a buffet supper following the matches Dr. and Mrs. Fareed's friends will be bidding them farewell, as they will leave in about two weeks for California. Mrs. Fareed returned to Chicago yesterday after settling their children in their new home just outside of Glendale, near Los Angeles.

Flower enthusiasts will flock to the Lake Forest Young Men's club in Market square in the village today and tomorrow for the Lake Forest Dahlia and Victory Garden show, sponsored by the North Shore Dahlia society and the Lake Forest Garden club. The show, given to raise money for the Young Men's club, will be open from 10 a. m. thru this evening and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. tomorrow, with an admission charge of 40 cents.

The peace and quiet of Lake Geneva, where Comdr. and Mrs. Robert J. Twyman will observe their silver wedding anniversary today with an informal reception and buffet supper for 60 close friends, will be quite in contrast to the scene of their marriage on Sept. 8, 1920. Shortly after Mr. Twyman and the former Marjorie Thomas were married in Guatemala, where he was managing electrical interests at the time, they were forced to flee from that country because of the 1920 revolution.

Look Forward to Pony and Pet Show Tomorrow

Judy, Tuckie, and Susie Coffin (left to right) and their two dog friends, all of whom will be found tomorrow at the Dunham Woods Riding club, where the children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Coffin Jr., will be in charge of a pony and pet show starting at 10:30 a. m. Participants and spectators are asked to bring picnic luncheons to share around the club's old show ring.

A Movie Has Fun with the History Book

"WHERE DO WE GO FROM HERE?"

By Mae Tinée

The boys were really having fun with the history book when they concocted this number, and the results draw a good many giggles from the audience.

Fred MacMurray does another of his excellent portrayals in the part of an ordinary guy [Bill Morgan], with the normal amount of clumsiness and shyness, who, try as he will, can't get into uniform. No branch of service will have him, and because he's big and husky looking, altho 4-F, he's pretty uncomfortable in his civvies.

The fact that the cute trick he adores [June Haver] spends all her time working on the morale of any man in uniform doesn't help a bit, so Bill is dolefully conducting a scrap drive, explaining why he's not in service, and washing dishes at the U. S. O.—the last is a very funny sequence; when he washes dishes he stops at nothing! Joan Leslie is the girl who's happy to help swing a dish mop in Bill's company, but unfortunately she reminds him of his sister.

Things are most unsatisfactory until the luckless hero rubs an old lamp in the scrap heap, and out pops a genial little genie. The genie has a gadget which enables him to grant wishes, and when Bill says he'd like to be in the army—presto!—he's in.

Unfortunately the genie's period fixer is out of whack, and the army is George Washington's. Volunteering as a spy, Bill talks too much and ends up against a stone wall with a rifle squad facing him, but the late resident of the bottle comes to his rescue by transferring him to the navy, which Bill feels might be more comfortable.

However, the time gadget is still off, and Bill goes back a couple of centuries and finds himself one of Christopher Columbus' crew. He talks the boys out of trouble by enumerating what will be missed if good old America isn't discovered. This sequence is done in operatic fashion, and some of the lyrics are pretty neat.

The next stop is Manhattan, but the Indians sell it to him, which leads to further adventures, all silly. The faithful maiden and the glamor girl run true to form in all the various periods.

It's fairly sophisticated nonsense, but it's a pretty big dose. The musical and dance sequences frequently seem superfluous, but MacMurray can carry a lot on his broad shoulders, and because of his performance it's not bad for light fare.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 7—Peter Lawford has arrived. He plays the lead in "A Star from Heaven" for Metro. The story's taken from the book "Foxhole Flicka"—a yarn about a colt born in the middle of an invasion in the South Pacific. A marine buys it for 10 bucks, takes care of it, and brings it to America. From there on, I ain't talkin'. . . . Frank Sinatra has one more picture for R. K. O. That's where Leo McCarey hangs his hat. With Frankie and Bing Crosby such close friends, I wonder why it wouldn't be a good idea to team these two, and have McCarey dream up a story for them and put it on the screen. No, fellows, no extra charge for suggestions. . . . Shirley Temple, the darling of the press and magazines ever since she made her debut in pictures, is going exclusive for her wedding. I'm told only Life and Look will be allowed to take photographs of the bride.

Exclude Him in Again

You've got to admit Sam Goldwyn's plan to put Danny Kaye into a musical version of the life of Hans Christian Andersen is smart showmanship. I asked him why he didn't do a musical about Marco Polo. It's a natural for Kaye. . . . Joan Crawford's luncheon with her ex-boss and friend, Louis B. Mayer will bear fruit—and watching. Joan's reading the script of "Drivin' Woman." And—hold onto your hats—Clark Gable may do it with her. That combination would set the town back on its heels and make more millions for Metro. Their pictures never failed. . . . Charles Bickford has taken a new lease on life since playing in "Song of Bernadette." Before that he used to raise pigs. Now he's gone up in the animal kingdom—He's breeding race horses. . . . The town is much duller since the Cheever Cowdins left for New York. Cheever takes a quick business trip to London, but they'll be back here for Christmas. . . . R. K. O. couldn't finish the script on time for the Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald musical, so the whole thing's washed out. But they'll probably do a musical version of "Reunion in Vienna" at Metro. . . . Rudy Vallee canceled an interview with a well-known columnist on the grounds that he had to save his voice. . . . Ann Richards gets the lead in Hal Wallis' "Love Lies Bleeding," and Hal hopes to pry Van Heflin away from Metro for the important part opposite her. Ever notice how Hal loves "Love" in his titles?

Won't Give Up, It Seems

Paramount is soon going to run out of star names in order to break down Alan Ladd. First it was Gary Cooper, now it's Van Heflin who's rumored for Alan's part in "California" opposite Betty Hutton. I wonder if the studio knows that Betty's doctor warned her she musn't work for six months. It was an army doctor in Paris who ordered her home and wouldn't let her go to Germany. She was too run down. . . . Bette Davis' next will be "One Man's Street" by Rita Weiman. . . . Charles Laughton's classic remark to Helen Broderick while rehearsing "Because of Him" is worth repeating. She asked him why he always dropped his suspenders while rehearsing. Said Charles, "It's just like you women letting your hair down." . . . I have a letter from Moss Hart saying he's changed his mind again and won't come west. . . . Louis B. Mayer was angelic to his grandsons, and as a result he's got the worst case of sunburn on record. They introduced him to fishing.

Lonely Hearts

I wonder if Anne Baxter won't pick up her romance with John Hodiak when they begin "A Lonely Journey." . . . Ezra Stone [Henry Aldrich to you] will be a papa again in six months. His wife, Sarah Seegar, acted also. Ezra sails for overseas duty any day to give the boys some good entertainment. . . . Laraine Day's mother was standing on a street corner in Westwood the other day waiting for a bus. Other people were waiting too, but when the bus came in sight, the crowd moved to the other corner. She moved with them, thinking that was where it would stop. The bus went on, and she discovered she was in the picket line at 20th Century Fox. . . . Charles Kemper wishes that Fritz Lang wouldn't be so realistic. Charley had to do a guzzling scene in "Scarlet Street." Usually you get only cold tea to guzzle on the screen. But Fritz served real beer, and before the scene was over, they had to send to the commissary for pots of hot coffee. . . . Otto Kruger gave the entire doll collection of his daughter, Ottilie, to the Assistance league. The dolls were collected all over the world, but her New York apartment is too small to house them, so they'll be auctioned off here. . . . Joe Schenck gave his box at the opening of Hollywood park to some friends, but at the last minute Joe decided to show up. His "friends" said, "O, sorry Joe, there's no room for you." He replied, "O. k. I'll find another seat." And he did.

Thru the Looking Glass

If you think there's even a slender chance that your soldier overseas may still be there when Christmas rolls around you'd better do your mailing right now. If he's in transit during the holiday season chances are the boxes may never catch up to him, or if they do, will be as battered as Berlin. Let him get them in his own hands as early as possible so he'll have them, no matter where he is on the big day.

Remember, too, that this will be the most trying Christmas he's ever had if he's stuck over there; restlessness and loneliness will reach new heights among the men who are just waiting to be shipped. So make your gifts gay. The postoffice will be glad to accept them before the deadline, which is Oct. 1 for gifts to be mailed to the Pacific and CBI areas, Oct. 15 for the European bases.

Uncle Sam, as you know, supplies the necessities of life, but not the luxuries, and among these toiletries rate higher than anything else you are permitted to send. Soap, in particular, with shaving preparations, deodorants, and refreshing colognes trailing, is on many lists submitted by the boys.

They won't want la-de-dah stuff. Stick to clean, straightforward fragrances that are keyed to masculine tastes. In soap, which ships well, you can find any number of scents men will like—spice, pine, lavender, or the special blends that have been created just for men. The same is true of after shave lotions and the good colognes.

Think of hair preparations, too. One of the most popular gifts we hit upon for men overseas was a cream dressing for hair that had been dried out, unbrushed, and perhaps even unshampooed during months of battle duty. The boys loved it.

Women's Unit Hears Story of War Fund Aims

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE

Two hundred workers of the women's special gifts division of the Community and War Fund left the Grand ballroom of the Drake hotel following yesterday's luncheon resolved to fill their personal quotas toward raising the committee's goal of $330,000 before the general campaign opens Oct. 1.

The details were explained by Mrs. Otto Madlener, chairman of the division with Mrs. Philip D. Block Jr. as co-chairman; Walter P. Paepcke, general chairman of the entire drive, and Robert E. Coburn, director of the Community and War Fund. But the inspiration was provided by Larry Adler, harmonica virtuoso, said to have given more hours to USO tours overseas than any other entertainer. He sketched an unforgettable picture of the accomplishments of that service, one of 187 charities and other war agencies supported by the fund.

Mr. Adler told of taking part in a USO show in New Guinea which 7,500 service men had sat thru six hours of torrential rains to see, armed with two sets of K rations. The feminine performers, he said, had to be carried thru the downpour from their tents to the stage to protect their evening gowns. Both Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Eisenhower told Mr. Adler when he met them on separate occasions that the USO shows were an invaluable link with home for the men overseas.

According to its directors, the current campaign will be the last federated drive of the Community and War Fund, and the contributions collected this fall must cover a period of 15 months, extending thru Dec. 31, 1946. Increased operating costs for the charities supported and the great numbers of service personnel remaining overseas who must be given recreation are two other factors which figure strongly in the fund's overall goal of $13,040,700.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Girl Engineer

She never had been far from home—had never been in an airplane. A little more than a year ago she left Chicago for Texas by train and then took a plane for Balboa. Thus, Chicago-born Virginia Pochelski winged her way to a new and exciting career.

The job in engineering in the Canal Zone came about this way: While Virginia was taking regular college work she became interested in a government-sponsored summer course in drafting, engineering materials, and production methods. It was a 15 week intensive course given at Illinois Institute of Technology. At first she wasn't certain she had any aptitude for such technical training, but she was good in math and had a flair for drawing. By the end of the course she found herself well advanced toward being a "lady engineer."

For a while she worked in Chicago as draftsman for a valve manufacturing company—taking evening courses in metallurgy on the side, until the day she noticed a story in the White Collar Girl column about a Chicago girl who went to the Canal Zone in engineering work. It was a tempting tale! Remembering it, Virginia seized the next opportunity that came her way, packed a bulging suit case, and was Balboa-bound.

And Steaks!

Recently she has been home for a visit with her family but she leaves today for Balboa, where the girls go to work in informal cottons, stockings are a thing of the past, where the "Panama tan never fades, the moons are beautiful, and steaks are inches thick!"

Awaiting her is her job in topography and a cool furnished apartment which she shares with another white collar girl—and awaiting her is a small pet, called a gato-solo—a curious little animal with an unquenchable thirst for soft drinks.

After business hours the girls keep house and cook, with plenty of avocadoes on the menu, also plantains—a large banana which, fried, is a rich delicacy. But meal preparation is not much of a problem as each community has a club house where the young people congregate. There a restaurant is available, also a soda fountain, movie theater, bowling center, and a billiard room for their amusement. Life in the Canal Zone is not humdrum!

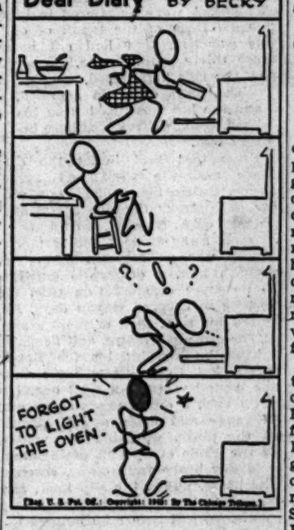
Another Christmas

One of the pleasures, Virginia tells, is swimming on Christmas day, a beautiful, warm day that makes an improvised Christmas tree seem strange indeed. Yet, had it not been for the tree last Christmas, the girls would have found it hard to be in a proper Yuletide mood.

"It was a bit mangy," Virginia recalls, "with not many needles left on it, but the girls and boys who live in our building decorated it with homemade paper chains, stars cut from cocoa cans, and small brightly wrapped pieces of candy."

After the tree was trimmed, gifts were exchanged, Christmas carols were sung—and then they all went swimming!

A most satisfactory way to celebrate the holidays, according to this slim, enthusiastic white collar girl who looks forward to her job and another Christmas in Balboa.



Newest Gloves Harmonize with Dress Fashions

BY REA SEEGER

Decorative handwork, such as fagoting, leather lacing, corde embroidery, and contrasting applique motifs makes the newest fall gloves unusually feminine and gives them a dressmaker look that harmonizes with the first dress fashions. Most of them are the long pull-on variety. They are worn wrinkled thickly around the wrists and can be worn over dress sleeve, suit jacket, or coat cuff, since the cuff sections of the gloves are unusual in shape and width. Soft suedes, slightly thicker than heavy satin or soft velvet, are used for the gloves in two and sometimes three colors which are cleverly combined in decorative motifs and then sewed together with a fagot stitch or with one color appliqued onto the others.

The scroll patterned cuffs have a cavalier romanticism, having been copied from the hunting and riding gloves of members of the French courts of the Louis period. Powder blue with brown, cerise with navy or with brown, gold with brown, and ivory with deep brown are a hint of what you'll find in the newest glove collections. Nearly all have been designed for afternoon dresses and early fall suits with fur trim. Heavily embroidered gloves of fine, smooth kid or suede easily double for afternoon or evening wear, with plenty of soft beige shades also featuring this newer, more decorative trim.

However, since many women still prefer fine glace leather, slipons of this smooth kidskin worked with the same sort of dressmaker details provide an excellent alternate choice. These, too, have the effective embroidery and hand stitchery that achieves such a distinctive feminine "look." Street shades, neutrals, and a few bright colors are available.

Orphanage Building Work at Lake Bluff Will Start This Fall

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Lake Bluff orphanage it was decided to break ground this fall for the first unit of a building which will house the dining hall, kitchens, and gymnasium, among other rooms. It will replace the 50 year old frame dining hall on the orphanage property. The decision to build was reached as a result of several large gifts recently made to the orphanage's 50th anniversary building and endowment fund.

John P. Landreth, chairman of the corporations gift committee, has obtained a gift of $25,000 from Gen. Robert E. Wood, and one of $10,000 from a corporation. Forrest N. Williams, chairman of the individuals gift committee, has turned in a gift of $10,000 from the Chicago Community Trust, and Mrs. Alden B. Swift of the board of directors and Rockwell F. Clancy, president of the board of trustees, have announced gifts of $25,000 each from two friends of the orphanage.

Oliver A. Blackburn is general chairman of the endowment fund.

FORCED TO KILL

The sound of the pistol shots held Bruce frozen for a moment, so unexpectedly had they broken the deep silence. He stepped to the door and looked in the direction from which he thought they had come.

His rifle he laid against the door jamb. He did not want to be hampered with it if trouble came quickly at close quarters. He did not draw his revolver yet, but the thumb hitched in the sagging belt was scarcely four inches from the butt of the weapon projecting from the pocket of his chaps.

Once more the stillness was shattered, this time by the whiplike reports of two rifles, much nearer than the pistol shots had been. Bruce heard the slap of running feet coming toward the house.

Bill Cairns burst round the corner of the shack and stopped with shocked alarm at sight of him. He jerked up his rifle and fired, almost from the hip. A fraction of a second later a revolver slug slammed into his belly. The big man gave a great gasp of pain. He half lifted the Winchester for another shot. The weapon clattered to the ground. The spread fingers of Cairns' hairy hands pressed in against his stomach. He lurched forward a step or two before his knees gave way and let the heavy body slump to the ground.

Bruce watched him, not moving from where he stood. A trickle of smoke rose from the barrel of the revolver in his hand. During the last brief seconds there had been no time for fear. Every sense had been keyed to intense concentration. He had to kill or be killed.

He became aware of somebody moving thru the brush a hundred yards from the cabin. As the crouched figure crossed an open spot he recognized Rod Randall.

Bruce shouted his name, and Rod came forward. He looked at the prone body and then at Sherrill.

"So you got him," he said.

"He didn't have a chance," Bruce explained. "When he showed up round the corner he wasn't expecting me. It startled him, and he fired too fast."

Rod looked down again at the outstretched figure. "Both your shots were bull's-eyes." On his grim face a sardonic smile showed. "Might have been me instead of him, the way I felt about you a month ago. It's an uncertain world. Then you were an infernal nuisance. Now you'll be the boy for this country's money. I'll say this, Sherrill. You're turning out quite a lad."

"Because I was forced in self-defense to kill a murderer?" Bruce shook his head. "Nothing to be proud of in that. I wish you had done it."

"I wish so too. I had a crack at him and missed. You landed solid both times. How in Mexico did you happen to show up here?"

Bruce explained. Before he had finished Rod interrupted. "I had forgotten. You had better light a shuck out of here, Sherrill. Quint Milroy is just over the hill."

"You're not kidding?" Bruce looked at him sharply.

"No. That's why I'm here. To bring him grub."

"Yes, I'd better go."

"Unless you would like to turn hunter." There was in Rod's eyes a gleam of impish mirth. "He has only a .45, and if you're careful you can pick him off with a rifle at no risk."

Coldly Bruce replied, "I'm not a murderer."

"He'd get you any way he could," Rod mentioned.

"My horse is back on the rim," Bruce said.

"If you hurry he won't know who was here until you've gone. Dust along."

Bruce showed no signs of haste, perhaps because the desire to get away fast was so strong in him. It hurt his pride to run away from any man, even tho he knew that a pistol duel with Milroy was unfair as it would be for him to shoot down the other with his rifle.

"Get going, you lunkhead," Rod snapped. "He'll be here soon."

"Be seeing you," Bruce said.

He retrieved his rifle and walked back to the fringe of bushes along the creek. By keeping close to the shrubbery he might reach the rim without being seen. There was one stretch of about 40 yards where he would have to come into the open, but by that time he would be near enough to his horse to reach it in spite of Milroy, if the man appeared in the pocket.

Bruce looked across at the twisted pines. A warning stirred in him sharply. Back of the trunk of one was someting that had not been there thirty minutes ago. He stopped, the rifle half raised.

The blast of a .45 sounded, and the hat was lifted from his head. Quint Milroy was here before him.

From that first bullet the distance and the wind had saved Bruce. Before he could move a second slug struck the rifle barrel and glanced off in ricochet. A cold anger brushed away all fear and scruples. Milroy was an assassin trying to ambush him, a desperado entitled to no more consideration than an Apache in covered wagon days. He raised his rifle, took deliberate aim at the crouched figure, and fired.

That he had hit his foe Bruce knew, but the chances were that the wound was not a fatal one. He drew back a dozen yards to be out of range and made a half circuit of the pines, watching the center of the circle every foot of the way.

Milroy broke from cover, reached the horse, pulled the slip knot, and swung to the saddle. He fired, body bent low, just before he jumped the cowpony to a gallop. He headed straight for Sherrill, evidently aware that if he tried to escape he would be a mark too plain for a good rifleman to miss. As he charged, his revolver barked again.

The man was less than 20 yards from Bruce when the rifle bullet tore thru him. His body slumped. The frightened horse swung away at a sharp angle, and the rider pitched out of the saddle at the feet of Bruce. Milroy gave a strangled cough, and his frame shrank in collapse. The killer had gone out to the sound of roaring guns, as so many of his victims had done.

Bruce followed his horse down into the pocket and found that Rod had caught the animal.

"You killed Milroy?" Randall asked.

"Yes." Bruce had fought down the wave of sickness. "I saw him back of one of the pines. He had to try a long shot. He knocked my hat off. I wounded him with a rifle shot and circled round to get him from behind. He made a break for it on my horse—came right at me, his gun blazing. I couldn't miss."

[Concluded Monday]

NOBODY KNEW when the silent killer might strike again. Desperate, Detective French waited, as suspense mounted to horrible intensity. You're good if you guess his solution in "BUMOB HAD IT," Christopher Hale's exciting new mystery starting in Monday's Tribune. Be sure to read it!

Should you have just a few thin slices of ham in your refrigerator, as I have right now, not enough for adequate servings of ham as ham, here's a company trick: Mash and season freshly cooked sweet potatoes and pile a fluff of them on each little slice of ham, arranged in a baking pan. Dot with a little margarine, brown in a 450 degree oven, and serve hot with white grape sauce poured over ham and sweets.

To make the white grape sauce, wash and stem seedless grapes, combine a cup of them with a cup of orange or pineapple pieces, add a cup of orange or pineapple juice, sweeten to taste, and thicken with a little cornstarch, not much more than a teaspoonful. This sauce also is good on ham when there's plenty of it for everybody. I often add a tablespoon of ham drippings to the sauce.

There are three kinds of spoilage which may occur in your canned goods: Fermentation, flat sour, and putrefaction. Fermentation usually occurs in fruits, jams, or jellies where there is a high proportion of sugar, and insufficient cooking. It is caused by the action of yeasts upon the sugar. Fermented fruits won't poison you, but nobody wants to eat them.

Flat sour can be detected easily by cloudiness in a home canned vegetable, and by a sour taste. It is unappetizing, but won't hurt you if you should taste it. To prevent flat sour, use only fresh vegetables in canning and don't let the jars of food sit around between pre-cooking and processing. Flat sour is the result of careless canning.

Putrefaction is real spoilage, and occurs most often in nonacid foods not processed long enough or at a high enough temperature. Corn, peas, green beans, and meats are the commonest offenders. Usually there is a foul odor and discoloration. This kind of spoilage can cause food poisoning. Moral: Use the pressure cooker for all nonacid vegetables.

A baked cheese cake is a tricky dessert, one which must be made and baked carefully. But a jellied cheese cake is simple.

Orange Cheese Cake

[Serves six]

1 envelope [tablespoon] plain gelatin
¼ cup orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, separated
⅓ cup honey or corn syrup
1 cup orange juice
1 cup sieved cottage cheese
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup cream or evaporated milk, whipped
1 cup crushed cornflakes
¼ cup melted butter
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Soften gelatin in the ¼ cup juice. Beat egg yolk slightly, add honey, salt, and the cup of juice. Cook in the top of a double boiler to a custard consistency, stirring constantly. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add cheese, lemon juice, and orange rind. Chill until partly thickened, then fold in whipped cream or milk and stiffly beaten egg white. Mix cornflakes with butter, sugar, and cinnamon and place half in bottom of small glass casserole. Turn in cheese filling, sprinkle rest of crumbs on top and chill until firm. Unmold on serving dish and garnish with orange sections.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Stuffed Onions

[Serves six]

6 medium onions
1 cup milk
4 tablespoons margarine
1 cup fresh or canned corn
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cheese, grated
1 small can asparagus tips
Sprinkling of paprika

Remove skin and centers from onions. Drop into boiling salted water and cook until slightly tender, about 5 minutes. Heat milk and margarine in saucepan, add corn, salt, and pepper and heat thru. Drain onions and place in shallow pan with small amount of water. In center of each onion sprinkle grated cheese, place 3 asparagus tips, and fill with corn mixture. Sprinkle top with remaining cheese and paprika. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 10 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Serve immediately. MRS. E. DOBRICK,

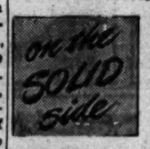
Pen Friend: Slack Up on V-Mail Love

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

When the fellows are far away and all that keeps a gal in touch with them is an occasional letter scrawled just before lights-out or a hasty V-mail knocked out in a hurry, a gal is likely to get dewy eyed and sentimental over almost any fellow who thinks enough of her to drop her a note in one of those envelopes marked "free" in the corner. It may be because of the lack of dateable young fellows about town, or it may be because a gal is feeling like a character out of a magazine story, but often she lets her pen run away with her and builds up a situation that's hard to cope with when the boys come marching home.



Here's one such young thing with her sad tale:

"I was writing to a distant cousin of mine who is a Seabee. I wrote him long and cheerful letters often, and he appreciated it so much that he introduced me, via the mails, to his buddy. His buddy had read all my letters and wanted me to write to him, too. He began writing and eventually I started to answer. He writes very chummy letters and says that as soon as he comes home his first stop will be to see me. Now I don't know whether to see him or not. My cousin says he's bringing this fellow home with him when he comes back, so we'll finally be formally introduced. But there's one more complication. My cousin says that he loves me, but so does his buddy. Things get more complicated with every letter."

That's the same old, sad story. Just because a fellow is away from home and lonely, he's willing to trade his V-mail for some fe-mail, and if the exchange is a little on the amorous side, he won't complain. It's something to while away his lonely evenings and makes good talk with his friends. But he probably doesn't stop at talk.

Your cousin was generous enough to share your letters and he's probably still doing it, and reading your letters to his buddy in return. So take it easy on the love talk. You haven't even met this fellow yet, so it's a little hard to tell if this is one of those moonlight-and-roses affairs. Slack up on the amours, keep your letters to both nothing but friendly, and they'll begin to get the idea. Otherwise you may have a lot of fast talking to do when the boys get home!

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"My doctor says smoked fish shouldn't be eaten without further cooking. What do you advise?"

Mildly smoked fish hasn't been sufficiently cooked and isn't ready to eat. It is perishable and should be stored and cooked as fresh fish. Hard smoked and kiln cooked fish are thoroly cooked from the heat of smoking and are ready to eat. They may also be used in fresh fish recipes by first soaking in a water and vinegar solution for 30 minutes.

"Is it necessary to peel peaches before canning them?"

No, but most people prefer peeled peaches, and it's more convenient to skin them at the time they are canned.

"May banana peppers be pickled the same as green peppers?"

Yes. Wash 1 dozen peppers or enough to fill a quart jar when prepared. Cut off tops, remove seeds, cut into rings, drop into boiling water, and let stand for 5 minutes. Remove peppers, drop into cold water, and let stand 10 minutes. Drain, pack into a sterilized jar, and cover with sirup made by boiling together for 15 minutes 1 quart vinegar and 2 cups sugar.

"Can self-sealing lids which were not used last year be used this year?"

Yes. But once used lids may not be reused since the sealing compound around the edge of the lid will not be effective the second time.

For answers to your cooking questions call or write Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, Superior 0200. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with mail requests.

Wise Leniency with Sick Child Is Not Harmful

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Many mothers, even of little children, are really afraid to be indulgent when their children are ill. They seem to think this is bad for them and will result in their being spoiled when they recover.

I am afraid I lean rather strongly toward leniency where an ill child is concerned. While, of course, it is possible to overwhelm a child with petting and indulgence when he is sick or convalescing, I do not believe that giving him extra consideration, diversion, and a great deal more patience really harms his personality. I believe he is entitled to these things to help him over a bad spot, and that this kind of treatment can be given without a harmful degree of sympathy and hovering.

When adults stress so much the fact that if a child is indulged when he is sick, he is going to misbehave badly when he is well and carry over a wilful and demanding attitude, they do not take into consideration the fact that when a child gets well his attitude changes because his life becomes very different. He is able to be active; he is free from pain; and his whole outlook becomes normal again. He is then almost certain to fall back into normal ways of behavior. Where this is not so a wise mother gradually can bring it about.

In a recent letter a mother writes about her small boy who has just had an operation and is now a little difficult to manage, has what seems like tantrums over such things which previously did not disturb him, bites and scratches other little runabouts of his own age. She fears that all this behavior is attributable to her little boy's illness and convalescence when she was indulgent with him, and even thinks now that she should not have been lenient with him even then.

If some of this behavior, such as the tantrums, is due to the aftermath of illness, it will pass if ignored. The biting and slapping of tiny children by each other is a phase they go thru. Occasionally biting of anybody and anything is inspired by teething. All this mother needs to do is to find things which interest and divert her little boy and use sensible methods of managing him.

GEORGE PREDICTS 5 BILLION CUT IN FEDERAL TAXES

Individuals, Businesses Would Benefit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—Hope for a slash in individual income tax rates of about 15 per cent beginning Jan. 1 was held out today by Sen. George [D., Ga.] chairman of the senate finance committee.

Sen. George

Total tax reduction in 1946 of 2½ to 3 billion dollars in payments from individuals and 2 billion dollars in corporation taxes were predicted by George at a press conference. He said he also hoped for elimination of some excise taxes, such as that on furs.

George told reporters the joint tax committee of congress planned to meet next week with Treasury Secretary Vinson and other treasury officials to plan a "transitional" tax bill which would contain tax cuts for 1946, in accordance with President Truman's recommendation yesterday of "limited" cuts for next year.

Quick Action Sought

George said he was certain congressional committees and treasury experts would agree on individual tax cuts proportionate to, or greater than, reductions in corporate taxes.

"We have to move fast," George said, "because changes in rate tables must be in the hands of the treasury by November. Therefore, I favor a horizontal cut in all individual rates as the simplest approach to the problem, altho others may think differently."

George's suggestion that the reduction in individual taxes would be 2½ to 3 billion dollars would indicate a 15 per cent cut, a figure based on estimated total collections for 1945 of slightly more than 16 billion dollars.

No Reduction This Year

According to the plan outlined by George, there would be no reduction in taxes on this year's individual incomes. The cuts he predicted would take effect the first of next year, reducing the amount of money deducted from pay envelopes for taxes.

George said he hoped the emergency tax bill would eliminate excess profits taxes and capital stock levies on corporations. Money lost to the government by ending the excess profits tax would be partially made up thru surtaxes on corporate income, he said.

The new bill, George said, should fix a date for the termination of the war, for tax purposes only, so that many luxury and other excise taxes could be dropped. Most such taxes are to end six months after the termination of hostilities is declared.

ACID THROWER GETS DIVORCE FROM 2D SPOUSE

Mrs. Bernice Malah, 38, of 1216 Astor st., former wife of the late Darby Day Jr., son of a wealthy Chicago business man, yesterday was granted a divorce from Peter Malah, 45, manager of an insurance office, by Judge Edwin A. Robson in Superior court. The woman was sentenced to prison in California in 1925 for throwing acid at Day, then her husband.

Questioned by Benjamin H. Ehrlich, her attorney, Mrs. Malah testified that her husband had struck, kicked, and slapped her on five occasions. She received a $3,000 settlement and agreed to relinquish claims to a $40,000 collection of antiques assembled by her husband.

Mrs. Malah was sentenced to a term of 1 to 14 years for the acid throwing but was paroled after serving nearly two years. Day divorced her in 1926 while she still was in San Quentin prison. He died Feb. 4, 1929, in a Santa Monica [Cal.] sanitarium.

ORDERS MENTAL TEST FOR NURSE IN KNIFE ATTACK

A psychiatric examination of Mrs. Bernadine Embree, 37, of 6405 Dorchester av., a nurse who was freed by a jury in 1934 of a charge of murdering a policeman, was ordered yesterday by Judge Frank E. Donoghue in Woman's court, where she appeared on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Judge Donoghue set her bond at $100 and continued the hearing to Sept. 20.

Detective John Hannon of the Woodlawn station showed the court an 18 inch knife which, he said, she used to attack her husband, William, 36, a machinist, Thursday morning in their home. Her husband was cut on the knee and taken to Norwegian-American hospital.

Mrs. Embree was found not guilty of the murder of Policeman Louis Kolb of the Chicago Lawn station in 1934. She pleaded self-defense in the shooting, which occurred in a parked car on the south side.

Sept. 8—Battle of the King's Mill

THE battle of the King's Mill, fought on the western approaches to Mexico City on Sept. 8, 1847, was one of those victories of which it has been said that no army could allow itself to win many. It resulted in losses that the already outnumbered and badly battered American army ill could afford.

The King's Mill was the name of a row of low stone buildings about two and one-half miles west of Mexico City. Gen Winfield Scott, who had led his American army of some 8,000 men to the environs of the city after a successful landing near Vera Cruz six months before, believed that cannon needed by the Mexicans for the defense of their capital were being forged in the mill.

As soon as the dawn light was bright enough to enable the Americans to see the mill, they opened fire with 24 pound siege guns. There was no return fire.

It was believed by the Americans that the position had been abandoned. Accordingly the bombardment was cut short and a detachment of 500 soldiers ordered to advance. Quickly the mill erupted with flame and shot as the concealed Mexicans opened fire. Eleven out of 14 American officers fell. The column broke. The Mexicans burst out of their position and attacked.

Now the Americans threw everything they could muster into the fray. Heroic charges, accurate artillery fire, and determined close in fighting won both the mill and another strong Mexican position close by.

"A sad mistake" was the way one American officer characterized the battle. Only a few cannon moulds were found in the mill. American losses, out of about 3,300 men actually engaged, were approximately 800. However, the Mexicans lost perhaps 2,700 out of about 10,000 engaged and the battle may have facilitated the capture of Mexico City, which occurred six days later and virtually ended the war.

At the time his appointment was announced, Robert Bean was in Sullivan, Moultrie county, to attend the funeral of his father, who will be buried at 4 p. m. today alongside the body of his wife, Margaret, who died two years ago.

TAFT SEEKS JOB BILL CHANGES TO HELP INDUSTRY

U. S. Spending No Depression Cure-All

BY PHILIP DODD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7—Warning that government spending is not a cure-all for depressions, Sen. Taft [R., O.] today proposed the administration's so called full employment bill be amended to require sound federal financial policies to encourage private enterprise.

"My goal is the same as that of the sponsors of this measure—full employment," Taft told reporters in announcing his amendments. "But their method, that of continued deficit financing to provide jobs, is likely to produce depression and inflation."

Provisions of Bill

The bill would empower the President to prepare an annual "national budget" for the ensuing year estimating the size of the labor force and the number of jobs that planned private spending would produce. The bill's sponsors say that the "job budget" would enable congress to determine whether private business can give work to all employable persons and, if not, how many supplemental jobs must be provided on public works projects.

Major changes in the bill suggested by Taft were:

1. A statement that it is the policy of the United States to see that all Americans have the opportunity to obtain work if they desire it. This would replace the bill's provision that every one has a right to a job, and that opportunity shall be given for that right to be exercised.

Seeks Sound Plans

2. A statement that it is the federal government's responsibility to pursue consistent economic programs and sound plans for federal spending which will "stimulate and encourage the highest feasible levels of employment opportunities, preferably thru employment by private and other nonfederal employers."

3. Clearer definition of the "work budget" to be submitted to congress by the President, on which plans for federal public works would be based. The amendment would increase the types of statistical information to be supplied, such as farm prices, wage levels, and cost of living.

4. Provision for a director of the work budget, to be confirmed by the senate.

5. Reduction of the President's power, requiring him to submit all proposals under the bill to congress.

Calls Theory Unsound

6. A provision authorizing the census bureau to collect all information on the size of the labor force and unemployment for the work budget.

A flurry of statements from administration senators followed announcement of Taft's amendments, which were proposed at a closed session of the senate banking committee. Sen. Murray [D., Mont.], the bill's sponsor, said Taft's suggestions were "undesirable" and particularly criticized the proposal to limit the President's powers under the bill.

Chairman Wagner [D., N. Y.] of the banking committee complained that Taft's changes "confuse the issue."

WARD'S APPEAL FILED WITH U. S. SUPREME COURT

An appeal from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals' 2 to 1 decision of last June was filed yesterday by Montgomery Ward & Co. before the United States Supreme court in Washington, D. C., asking for a review of that decision and a declaration that the government seizure of Ward properties in Chicago and eight other cities was invalid.

The appeals court decision had reversed an earlier decision by Judge Philip L. Sullivan in federal District court, who found the directive issued by the late President Roosevelt calling for the seizure of Ward property by the army was illegal.

No developments were reported yesterday by Ward officials or army officers regarding the return of the seized property to its owners, despite an order issued by President Truman directing the army to relinquish control.

ARMY CANCELS HUGE CONTRACT FOR CIGARETS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The army announced today termination of all contracts for cigarets.

It had contracted for 163,135,000 packs of cigarets, valued at $8,156,750, for delivery during the remainder of 1945. At the same time the army cut back contracts for chewing gum, cereals, and cornstarch and terminated contracts for peanuts and chili con carne.

The contract termination for peanuts covered 20,000,000 half pound packages valued at $3,500,000. Contracts for September delivery of breakfast cereals were reduced by 13,000,000 pounds. The commitments for cornstarch, which were terminated, called for 742,500 pounds.

The terminated contracts for gum covered 20,000,000 packages valued at $600,000 and for chili con carne 6,617,702 pounds valued at $1,200,000.

IF WORK CAN DO IT, HOOSIERS WILL BE READY

Michigan, Sept. 22, Is First Foe

BY WILFRID SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 7—Indiana university's football players may not be so rugged as last year when the Hoosiers won seven and lost three games, but two practice sessions today totaling nearly five hours, showed they are working diligently to get ready for the opening game with Michigan in Ann Arbor Sept. 22. The Hoosiers have practiced twice each day since Monday and the program can be maintained, if Coach A. N. [Bo] McMillin wishes, until after the Michigan engagement since classes are not in session.

Bo McMillin

The adjective "rugged" is a favorite with the veteran Indiana coach, whose vocabulary is picturesque. The Hoosiers' 1944 team, despite a shortage of replacements, was exceedingly rugged as Michigan undoubtedly remembers. Indiana tromped on the Wolverines 20 to 0 and the whitewashing was more irritating than the Hoosiers' three touchdowns. That defeat didn't eliminate Michigan from the Western conference race—Ohio State did that in the climactic final game, but the Wolverines seldom forget any defeat let alone a shutout by McMillin's "pore little boys."

Starters Will Be Veterans

With reason, Indiana fears the opening contest at Michigan. That debut will be followed with visits to Northwestern and Illinois. Thus, Indiana plays three-fifths of its Big Nine schedule by Oct. 6, one week before Minnesota opens conference competition.

Indiana will have a veteran starting eleven which will be supported largely by freshmen. The varsity personnel has been weakened by loss of Bob Hoernschemeyer, forward passing star who now is at the United States Naval academy; Jack Tavener, center, who has been graduated, and last season's freshman full backs, George Sundheim and Harry Jagade, who are in service. Immediate problems are:

1. Loss of John Cannady by injury for an indefinite period.
2. Filling the center position vacated by Tavener, a task in any season since John played four years and captained the team in 1943 and 1944.
3. Probable loss of freshman material to the draft. Eight are vulnerable and five of these report Monday for physical examinations. In addition, Bob Ravensberg, regular left end for two years, who currently is 4-F, also has been called Monday for reexamination.

Cannady is Indiana's best player. In 1943 at quarter back he gained 119 yards on 32 rushes, scored 18 points, and caught 22 forward passes for total gain of 165 yards. A leg injury caused McMillin to shift him to guard [he backed up the line on defense] for the 1944 campaign. Cannady again has an injured leg, and while he may be able to start the game at Michigan, there is no assurance how many minutes he can play this year.

Pair Ready to Take Job

Bill Armstrong, sophomore letter man, and Chester Sanders, 185 pounder from Brazil, Ind., who received a varsity letter in 1943, are replacements for Cannady. Last fall Sanders played at Auburn.

Bob Meyer, a sophomore, who played occasionally at guard last season; Allen Horn, another letter man, and Francis Oleksk, 180 pound freshman from North Tonawanda, N. Y., are the center candidates.

George Taliaferro, big, fast freshman from Roosevelt High school, Gary, is in the group reporting for draft examination. If this Negro youngster is lost—he is a fine tail back prospect—McMillin's personnel problem will become acute.

Two 220 Pound Frosh Tackles

Indiana has a pair of 220 pound freshman tackles to add to the group of veteran linemen. Both are from South Bend and are Jerry Morrical, Central High school graduate, and John Goldsberry of John Adams High school, where his father, Lon, was coach.

Corp. Russell Deal, guard on Indiana's 1941 and 1942 teams, has returned from service. Capt. Charles Anderson of the army air forces, who saw action in the European theater, also has matriculated after discharge from service. He is a guard or tackle and formerly played at Evansville college.

Joe Sowinski and Frank Ciolli, guards; Dick Deranek, right half back, and Ben Raimondi, quarter back, are other veterans on the first eleven.

McCormick Plans Early Return to Gopher Post

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 7 (AP)—Lt. Col. Frank McCormick expects to return soon to his post as athletic director of the University of Minnesota, he said today.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD

LUKE SEWELL sums up the wild American league pennant scramble thus: "There isn't a club of the eight which can't be beaten four straight by any other club, regardless of their respective standings at the time." . . . Ryder cup golf competition will be resumed in 1946, probably in England. . . . Stars and Stripes, the GI daily, recently printed the major league standings upside down. . . . "That," explained the editor, "is to give the Philadelphia fans a break." . . . Charley Metro, young Athletics outfielder, calls Connie Mack "the best outfielder in the American league." . . . "We were playing Detroit recently," Metro explains, "and because I had played with Doc Cramer I figured I knew just where to be when he came to bat. . . . On looking toward the bench, however, I saw Mr. Mack waving me over. I moved over 20 feet and looked again. Mr. Mack was waving me over still farther. . . . I figured he was 100 per cent wrong, but on the first pitch Doc lined the ball right at me and I took it without moving a step." . . . Those who are worrying about the possibility of either the Japanese or Germans being invited to the 1948 Olympic games should remember that in 1940 Belgium failed to invite Germany, and France, host to the games in 1924, was equally cold to her former enemies. . . . In the last 20 seasons no National league batting champion has repeated the following year and the jinx will last at least thru 1945, as Dixie Walker, 1944 winner of the crown, is out of contention. . . . No branch of athletics has suffered more from the war than the high school coaching profession. . . . At a recent coaching clinic in Texas 20 vacancies were posted. . . .

Just in case you were wondering, following is a list of the ring champions of the world as of now: Heavyweight—Joe Louis, whose title is frozen until he returns to civilian life. . . . Light heavyweight—Gus Lesnevich, now in the coast guard, also protected by the freeze. . . . Middleweight—Tony Zale, still in the navy, also protected. . . . Welterweight—Freddy Cochrane, who is a civilian again and due, most critics believe, to lose his crown any day. . . . Lightweight—Take your choice between Ike Williams, the N. B. A. candidate, and Bob Montgomery, recognized in New York. . . . Featherweight—Sol Bartolo is recognized by the N. B. A., while New York state supports the claims of Willie Pep. . . . Bantamweight—Manuel Ortiz, recently discharged from the army, who is said to be ready to abandon his title. . . . Flyweight—Jackie Paterson of Scotland. . . . Some one suggested that the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league might go to Honolulu for spring training in 1946. . . . Imagine that in sunny California, where they are trying to sell the state as a major league conditioning ground.

Flowers to the Living

When I am gone I do not care
How many flowers are sent,
Because without a single bloom
I still shall lie content.

That ever came my way.

An open car bedecked with wreaths
Will bring no joy to me,
And so in preference I'd choose
One flower that I can see.

McSPADEN SETS PACE IN DALLAS OPEN WITH 137

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 7 (AP)—Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Sanford, Me., maintained his sub-par play in the Dallas Open golf tournament today to set the pace at the half-way mark with a total of 137.

McSpaden had a three under par 69 today to go with the 68 he used yesterday when he tied Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., for the first round lead. Sam Snead was closest to McSpaden with 139, followed by Vic Ghezzi and Johnny Bulla, 140, and Hogan and Byron Nelson, 142.

EIGHTH PLACE A'S DEFEAT SOX TWICE, 4-3, 9-2

Lopat, Dietrich Are Mound Victims

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 7—The weary White Sox suffered a blackout or something in the ninth inning of the front half of a double header this afternoon and they don't have much recollection of what happened from then on. All that is definite is that the official scorer has figures to prove that Chicagoans were nosed out by the eighth place Athletics in the first affair and that a seven run inning atomized James Dykes' boys a bit later in the day. The scores were 4 to 3 and 9 to 2.

The first game looked like such a cinch behind Ed Lopat's southpawing that Boss Dykes felt it safe to withdraw some of his regulars with the Sox ahead 3 to 1. But Center Fielder Bill Mueller, one of the reliefmen sent into action, dropped a fly ball at the start of the ninth inning and later committed a fumble. In the meantime the Athletics had thumped Lopat for three hits. And the Chicago southpaw, mind you, had been good enough to keep even one runner from passing second base for seven innings.

Bill Helps the Winners

The second game was a 2 to 2 affair between Bill Dietrich and Charley Gassaway, the lefty, for six innings, but then became a matter of utter confusion for everybody wearing a Dykes badge. Dietrich did his part in the seven run debacle by yielding as many hits as well as a pass. However, he might have held the damage to more modest proportions if his mates hadn't gotten the spirit of the occasion. They kicked in with three errors, two by Le Roy Schalk and the other by Tony Cuccinello, who helped his No. 1 batting average in the first game, but did it nothing but harm in the other affair.

One of several reasons for the quick withdrawal of Bowles in the first game was a double with which Moses opened the argument. He had to wait until after two were out before getting any attention from his mates. It came in the form of Curtright's single, on which he scored. Curtright scored when Cuccinello doubled in the wake of a pass to Appling.

Connelly Lends a Hand

The initial incident in the fifth inning was a pass tendered Moses by Connelly. After two were out, Curtright singled and Connelly quickly found a preventative for more hits. He simply walked Appling and Cuccinello, forcing Moses to score.

When Estalella doubled in the eighth and advanced on Siebert's out he became the first to reach third against Lopat. A moment later he became the first to score, the ride coming from Kell's single. Then Rookie Mueller dropped Busch's fly to open the ninth and the Athletics didn't overlook the opening. Pinch Batter Mayo Smith singled and was forced by Hall, Busch scoring. Peck and McGhee also singled, Hall scoring the tying run and Peck taking third on Mueller's fumble of McGhee's hit. He scored the winning run on Siebert's fly to Curtright.

Dietrich Gets Wild

Dickshot mixed a single with some passes issued by Gassaway in the first inning of the second game and a run resulted. Dietrich got the pass fever in the next inning and two runs blossomed. Estalella walked and Siebert singled. Rosar walked, loading the bases, and Busch doubled, driving in two of his mates. Then the Sox tied it at 2-all in the third on Appling's triple and Cuccinello's fly.

Three Dots Top Pick Today in Hawthorne Speed Stakes

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

J. Howard Rouse's Three Dots, winner of the $20,000 added Chicago handicap at Washington Park last week, will carry top impost of 128 pounds today in the 10th running of the $10,000 Hawthorne Speed handicap, a six furlong stake which has attracted 17 overnight entries.

Three Dots' principal contention is expected to come from Ben Endovina's Harmony Now, Hyman Friedberg's Harriet Sue, and Mrs. V. E. Smith's Sirius, which finished second to Herbert M. Woolf's Signator in the 1944 running. Another entrant which likes the Stickney strip but which fared none too well during the recent Arlington-Washington Park meeting, is A. S. Higgins' Quizzle.

Fighting Step in $3,000 Race

The race, for which there were 24 original entries will be worth $8,725 to the winner if a dozen of the 17 overnight candidates go postward. The Speed handicap is listed as the seventh of nine races.

The winner of the American Derby at Washington Park, the Murlogg farm's Fighting Step, is entered in the eighth race, a $3,000 handicap at a mile and one sixteenth, which has drawn seven entrants next best of which is Galaprox.

Hawthorne opened its 32 day fall meeting yesterday before a crowd estimated at 10,000. The pari-mutuel handle was $782,367.

Fire Dust Wins Feature

Mrs. Emil Denemark's Fire Dust, a 5 year old son of Firethorn ridden by Georgie South, won the inaugural feature, the $3,000 Stickney purse. Fire Dust scored by a nose over the favorite, Brody and Brody's Black Pepper, with Steve Brooks up, in a photo finish which also caught F. M. Harris' Diderod and J. W. Rodgers' Diavolaw in the lens. Diderod took the show.

Eight horses started, and the winner paid $9.20, $3.40, and $3. Black Pepper returned $3.20 and $2.40. Diderod paid $3.60 to show. Fire Dust's time was 1:18, three-fifths of a second slower than Talked About's track record.

A couple of well supported thorobreds accounted for the first two races and a $23.80 daily double. Mikel & Elrod's Flaming Chance, ridden by J. C. Posada, won the opener at $9 after which J. C. Henderson's Paloma Linda scored at $7.80 under a strong ride by George South.

Twins, 17, Win First Sailing Series Race

Robert White, 17, with his twin sister, Betty, as crew, both from the Balboa [Cal.] Yacht club, yesterday won the opening race of the 10th annual Snipe class international championship series, sailed off Montrose harbor under auspices of the Chicago Corinthian Yacht club. Young Skipper White and his sister, June graduates of the Hoover High school at Balboa, defeated 15 other crews from as many fleets.

The crews were chosen after eliminations in their local fleets and represent the best sailors of the 6,000 Snipe class sloops in fleets scattered thruout the world. The Snipes, all alike, are 15½ feet long.

Chicagoan Is Third

The six mile race was sailed in a light southeast breeze. Doll, the Chicago Corinthian Snipe, sailed by the Whites, covered the triangular course in 1 hour 26 minutes and 31 seconds. Ted Wells, from the Wichita [Kas.] Sailing club, was first to finish in 1:25:07, but was disqualified by the race committee for a port tack start.

John Hayward, from the Clear Lake Snipe club, Davenport, Ia., was runner up, in 1:27:40, and Ken Schmid, from the Chicago fleet, placed third in 1:27:52.

Junior Event Postponed

The first race for the national junior championship of the Snipe class, in which the Whites also are entered, was called off yesterday morning after the sloops drifted past the 2½ hour time limit without finishing. This race will be re-sailed this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The second and final junior event also will be held today, following the second race for the international

CARDINALS BEAT BRAVES, 3-0, AND PICK UP A GAME

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7 (AP)—Pitcher George Dockins held the Boston Braves to three hits tonight as the second place St. Louis Cardinals scored their third victory in the four game series, 4 to 0.

St. Louis, striving desperately to win the National league pennant so it can defend its world series crown against the champs of the American league, now is four games behind the pacesetting Chicago Cubs.

It was Dockins' eighth victory of the season. Bob Logan, the losing pitcher, yielded the winners three runs before he was relieved. It was his 11th defeat of the year.

In the first inning lead-off batter Lou Klein smashed out a double and then scored on George Kurowski's single. In the third Dick Culler fumbled Emil Verban's grounder and Buster Adams and Kurowski scored. The Cardinals added another run in the eighth.

BY EDWARD BURNS

The Cubs derived slight comfort yesterday from the baseball saw which says, "You can't win 'em all" as they were forced to end their five game winning streak with a 2 to 0 shutout at the hands of Salvador Maglie and the Giants. The Cubs never before had laid eyes on this here Maglie, a recent importation from the Jersey City Giants.

Salvador yielded six hits, two each by Stan Hack and Regino Otero and one each by Mickey Livingston and Harry Lowrey. He struck out eight, getting Lennie Merullo three times. Bill Nicholson on his first two trips to the plate, Hank Wyse once, Pinch Batter Johnny Moore in the ninth, and Dewey Williams, who struck out with runners on third and first to end the game.

Wyse went all the way in his fifth failure in quest of his 19th victory. Hank also pitched a six hitter, and walked no one. But there's nothing a pitcher can do when his team makes no runs. It was the fifth blanking the Cubs have experienced this year, and the second at the hands of the Giants.

Get Run Without Hit

The Giant run which would have been enough to give them their 10th decision of the year over the Cubs, was made without the aid of a base hit. With one out in the third inning, Johnny Rucker was safe on Otero's fumble of his grounder. George Hausmann also bounced one to Otero, who came up with the ball but threw into left field in an effort to force Rucker. Rucker reached third and Hausmann first on Reggie's second miscue. Bill Nicholson made a miraculous one-hand catch of Mel Ott's drive to the end of the right foul line but Rucker trotted home with the winning run.

Derringer Pitches Today

Rucker also scored the second New York run, and was again driven home on a fly by his manager. Rucker beat out an infield bouncer with one down in the eighth, went to third on Hausmann's single to center and scored on Ott's fly to Eddie Sauer, who played left in a shift made necessary by Andy Pafko's arm trouble.

The defeats, coupled with the Cardinal's conquest of the Boston Braves in St. Louis last night, reduced the north siders' lead in the National league pennant race to four games.

The Cubs and Giants will wind up their 1945 relations this afternoon. Paul Derringer, who hasn't been entrusted with a start against the Giants since July 1, when the New Yorkers brutally pinned the big ace's ears back with hits by the first six batters who faced him, will pitch for the Cubs, opposed by Harry Feldman, who has won 11 and lost 12.

FARRAR LOST TO WILDCATS FOR EARLY CONTESTS

Promising Quarter Back Suffers Knee Injury

Northwestern's football hopes suffered a severe jolt yesterday when Jim Farrar, first string quarter back, suffered a knee injury that will keep him out of action for at least a month. The East Cleveland, O., freshman, ranked as the outstanding new back on the squad, being a fine passer, runner and kicker.

With Farrar out of the early games, Coach Lynn Waldorf faced the task of developing a successor from a group of candidates that includes Don Laser, freshman from Riverside, Ill.; John Barron, Navy trainee from Salt Lake City; Bob Voytecek, another freshman from Martins Ferry, O., and Don Seidler, a discharged war veteran who attended Roosevelt High school, Chicago.

BADGERS GIVE ORLICK CHANCE

Madison, Wis., Sept. 7 [Special]—Dan Orlick of East Chicago, Ind., is being drilled for the left half back spot on the University of Wisconsin football team as Coach Harry Stuhldreher continues his search for an effective offensive combination.

WOLVERINES SCRIMMAGE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 7 [Special]—Coach H. O. [Fritz] Crisler will take his University of Michigan football squad into the Wolverine stadium tomorrow afternoon for a final regulation game scrimmage before next week's season opener with Great Lakes here.

BUCKEYES EARN HOLIDAY

Columbus, O., Sept. 7 [Special]—After today's practice sessions in which more new plays were given to the Ohio State squad, Coach Carroll Widdoes said only one practice session is in store for the Buckeyes tomorrow. Widdoes added the half holiday was declared because of the excessive heat, the hard practice sessions of the last week, and the mounting injury list.

IOWA SEEKS GAME

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 7 [Special]—The University of Iowa was looking for an opening football game today as a result of cancellation of the Ottumwa Naval Air station contest scheduled for Sept. 29 in Iowa stadium. Ottumwa has called off its schedule because 70 per cent of the station's personnel soon will return to civilian life.

ILLINI NEED CENTERS

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 7 [Special]—The Illinois varsity squad had only two centers today, but this fact didn't prevent Coach Ray Eliot from lining up three teams for work on signal calling and blocking.

The two available pivots, George Iujan of Christopher and Freshman Al Dobbeck of Elmhurst, alternated with all three teams. The reason for the shortage of centers was the absence of Mac Wenskunas, Georgetown, who was excused because of illness in the family.

LANDS IRISH BERTH

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 7 [Special]—Ed Mieszkowski, junior tackle from Chicago, practically clinched the varsity left tackle job this afternoon with a great defensive exhibition in a short scrimmage session which completed Notre Dame's fourth day of fall football workouts.

PURDUE SEEKS ENDS

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 7 [Special]—An extended line scrimmage to perfect blocking on running plays was held by Purdue's football squad today with Coach Cecil Isbell devoting particular attention to the end candidates.

Lacking a major letterman wing aspirant, the Boilermaker coach gave nearly a dozen candidates a chance to show their wares.

RAMS WIN FROM REDSKINS, 21-0, IN EXHIBITION GAME

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Washington Redskins, perennial powers in the National Football league's eastern division, were beaten 21 to 0 by the revived Cleveland Rams, in a non-championship game before 17,398 in Cleveland stadium tonight.

Bob Waterfield, former U. C. L. A. quarterback, led the Rams to their first triumph over Washington in six engagements. The west coast back scored one touchdown, passed for another, set up a third on a pass and kicked three extra points.

The Redskins threatened three times but were thwarted as the Rams recovered two fumbles and intercepted a pass.

The Redskins traveled to Cleveland's 3 yard line—their closest to scoring—in the first period but fumbled.

NAVAL AIR BASE AT BUNKER HILL CANCELS GAMES

Bunker Hill, Ind., Sept. 7 (AP)—Capt. E. T. Neal, commanding officer at the Bunker Hill naval air base, said today the station will cancel its entire football schedule.

Capt. Neal said cancellation of the schedule was caused by curtailment of the aviation cadet training program and the lack of officer and enlisted personnel to man a football team.

Vikings Sign Dawson, a Former Celtics Star

Danny Dawson, former star with the Glasgow, Scotland, Celtics, has signed to play with the Vikings of the Chicago National Soccer league, officials of the Vikings said last night. ROSH HASHANA MESSAGES TELL OF BRIGHTER DAY

Synagogs Are Filled for New Year Services

All synagogs were crowded last night for Jewish New Year services. Rabbis in the Rosh Hashana sermons placed special emphasis on the fact that this New Year's day is the first in 15 when Jewish peoples of the world have been free from all nazi threats. Many spoke of the new day for Israel when promises are brightest for the restoration of their ancient homeland in Palestine.

At the Loop Orthodox synagog, 16 S. Clark st., Rabbi Elias Gamze ministered to many who wear the uniform of the country. A large number attending this service were visitors at the Jewish Welfare board's United Service organization center at 203 N. Wabash av. At Ner Tamid synagog Rabbi Benjamin H. Birnbaum, former president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, reminded his congregation that with victory this New Year brings a message of great hope.

Psalmist Is Quoted

"No longer," said Rabbi Birnbaum, "does the world ask, as it did during the war, 'Where is God, and why does He permit aggression and bitter tragedy?' for God's voice has been unmistakably heard again in the words of the Psalmist, 'For the Lord regardeth the way of the righteous, and the way of the wicked shall perish.'

"We have again witnessed the vindication of truth and the triumph of justice. God has spoken the defeat of nations that sought to enslave mankind by the promulgation of the myth that the world is composed of superior and inferior races and that the more aggressive and the more ruthless are destined to rule the world."

Holiest Period for Judaism

The 10 day period between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur are the holiest in the calendar of Judaism. Fasting, self-examination, and abstention from ordinary duties are observed. Altho the blowing of the ram's horn is a characteristic of Rosh Hashana services, it will not be heard until tomorrow's services in many synagogs because today is also the Sabbath. At this coincidence the blowing of the shofar is often omitted until the second day of the period.

Thomas Tiemans, 10 month old son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Tiemans, 18112 Torrence av., Lansing, drowned in a fish pond yesterday in the back yard of his home, where his mother had left him to play. The mother, Margaret, 24, said she missed him soon afterward and found him face down in the pond, which is about one foot deep. A rescue squad of the Lansing fire department, led by Chief Everett Schultz, worked for 45 minutes in a vain effort to revive the child.

OUTPUT OF NEW FRAZER CAR SET FOR EARLY 1946

Plan Production of 100,000 Yearly

BY PHILIP HAMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7—The new Frazer automobile has been designed and styled and the engineering of the mechanical details is being rounded out, officials of Graham-Paige corporation disclosed today. The car is named for Joseph W. Frazer, president and board chairman.

The first autos are scheduled to be built late this year for display purposes. General production will not start until early in 1946. Present plans contemplate an initial production at the rate of 100,000 cars annually.

Altho the Frazer will be built on conventional lines, Graham-Paige officials said it will be an entirely new car with little trace of 1942 models in its styling. It will be powered by a 100 horse power six cylinder engine.

First Model Six Passenger

The Frazer will be in the medium price range in the class which includes Oldsmobile and Dodge. The first model will be a six passenger car, with the front seat wide enough for three persons to ride comfortably.

Howard Darrin, who had an important part in the designing of a number of 1942 style leaders, created the design of the new Frazer. H. C. McCaslin, recently with Willys-Overland Motors, is chief engineer.

After the Frazer has been produced successfully Graham-Paige will consider bringing out a second automobile with the engine at the rear, officials said. William B. Stout, who heads the company's research department and is widely known in aviation development, has long urged placing the engine at the rear.

Some of the advantages claimed for such a car include increased traction, better vision, better roadability, elimination of noise, motor fumes and heat from the interior, and more room for passengers. A rear engine car contemplated by Graham-Paige would have a small hood and compartment at the front for carrying a tire and baggage.

Same Safety as Other Cars

Company officials said the car would be constructed to give riders the same amount of safety possessed by conventional automobiles with the engine at the front.

The Graham-Paige plant is being cleared of its war production facilities. During the war the company produced Alligator amphibious tanks, master and articulating rods for Wright aviation engines and other items. A decision as to whether the company will join with Henry Kaiser interests in buying the Willow Run bomber plant is expected to be made within a couple of weeks, it was said.

Also associated with Frazer in the production of the new car are Vern R. Drum, formerly with Chrysler corporation and Willys-Overland, as vice president and general manager in charge of production, and William M. MacDonald, formerly with Willys-Overland, as vice president in charge of sales.

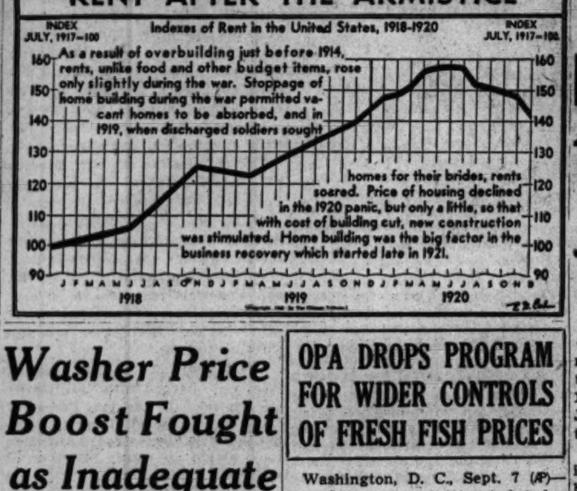
BASING POINTS FOR STAINLESS STEEL SHIFTED

Three subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation yesterday announced establishment of new basing points to apply to sales of stainless steel products. They are Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, National Tube company, and American Steel and Wire company.

Chicago was named the new basing point for Carnegie and National. Cleveland was designated for American Steel and Wire. Formerly Pittsburgh was the basing point in these sales.

The new basing points will provide lower prices in the Chicago and Cleveland areas thru reduced frate charges.

RENT AFTER THE ARMISTICE



Indexes of Rent in the United States, 1918-1920
INDEX JULY, 1917=100
As a result of overbuilding just before 1914, rents, unlike food and other budget items, rose only slightly during the war. Stoppage of home building during the war permitted vacant homes to be absorbed, and in 1919, when discharged soldiers sought homes for their brides, rents soared. Price of housing declined in the 1920 panic, but only a little, so that with cost of building cut, new construction was stimulated. Home building was the big factor in the business recovery which started late in 1921.

Washer Price Boost Fought as Inadequate

A boost to 7.7 per cent from the present 5.2 per cent maximum increase permitted above 1941 prices as the factory ceiling on household washers and ironers is not enough to make any appreciable difference to the industry, Bernard J. Hank, president of Conlon corporation and chairman of the OPA domestic laundry equipment industry advisory committee, asserted yesterday.

Manufacturers were notified of the increase to 7.7 per cent at a meeting with the OPA in Washington, D. C., after they had contended a 15 per cent interim increase was the least on which they could operate. An official ruling is expected next week. When it is received it will be protested formally, Hank said.

Termed Blow to Tax Program

"The OPA pricing policies if adhered to will defeat the tax program of the government," he said. "When you prevent profits, you automatically prevent collecting taxes on profits."

The advisory committee objected to the OPA's original figure, saying it was based on an "unacceptable and incorrect pricing formula." Manufacturers, at their latest session with the OPA, said they would proceed on their cash reserves, losing money in returning to civilian production. They said they must have relief by 1946.

Warns of Policy's Results

"Industry members announce also that they are reviewing their plans for the expansion of plant facilities and employment," Hank said. "The OPA pricing formula is particularly bad because before a manufacturer can get price relief, if at all, he must go further into the red. Conceivably, even if he got the maximum relief possible under OPA regulations, he easily might stay in the red."

RFC TAKES OVER ALCOA-LEASED FACILITIES NOV. 1

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The Reconstruction Finance corporation on Nov. 1 will take over the government-owned aluminum reduction plants operated under lease by the Aluminum Company of America, with the announced purpose of disposing of them to create competition in the industry.

Cancellation of the leases was announced today by Alcoa. The RFC later said its action was taken on recommendation of the surplus property board and indicated that the facilities will be closed until buyers or lessees can be found.

The RFC said an arrangement was offered to Alcoa to continue to operate any or all of the plants subject to a 60 day termination clause "in the interests of maintaining employment," but Alcoa was not interested in temporary operating arrangements.

Tool Manufacturer Asks $100,000 Strike Damages

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7 (AP)—The McKinney Tool and Manufacturing company today filed suit in federal court, demanding $100,000 damages from nine employes who went on strike last year. The action, brought under the war labor disputes act of 1943, contends that as a result of the strike war contracts were impeded and other employes left their jobs "in fear of their safety."

OPA DROPS PROGRAM FOR WIDER CONTROLS OF FRESH FISH PRICES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP)—The OPA changed its mind today about establishing ceiling prices for fresh fish not already under price control. As a result, maximum prices will not be established for fresh fish produced in the Great Lakes, southern, gulf, and middle Atlantic areas. Earlier the agency had told the fishing industry ceilings would be established. The OPA explained that demand for fish had decreased as a result of increased civilians supplies of meats, poultry, and canned fish.

Air Condition Sales Outlook Is Favorable

The potential demand for air conditioning should result in 1 to 1½ billion dollars worth of business in the next five years and a replacement market of 350 million dollars, a survey of the air conditioning and refrigerating industry made by Hirsch & Co. disclosed yesterday.

S. M. Ahmed, Hirsch economist, said that from 1939 to 1941, the number of residential installations of air conditioning increased 114 per cent, commercial 113 per cent, and industrial 143 per cent.

Use Comparatively Small

Despite the gains in new installations, the saturation point is far in the future, Ahmed said. He reported 22,000 or less than 1 per cent of homes valued at more than $12,000 using control heating, had air conditioning units. Only 3 per cent of department stores, 3 per cent of doctors' and dentists' offices, 2 per cent of bank establishments, 2 per cent of drug stores, 6 per cent of restaurants, 4 per cent of beauty and barber shops, and 5 per cent of hotels are air conditioned.

The replacement market also will be important, he said. About 35 per cent of commercial and 40 per cent of industrial installations were made more than 15 years ago.

Lists Growth Factors

Some of the favorable factors in the growth of the industry were listed in the study. They were: 1. The public is becoming increasingly air conditioning minded; 2, the sale of equipment is self-expanding, with one sale leading to another thru direct competition among users of equipment; 3, essentiality of air conditioning in numerous manufacturing processes and in the preservation and processing of food products, and 4, better equipment offering improved performance and operating economies.

GRAIN MARKETS LED LOWER BY RYE PRICE SAG

Grain futures markets closed easy yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade after an early upturn. September rye was up 1¾ cents a bushel at one time, but reacted 3 cents from the top and the decline was a factor in selling in other pits. Rye closed ⅛ to ¾ cent lower, wheat was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower, corn lost ¼ to ⅝, oats declined ⅛ to ⅛, and barley was ⅛ cent higher to ¼ lower.

Rapid changes in rye prices were attributed to professional operations with the aggregate trade relatively light and the market easily influenced.

TOTAL STRIKE IDLE MOUNT TO 121,000 PEAK

June High Passed; Detroit Hard Hit

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The national total of strike idle mounted yesterday to 121,000, one of the highest in years. A previous 1945 peak of 92,815 was reached on June 27, during the reaction to victory in Europe.

The Detroit automobile industry, in the midst of reconversion, was hardest hit by the new strike wave. Approximately 45,000 were idle in the motor capital, where a continuing strike at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company prompted the Ford Motor company to halt all its passenger car and truck production in eight cities and lay off more than 30,000 workers.

22,000 to Be Recalled

Ford officials said, however, that 22,000 of those laid off would be recalled to Detroit area plants Monday and that it hoped all plants outside Detroit could resume production next week. Other arrangements were said to have been made for materials ordinarily supplied by Kelsey-Hayes.

The Kelsey-Hayes strike, involving 4,500 CIO United Automobile Workers, arose over company refusal to rehire three minor union officials. Another Detroit strike made 7,000 Hudson Motor Car company employes idle.

Operations of the Pittsburgh works of Jones & Laughlin Steel corporation, employing 10,000, were halted by a sit-down strike of 60 railroad employes of a subsidiary. However, a company spokesman said last night the strikers had voted to return to work today.

In Akron, O., all operations of the B. F. Goodrich company's six plants stopped as 15,000 CIO United Rubber Workers remained out in protest against conditions described by union leaders as "chaotic."

2 NEW CHICAGO STRIKES

Two new strikes involving 813 workers were started yesterday in Chicago, and six others keeping 1,046 employes from work were continued.

Five hundred employes of the Wilson-Jones company, 3300 Franklin blvd., most of whom are members of local 148, United Paper Workers' union [CIO], went on strike to obtain a wage increase. The company manufactures loose leaf ledgers and forms.

The company accused the union of striking in the midst of negotiations for the increase. The union, thru its president, Frank Schaeffer, said the company was "stalling" and that it could grant the wage increases now without the approval of the war labor board.

Halt Packing Machine Output

Three hundred thirteen members of local 284 of the United Packinghouse Workers' union [CIO] struck and paralyzed production of meat packing machinery and equipment at the Globe company, 4000 Princeton av. Joseph Kinch, international representative of the union, said the workers left their jobs because the company was "chiseling" on their incentive pay.

Company officials denied this charge and said the unionists walked out during negotiations.

Other strikes which continued in Chicago involved employes of Cribben & Sexton company, 700 N. Sacramento blvd.; Provident hospital, 426 E. 51st st.; Bucyrus-Monighan company, 931 N. Kilpatrick av., and General Chemical company, 12260 Cardondolet av. Mass picketing by the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union prevented 100 men's tie makers from working.

Lack of Labor in Steel Mills Termed Acute

Despite large layoffs by companies formerly in war production, steel mills are experiencing the most acute labor shortage since Pearl Harbor, an industry spokesman said yesterday.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation needs approximately 3,500 workers in two Chicago area plants, mostly common labor, a company spokesman said. About 1,900 men are needed at the company's South Chicago plant where only seven of 11 blast furnaces are in operation. At the Gary plant 1,500 workers are needed. Two furnaces are inoperative there.

Caused by Several Factors

More or less chronic, the scarcity of common labor in steel mills has become aggravated for several reasons, a spokesman said. Partly responsible has been the upgrading of employes to more responsible jobs, and deliberate idleness by some to collect unemployment benefits. Another reason is that common labor tasks are usually unattractive and are at the bottom of the pay scale.

While production lags, orders come in large volume from users of cold rolled steel, light hot rolled steel, and galvanized materials. Warehouse or jobber stocks are inadequate for the reconversion period, and these operators are trying "frantically" to purchase any kind or quantity of steel, it was said.

Return to Higher Quality

National emergency steel, also known as NE steel, made during the war, has not been popular since the end of the war, the steel spokesman said. Many manufacturers are going back to higher pre-war standards, he explained.

Military orders continue to absorb a share of the steel supply even tho the war is over. Among the war items still in production are jet propelled planes, tanks, portable hospital units, small arms, ammunition boxes, and hardware for army cots.

Another outlet draining off domestic steel supplies is prefabricated housing for Great Britain. Altho the lend-lease program under which this item has been produced has been ended, production continues, indicating some other method of financing.

CHICAGO PLANTS LAY OFF 106,732 SINCE WAR'S END

The total of war workers laid off in Chicago area plants since the surrender of Japan reached 106,732 as seven companies yesterday reported additional release of 987, said Charles R. Cheadle, executive secretary of the joint program information committee.

The committee said the layoff peak has been reached and that companies are calling back workers in increasing numbers. Western Electric company reported approximately 2,500 of the 5,000 workers sent home from the Hawthorne plant have been called back. Utah Radio Products company, 820 Orleans st., which laid off 707 workers about two weeks ago, has called back 152 and others will be rehired as soon as materials are available.

Total traffic thru the 18 United States employment service offices in Cook and DuPage counties was 270,080 at noon yesterday. Thursday's total was 21,311, of whom 10,807 were men and 10,504 women. Country-wide layoffs decreased from 1,800,000 in the 10 days after Japan surrendered to 300,000 in the week ended Aug. 31.

PRICES STEADY ON LIVE STOCK; SUPPLY SMALL

Few changes occurred in the markets for meat animals at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. The cattle run of 2,200 was the smallest on a Friday in four weeks, as was the sheep and lamb total of 2,500. Hog receipts of 5,500 were the second smallest of the year for Friday and among the lowest in many years.

The cattle trade was dull, with prices for most kinds about unchanged. No highly finished beef steers arrived, the best in the run selling at $17.25 a hundred pounds.

Altho the top for lambs rose 15 cents to $13.50, only a short load brought the price and the practical top remained unchanged at $13.35. Most sheep and lambs sold steady. Hogs remained at ceiling prices.

During October dealers may transfer new vehicles only to holders of certificates, and ODT urged certificate holders to place orders with dealers before Nov. 1.

During November dealers are required to give preference in deliveries to holders of certificates who place orders before Oct. 31, but may deliver vehicles to others in the absence of commitments to holders of certificates.

CHICAGO HOME BUILDERS JOIN DRIVE ON CURBS

Request President to 'Free' Industry

BY AL CHASE

The Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders association yesterday joined the country-wide protest of realtors, builders, and allied construction interests against the delay in removing home building restrictions. The group wired a request to President Truman to "unshackle the home building industry."

The telegram, signed by Arthur E. Fossier, president of the association, said it was difficult to reconcile the restrictive attitude of government toward home building with the President's declared policies in his message to congress.

Sets Annual Building Goal

President Truman in his message said that 1 to 1½ million homes should be built in the United States annually during the next decade. Private enterprise in this field could provide employment for several million workers each year, he said.

"Within the last two weeks the public has been informed that certain agencies while recommending the release of every other type of construction from the restrictive regulations of war production board order L-41 [which stopped all building in 1941 except for war facilities] are proposing to shackle home building with such complex restrictions as to make the accomplishment of your expressed purposes impossible," the wire said.

Fossier asserted that the backers of these proposed new federal regulations were said to have reported that "their views received your encouragement."

Urges Action by Members

The Chicago Real Estate board sent out a special "urgent" bulletin to all of its members, asking them to wire or telephone Illinois senators and representatives and President Truman demanding that home restrictions be lifted.

The threat of a federal permit system for prospective home builders, said to be planned by the office of price administration for residential construction, already has "demoralized the home building industry," said L. C. Hart, president of the Producers' council, a national organization of manufacturers of building materials and equipment.

4 REAL ESTATE PARCELS BRING $565,000 TOTAL

Three downtown properties and an outlying parcel of real estate were sold yesterday by the heirs of Miss Mary Virginia McCormick, a sister of the late Harold McCormick, for $565,000. The six story building at 28-30 S. Michigan av. was sold to Harry Simon for $225,000.

The eight story building at the southwest corner of Market st. and Jackson blvd. was sold to Irving Koppel for $125,000. Koppel also bought the 11 story building at 525 Plymouth ct. for $160,000.

The land under the one story building at the northwest corner of Prairie av. and 20th st. was bought by Harry Schulman for $55,000. All the buyers were representatives of syndicates, said the office of Judson F. Stone, representing the McCormick estate.

INTERSTATE POWER

Please give me details of the proposed reorganization plan of Interstate Power company—E. O.

Under the recapitalization plan filed recently by Interstate Power, a subsidiary of Ogden corporation, with the securities and exchange commission, the company would have outstanding 19 million dollars of new first mortgage bonds and 3 million shares of new common stock of $3.50 par value. The bond interest rate has not been announced.

Proceeds of the sale of the new bonds and part of the new stock at competitive bidding would be used to retire the $26,035,500 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds without premium; 7½ million dollars of 6 per cent debentures, except a $100 debenture owned by Ogden; and for liquidation of the debt, as determined by the SEC, held by Ogden, consisting of a $2,475,000 demand note and the $100 debenture. Proceeds of the sale also are expected to reimburse Interstate Power up to 1½ million for new construction.

The remaining common shares would be distributed to holders of the preferred stock, as their rights may be determined by the commission. The old common stock, all held by Ogden, would be canceled. Interstate Power, supplying electricity and in some instances other services, operates in Iowa, Minnesota, and South Dakota.

Stocks Gain Tho Many Leaders Dip

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—Some industrials and scattered utilities touched new eight year price peaks in today's stock market, but many leaders weakened as buying turned selective.

The prosperity note sounded in the President's message again was a buoying influence. Individual high grade issues exhibited strength on an improved reconversion outlook. Doubts persisted, however, regarding any real cut in taxes and this led to boardroom caution. Accounts also were trimmed because of the belief a sizable technical correction of the long upswing was not far away.

Reaching new highs were Eastman Kodak, up 4, and du Pont, up 3.

BONDS MOSTLY LOWER

New York, Sept. 7 (AP)—The bond market was lower today, altho some railroad issues advanced fractions to a point or more. St. Louis-San Francisco 5s of 1950 B certified rose 2¼, and other rails advancing were Consolidated Railway 4s, International Great Northern adjustment 6s, New Haven 4s of 1956, and Norfolk and Southern convertible 5s.

CHICAGO LIST GAINS

Prices again were higher and turnover increased to 51,000 shares in a broadened trade yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Seventy-four issues advanced and 30 declined. Actively traded issues included Advance Aluminum, up ⅞ to a 1945 peak of 11½; Peabody Coal, up ¼; Libby, McNeill, up ⅛, and Chicago corporation common, unchanged.

COUNCIL TO GET GRANT PARK WAR MEMORIAL PLAN

Group Favors $100,000 Granite Crescent

Initial steps toward creation of a suitable memorial to Chicago's more than 5,000 war dead were taken yesterday when a council sub-committee on the office of civilian defense, headed by Ald. Grealis [44th], approved a plan submitted by Ralph H. Burke, vice chairman of the Chicago war service corps, the OCD's successor.

Burke urged that the council request the park district to set aside a Grant park area, east of Michigan av. and Congress st. and adjacent to the Buckingham fountain, to be known as Memorial court, and that Paul Gerhardt Jr., city architect, be directed to design the memorial.

Veterans Groups Indorse Idea

Burke submitted a tentative design for a crescent shaped granite structure, 250 feet long, within which would be erected a raised platform. Names of Chicagoans who fell in battle would be etched in the granite wall facing the platform.

Burke was asked to submit tentative plans for the memorial at a meeting of the subcommittee several weeks ago after several aldermen objected to neighborhood plaques listing war dead as being gruesome reminders to parents.

Ald. Wagner [14th], a member of the subcommittee, moved for a $100,000 appropriation for the memorial by the council. Half of this sum would come from unexpended OCD funds.

Public Hearings Ordered

Wagner moved also that the subcommittee hold public hearings on the memorial and its design. Both proposals were adopted.

Under the present plan the city would build the memorial, and the park district would maintain it in perpetuity.

Burke also informed the subcommittee that all organized activity of the Chicago war service corps would terminate Sept. 30.

CITY PLANNERS JOIN C. A. C. IN APPROVING COUNTY'S ROAD PLANS

Cook county's detailed highway program, with specific priorities on work to be done thru the next five years at a total cost of $38,671,000, was approved yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Regional Planning association. Supt. George A. Quinlan of the county highway department will submit it to the county board at its next meeting.

The program estimated that the county will have 71 million dollars, mostly from motor fuel taxes, to spend on construction in the next 11 years.

The priority report, drawn jointly by committees headed by Eugene A. Rummler of the association of commerce and Robert Kingery of the planning association, was divided into two parts.

Kelly announced that, as head of a special committee of city and county officials, he would seek an audience with Gov. Green in the Union League club today in an effort to get a promise that state funds would pay a third of the cost of widening Congress st. within the city limits.

Subcommittee Will Draft County Health Unit Plan

A committee of the Cook county board held a preliminary hearing yesterday on a proposal to establish a county board of health. Commissioner Elizabeth A. Conkey, chairman, was authorized to appoint a subcommittee to draft a resolution outlining the specific proposals. At present, county health work is controled by the bureau of public welfare. A new law makes it optional for the county to set up its own health board.

IT'S DRAMA PLUS AS P. W.S FROM JAPAN GET HOME

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Twenty-eight Americans, freed from Japanese prison camps, stepped out of a plane on the west coast yesterday. A W-G-N-Mutual reporter was on hand with a microphone to get their first words.

"It's like being resurrected from the living dead," said Dale Andrews, whose wife and parents live at Mount Carmel, Edwards county. There were others who spoke just as fervently: "It's really wonderful to be back," "Just like being born again," "It's great to be on United States soil again," and just plain, "O, boy!" Wives, sisters, children were on hand to meet the men, some of whom were freed only a week ago.

Steve Courtleigh, young actor recently discharged from the marine corps, is to play the leading part in the Shadow when it returns to W-G-N at 4 p. m. tomorrow. He is new in the role. John Archer had it last year. Courtleigh gained fame as an actor several years ago when he played Lincoln in the play "Prologue to Glory." Laura Mae Carpenter, a Minneapolis girl, will take the feminine lead.

When Truth or Consequences returns to WMAQ-NBC at 7:30 tonight Ralph Edwards, the conductor, will ask a question of Pvt. Armand Andereck, 1095 S. Evergreen st., Kankakee. Andereck, who was wounded in Okinawa, is now in a hospital overseas. He will be cut into the show by shortwave. His wife, Joan, who lives in Kankakee with their two children, is to be involved in the "consequences." She is to be heard on the air.

Edwards and Eddie Cantor have been filling in as guest conductors of Take It or Leave It. But Phil Baker, the regular conductor, who has been on vacation, will be propounding the $64 questions tomorrow night.

Cass Daley, the raucous singing comedienne who played a long engagement on the Bing Crosby show, is the fifth comedy headliner engaged by NBC for Sunday evenings. The chain's two and a half hour parade will include Harold Peary [The Great Gildersleeve] at 5:30; Jack Benny and company at 6 p. m.; Miss Daley on the Bandwagon show at 6:30; Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy at 7, and Fred Allen at 7:30. There are reports that Allen will not take Benny to task so often this year. His barbs are more likely to be directed at Charlie McCarthy. [They have the same sponsor.]

LT. WAYNE THOMIS, ON LEAVE FROM TRIBUNE, PROMOTED BY NAVY

Wayne Thomis, aviation editor of THE TRIBUNE on military leave, has been promoted from navy lieutenant to lieutenant commander, it was learned yesterday.

Comdr. Thomis was commissioned a lieutenant in October, 1942, and assigned as a flying instructor to Pensacola, Fla. He has since helped train thousands of navy flyers, and has himself added to his impressive record of flying hours.

Before he entered the navy, Thomis had nearly 1,100 hours of flying credit in 30 different types of planes. He became aviation editor of THE TRIBUNE in 1934. He is 37, married, and the father of two sons and a daughter.

HABEAS WRIT GIVEN FARMER PUT IN ARMY DESPITE PROTESTS

A writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Louis Podewels, 25, of Janesville, Wis., inducted into the army Wednesday and now at Fort Sheridan, was issued yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan and made returnable before Judge William J. Campbell next Wednesday.

The petition for the writ, filed by his father, Elmer, charged that Podewels was inducted illegally in that he had an agricultural deferment and should have continued deferred under the Miller-Tydings amendment to the selective service act. Podewels operates an 80 acre farm and aids in threshing on 11 other farms. His father operates a 116 acre farm.

Draft board 2 of Rock county, Wis., was charged with "arbitrarily and capriciously" denying Podewels' claim for continued deferment. The petition also alleged board members took action to cause rejection of Podewels' appeal.

Podewels' attorney, Joseph Page, and Assistant United States Atty. Maurice Handelman were instructed to confer with Brig. Gen. John Pierce, commanding officer at the Fort hSeridan reception center, regarding Podewels' appearance for the hearing.

Ban on Dark Stairways in Flats Sought by Hodes

Corporation Counsel Hodes said yesterday an ordinance requiring owners of buildings containing more than two flats to keep stairways, hallways, and areaways lighted after dark is being prepared for presentation to the city council on Sept. 18. Hodes informed the council that the legislature had adopted a statute permitting the city to enact such an ordinance. A similar ordinance passed in 1917 was declared unconstitutional because of lack of legislative authority.

MICHIGAN CITY'S POLIO CURB ON SCHOOLS LIFTED

Dr. Daniel G. Bernoske, chief health officer of Michigan City, Ind., yesterday authorized the opening Monday of that city's public and parochial schools. Resumption of classes a week ago was deferred because of a threatened infantile paralysis epidemic. During the last three weeks, Dr. Bernoske reported 29 cases and five deaths from the disease in Michigan City and adjoining LaPorte county areas. He said he lifted the ban which barred all children under 16 from public gatherings, because no new cases had been reported during the last 48 hours.

Tinley Park school will be sprayed with a DDT solution Monday as a safeguard against infantile paralysis, Dr. Edward E. Piszczek, Cook county health director, said yesterday. The Midlothian and Forest Ridge schools, which were sprayed with DDT, will open Monday. Dr. Piszczek said he had not been requested to spray the Oak Forest and Markham schools, which have postponed opening until Monday.

Ships Blocked by Break in Van Buren St. Bridge

The Van Buren st. bridge was closed to navigation early yesterday because of a breakdown in operating equipment, and will remain closed until Monday, W. W. De Berard, city engineer, announced.
